Machine Gun Jams In Gunman's Hand

Shooting in Northwest Comes After Watch on Stolen Car.

While Department of Justice agents and Metropolitan Police searched Northwest Washington armed with submachine guns last night for two former convicts, also armed with a machine gun, the body of a third lay in the District Morgue with two bullets below his heart after a battle with a policeman on Adams Mill road yesterday noon.

The dead man was identified as William Benjamin Phillips, 28, alias "Jerry Perry," alias "William Berrith," alias "John Costello." He was killed almost instantly when Acting Sergt. John A. Caton, of the Tenth Precinct, shot him as Phillips drew an automatic pistol.

His two companions escaped. They were believed to be William Davis and John Kendricks, both of whom escaped from Lorton Reformatory last year. One fled before the shooting started, while the other vanished up an alleyway carrying a submachine gun.

Apartment Guarded.

Police and Department of Justice forces covered the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia last night in an effort to capture the pair. An apartment in the 2700 block of Adams Mill road, where the trio was alleged to reside, was guarded.

The three men were sought in connection with the hijacking of $30,000 worth of cigarettes from a truck near Weldon, N. C., last week. The Justice agents received a "tip" that the trio was in Washington, and traced the men to the neighborhood of Adams Mill road and Ontario place northwest, through a Maryland automobile license, which had been used on the hijackers' car.

At midnight Wednesday they stationed a guard over the parked car. A uniformed policeman was detailed to aid the agents, and the first man assigned to this duty was Prvt. W. E. Dugan, who was relieved by Patrolman J. H. McHale. Before McHale went to lunch he disconnected the distributor in the suspects' automobile.

Caton Sits in Police Car.

Acting Sergt. Caton relieved McHale and took his post in a police machine, facing the automobile under observation. A few minutes later the trio appeared coming down Adams Mill road, one apparently with something heavy beneath his coat. They had a brief conference when they spied the police car, and then Kendricks

Johnson, Richberg Narrowly Escape Death by Train

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Miami, Fla., April 12.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, whose flair for the unusual led him to leave Washington by train and arrive in Miami by motorboat, today again made news in leaving when he had a "close call" at a railroad crossing on the way to the station.

Only a few feet separated the car in which he was riding with Donald R. Richberg, NRA chief counsel; Marvin H. McIntyre, White House secretary, and a party of newspapermen from the onrush of a freight train.

Death or injury was narrowly averted when the bus driver speeded up as he saw the train approaching the crossing. Sighs of relief came from all aboard, including Miss Frances Robinson, Johnson's assistant, as the bus "beat the train to it."

"If anybody had been wearing an overcoat we'd have been hit, sure," Johnson commented.

The party went on to meet the President.

Parade by Congress To Greet Roosevelt Upon Return Today

Unprecedented Gesture Limited to Members of Both Houses.

By Raymond Clapper.

Congress sent President Roosevelt off on his vacation with a stinging defeat by overriding his veteran veto, but last night it prepared to make ceremonial amends by giving him an unprecedented reception at Union Station when his train arrives about 10 a. m. today.

Members of the House and Senate, without regard to party, were invited to parade from the Capitol to Union Station to meet the Presidential train. The Marine Band in scarlet coats will head the parade.

This is an unprecedented gesture, but Democratic leaders insisted it was entirely nonpolitical.

Those in charge announced that no one would be permitted in line except members of the House and Senate.

There were earmarks of remorse and anxiety to get back into the President's good graces as members prepared to give the returning President a hand which Mussolini might well envy from his loyal legislators.

The impression has grown up in Washington that Congress has got-

President, Refreshed by Trip, Takes Up Reins Aboard Train.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Aboard Presidential Special En Route to Washington, April 12.—President Roosevelt was homeward bound tonight, sun-tanned and invigorated by a "perfectly marvelous" fishing cruise that left him anxious to gather up the reins of Government he relaxed 16 days ago.

With a zest that attested the value of his vacation, he came ashore at Miami early today, entrained, and almost immediately plunged ahead into problems of recovery with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

Out of them and an informal interview with newspapermen came the impression that the President feels the march to prosperity is gathering momentum, that Congress is well on the path to adjournment, and that immediate problems are not threatening.

This confidence was reiterated by Recovery Administrator Johnson, who declined to reveal the nature of his discussions with the President, but did shed some light on the proposed housing program, which would be set up by NRA.

In contrast to Mr. Roosevelt's last visit to Miami, when the assassin,

Wirt Denies He Sought PWA Funds

No Roller Coaster Was in Plans, Answer to Sec. Ickes.

Reed Demands Apology, but Bulwinkle Is Out of City.

Dr. William A. Wirt, Gary, Ind., educator, who in the hearing before a House investigating committee called expenditure of public money for subsistence homesteads communistic, was interested in obtaining $2,000,000 from the Public Works Administration to build an amusement park, Secretary Ickes said yesterday.

Wirt immediately denied the charge, declaring that he never had asked for a cent of public money for any purpose. He said, however, he was president of a company which owned the land on which the park was to be built and that his company had given an option to the park promoters.

The request for money for the park was denied, Ickes said.

Reed Demands Apology.

Meanwhile, James A. Reed, former Senator from Missouri and counsel for Wirt, demanded that Representative Alfred L. Bulwinkle (Democrat), North Carolina, chairman of the investigating committee, make a public apology for his declaration in the House Wednesday that Wirt had been jailed during the war for pro-German activities. At Bulwinkle's office it was said he was out of the city for several days.

Bulwinkle Wednesday made the direct statement that Wirt had been in jail. In the Congressional Record, however, Bulwinkle was quoted as stating that if he wished to attack Wirt's character he would have asked him whether or not he had been in jail for pro-German activities. The charge that Wirt had ever been in jail was immediately denied in his behalf by Reed, who followed up the denial with the apology demand.

Seven prominent Gary citizens sent telegrams to Congress denying the jail charge and denying that Wirt had ever been suspected of pro-German activities. Representative Harold McGugin (Republican), Kansas, a member of the investigating committee, made an unsuccessful attempt to read the telegrams on the floor and to get them into the Record.

Ickes told reporters that Wirt had sought money from the PWA "before he discovered it was communistic to try to lift the country out of a rut."

"He was interested in a project in Porter County, Ind," Ickes said. "They wanted $2,000,000 for what they said was a self-liquidating project outside of Gary on Lake Michigan. They proposed to put up a merry-go-round, an observation tower, a roller coaster, a vegetable market and a scenic railway. Maybe there was even to be a shell game.

At $50 Per Foot.

"There was a company that happened to own all the real estate involved. This was the Dunes Acres, Inc. Wirt was president of this company. When they thought they

Dr. C. T. Wilson Ill After Heart Attack

Batavia, N. Y., April 12 (AP).—Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, was confined to his hotel room here today after a slight heart attack last night. He was stricken after making an address. He is not seriously ill.

He was to have gone to Ashtabula, Ohio, today. Instead he will remain here a day or two and then return to Washington.

French Veterans Vote to Consider Economy

Paris, April 12 (AP).—Premier Gaston Doumergue won another important victory in his economy program today by inducing French war veterans to consider cuts in their pensions.

The National Confederation of Veterans voted, 4 to 1, to take up the government's proposed decrees. Their willingness to consider cuts indicated final acceptance of the proposed 3 per cent slash.

Father's Will Leaves Girl, 13, $4,000,000

Beaumont, Tex., April 12 (AP).—Thirteen-year-old Dorothy Yount will receive a $4,000,000 fortune.

This was disclosed today with the filing of an inventory of the estate of her father, Miles Frank Yount, Beaumont oil magnate, who died last November. The widow, Pansy Yount, will share half of the estate, another $4,000,000.

House Body Votes to Kill Margin Curb

Senate Lead Followed in Changes Made in Stock Bill.

Wide Authority Propose for Reserve Board to Fix Limit.

The drive to liberalize stringent provisions of the Fletcher-Rayburn stock market control bill, initiated in the Senate, yesterday was followed through in the House, where a special Interstate Commerce subcommittee eliminated rigid margin requirements.

In its stead the sub-committee voted the Federal Reserve Board wide authority to raise or lower margins security purchasers must post with their brokers, but suggested 45 per cent as a reasonable figure.

The 45 per cent provision, offered in lieu of the 60 per cent rigid requirement written into the first revision of the bill, is simply an expression of Congressional opinion, with no mandatory effect upon the Federal Reserve Board, sub-committee members explained.

Agree With Black.

The change was virtually what Governor Eugene R. Black of the Federal Reserve Board recommended as the "most scientific" approach to margin regulation.

An alternative provision permitting a loan of 100 per cent of the lowest price at which a stock has sold in the preceding three years, if the loan is not more than 75 per cent of the current market price, was left in the bill.

Later in the day, the House subcommittee wrote a second liberalizing change in the bill. A substitute was adopted for the bitterly contested subsection giving the Federal Trade Commission power to prescribe accounting forms on which corporations must make their reports to the commission. The substitute provided simply that returns be made on the usual accounting forms.

Opposing the original provision, business corporations had argued it might subject them to great expense if forced to alter accounting methods. Sub-committee members said the change would meet this objection.

Earlier in the day, a Senate Banking sub-committee steadfastly re-

Marine Air Ace Is Lost at Sea

Cloud, Winner of Safety Prize, Leaps as Plane Tangles Target.

Norfolk, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Lieut. D. L. Cloud, winner last year of the Schiff safety trophy for the most hours spent in the air without accident, is believed to have been drowned at sea off Virginia Beach today when he jumped from a Marine Corps plane.

Engaged in target practice 2,500 feet in the air, his plane tangled in a sleeve target towed by another and Lieut. Cloud jumped in his parachute.

Two Marine Corps pilots, Lieut. E. A. Montgomery and John Wehle, witnessed the accident. They said Lieut. Cloud cleared the plane before it struck the ocean about three miles off shore. Circling the water, however, they could find no trace of him or the parachute.

Four Norfolk Naval Air Station planes and four Coast Guard vessels, together with small fishing craft, searched the area throughout the afternoon without finding traces of the aviator.

Lieut. Cloud was awarded the Herbert Schiff Memorial Trophy last January as the commander of Squadron VO-7-M, which had the largest number of flying hours without accident to personnel or material during 1933.

He was born at Crawfordsville, Ga., September 5, 1904, and entered the Marine Corps in 1925.

Two Die in Crash Near Hancock, Md.

Baltimore Men in Auto, Run Off Road.

Hagerstown, Md., April 12 (Spl.). Joseph G. Valiant 2d, 36, and John G. Myers, 55, both of Baltimore, were killed in an automobile accident near Hancock late last night.

Valiant, an interior decorator, died at the scene. Myers died in the Washington County Hospital this morning. The car, driven by Valiant, failed to negotiate a curve and hit a pole.

William P. Cornell and Robert L. Clark, also of Baltimore, occupying the rear seat, were injured, not seriously.

Magistrate Richard Sweeney, acting coroner, said no formal inquest will be held.

Copenhagen, Denmark, April 12 (AP).—Seven thousand seamen and firemen went on strike today, demanding wage increases of 25 per cent and shorter hours. The seamen asked an eight-hour day, the firemen a six-hour day.

League Wary As Letician War Impends

Colombia and Peru Are Reported Girding for Warfare.

Geneva, April 12 (AP).—The League of Nations' advisory committee was informed today that Colombia and Peru are preparing for war over the Leticia border area, but that body sidestepped positive action in the hope the two nations might conciliate their dispute.

Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, Mexican Ambassador to France, advised the commission that Peru and Colombia are purchasing armaments, and that negotiations conducted in Rio de Janeiro are unlikely to be successful by June, when a league commission's mandate over Leticia expires.

Dr. Eduardo Santos, Colombian representative here, presented a note from his government demanding a categorical decision by the league giving Colombia full sovereignty over the area by June.

He warned that if "events happened which entail serious consequences on the American Continent, Colombia will not be responsible."

Fifty aviators and mechanics left New York today for Colombia. Recent reports also have said other foreign aviators and military leaders are being hired by Colombia.

The advisory committee adjourned its meeting until the end of the month, hoping that in the meantime the Rio de Janeiro talks might finally progress.

Dr. Santos said Colombia would install a garrison in the area—a jungle region on the upper Amazon considered important by Colombia because it controls an outlet to the Atlantic—strong enough to protect the security of all inhabitants.

Open but undeclared warfare flared in Leticia last February, after months of smoldering resentment. Subsequently, however, the nations agreed to a truce.

A dispatch from Rio de Janeiro said the announcement in Geneva of Colombia's refusal to extend the league mandate over the Leticia district apparently had little effect on Peruvian-Colombian peace negotiations.

Lake Carriers Boost Pay of All Employes

Cleveland, Ohio, April 12 (AP).—Ten per cent wage increases for all classes of men employed on boats operated by the Lake Carriers Association were announced tonight.

In addition, the association has recommended to its members that they increase the crews of the ships, Capt. Joseph S. Wood, chairman of the executive committee, said this will mean "in most instances a reduction of hours with eight-hour watches."

Labor Strife Flares Anew In Auto Trade

Tool and Die Makers in Detroit to Vote on Strike.

Detroit, April 12 (AP).—Renewed indications of labor's dissatisfaction with the progress toward peace in the automobile industry developed today in the announcement that five union locals in Pontiac, Mich., ignoring the automobile labor tribunal, had forwarded new demands to manufacturers for increased wages and shorter hours.

Meanwhile tool and die makers employed in Detroit job shops were called into a "strike vote" meeting tonight. Matthew J. Smith, general secretary of the Mechanics' Educational Society, independent union of skilled workers, said the strike, if voted, would become effective at midnight.

Under the surface in the negotiations that have been in progress since the creation of the automobile labor tribunal to avert a threatened strike, have been recurring rumors of labor dissatisfaction with the settlement plan thus affected. These rumors were climaxed today with the announcement the Pontiac locals of the United Automobile Workers, A. F. of L. affiliate, had presented new demands.

At the same time it was stated a general meeting of union labor representatives from Detroit, Pontiac, Flint, Saginaw, Lansing and Cleveland and possibly Toledo and Akron, Ohio, would be held in Pontiac next Sunday. William Collins, chief A. F. of L. organizer in the automobile industry, minimized the importance of the Pontiac meeting, saying it was merely a "regular council" conference. He added that he knew nothing of any impending "strike action" at that meeting.

Rumors that the tense situation in the industry again had been presented by letter to President Roosevelt were current today, but members of the labor tribunal would not discuss them.

Kenosha, Wis., April 12 (AP).—Employes of the Nash Motor Co.'s plant voted late today to accept new wage concessions from the company and end a strike which began six weeks ago.

Final settlement of the strike, involving 4,700 workers in Nash plants in Kenosha and Racine and the Seaman Body Corporation in Milwaukee, is contingent upon action to be taken by the Seaman employes tomorrow.

The new offer submitted to members of the Automobile Workers' Union here provides for wage increases of from 5 to 17.2 per cent in the local plant. The Labor Board's terms provided a flat 10 per cent raise above the wage scales prevailing in the Racine plant when the strike started there February 21.

Glassford Finds Communist Plot Perils Imperial Valley

Brawley, Calif., April 12 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, retired, reported today as Federal investigator that a serious situation exists in the Imperial Valley here growing out of activities "connected with a widespread Communist program."

The former head of District of Columbia police issued the following statement:

"There exists a very serious situation in the Valley, created by attempts to organize a local unit of the Cannery and Agricultural Workers Industrial Union.

"My investigation has shown this union is indisputably, though indirectly, connected with a widespread Communist program.

"The situation created by the activities of outside agitators, and threats of a strike to destroy the very important melon crop, have resulted in unlawful interference by officials and organized citizens with the consitutional rights of free speech and assembly.

"These important matters are beyond the scope of my present authority."

Senate Votes Estate, Gift Tax Rise; Roosevelt May Modify Securities Act

Jobs for 6,000,000 in Durable Industries Await Change.

1933 Law Called Dam to Enterprise

General Revision Not Aim of President, He Explains.

An intimation from President Roosevelt that minor modifications of the securities act might be desirable heartened opponents of the measure yesterday.

The President, aboard his special train en route to Washington, made it clear he does not favor general revision of the act, which has been accused by business groups throughout the country of impeding recovery by discouraging normal issue of securities.

Upon his return Mr. Roosevelt is expected to give early attention to at least a few minor modifications of the measure.

The President gave his approval to amendments proposed by the Federal Trade Commission, one of which would limit liability of the house of issue to the amount of its own underwriting.

Fire of Durable Goods.

Meanwhile the securities act came under fire yesterday from the durable goods industries, which asserted they could employ between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 persons now out of work if the measure were liberalized to permit them adequate new capital.

This group, in normal times, employs more than 50 per cent of all labor engaged in manufacturing in the United States.

Representatives elected at the general conference of NRA code authorities here March 8 yesterday issued a statement listing the following as necessary to obtain reemployment for "more than 5,000,000" jobless persons in these industries:

"Restoration of confidence in the Government's future policies.

"The opening up of channels for the free flow of private savings into normal investments.

"The breaking open of the frozen mortgage situation and the creation of new forms of real estate financing."

The committee said that, in the 10 years prior to 1930, about $4,000,000,000 of new capital moved annually into enterprises in this country, while this has been reduced, since 1933, to $160,000,000.

"The securities act of 1933 has definitely interfered with the free flow of private savings into industrial enterprise," the committee declared.

Statement to Code Chiefs.

It's complete statement to code authorities and code committees throughout the country follows:

"Your committee, elected by the durable goods industries at the close of the conference of code authorities in Washington on March 8, has been working in cooperation with the consumption goods industries committee to present to the President, the Congress and to the heads of all departments here in Washington the viewpoint of indus-

Roosevelt, Saito Meeting Is Hinted

Honolulu, April 12 (AP).—An epochal meeting at this crossroads of the Pacific between President Roosevelt and Premier Makoto Saito, of Japan, is pictured in Japanese newspapers as a possibility this summer.

Recent issues of Japanese language newspapers in Tokyo say Saito is planning to come to Hawaii about the time of Mr. Roosevelt's projected visit.

Japanese newspapers say should President Roosevelt visit Hawaii and find it impossible to continue to Japan, Premier Saito would be willing to meet him here.

Heirs Will Share Insurance Of Woman Drowned by Mate

A life insurance policy taken out by Howard C. Dickerson, alias Harry C. Wimbley, on the life of his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Dickerson, will be paid to her estate even though Dickerson is serving a life sentence for drowning her in the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal.

A jury in the Court of Justice James M. Proctor, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday gave Patrick Henry Tench, Mrs. Dickerson's father, a verdict for $1,150. The money was paid to him as the administrator of his daughter's estate.

Dickerson and John M. Crowder were convicted of second-degree murder for Mrs. Dickerson's death. She and her daughter were catapulted into the canal waters July 31, 1931, from a canoe in which they had gone riding with the two men. Mrs. Dickerson's small daughter, Wilma Traylor, also was drowned.

Crowder was sentenced to serve 30 years, the lighter sentence being given him because the prosecution evidence showed that Dickerson was the perpetrator of the plot. It was he who took out the insurance policy on his wife and forged her name. The policy aroused suspicions after the drowning and led to a police investigation and indictment of the two.

Tench was appointed administrator by the courts in Virginia, where he lives. The money will be paid out to heirs of Mrs. Dickerson, according to the laws of that State.

Cannon Forgot $5,000 of Fund, Agent Testifies

Request for Cash Instead of Checks Related by Prober.

By Frank Getty.

A shrewd business man juggling bank accounts to obtain a few dollars' more interest, yet so careless with political funds that he "forgot all about" $5,000 which turned up in a Richmond safe deposit box after the 1928 Presidential campaign was over—such was the conflicting picture of Bishop James Cannon, jr., brought out yesterday at the trial of the bishop and Miss Ada Burroughs for conspiracy to violate the Federal corrupt practices act.

It was a Department of Justice agent, H. A. Oliver, who told on the witness stand of a statement by Cannon to the effect tha. in December, 1928, when he found himself "in somewhat of a hole" financially, he opened his safe deposit box in the American Bank & Trust Co., of Richmond, and found, to his surprise, an envelope containing $5,000 in cash.

It was the bishop himself, speaking out during the trial for the first time, who stressed his business acumen.

Sophie Tucker's Secret Divorce Is Disclosed

Chicago, April 12 (AP).—Sophie Tucker, singer, was disclosed today to have obtained a divorce here last September 25 from her third husband, Abe Lackerman, New York dress merchant.

She was granted the decree after a secret hearing before Judge Rudolph Desort on grounds of cruelty after testifying that Lackerman twice slapped her after she had refused to give him money.

Consolidated Returns by Corporations Are Forbidden.

Adds $96,000,000 To Levy Measure

Move to Quash Impost on Gross Income Dividends Loses.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Sharply increasing Federal estate and gift taxes and forbidding corporations to file consolidated returns, the Senate yesterday added approximately $96,000,000 to the estimated revenues of the pending tax bill, bringing its total yield for a full year up to about $481,000,000.

A move to strike out of existing law a provision permitting corporations to deduct from their gross income dividends received from other corporations was defeated by a margin of four votes. This action may be reconsidered before the tax bill is passed, possibly today.

The motions to abolish consolidated returns and to tax corporation income received from other corporations were aimed at holding companies, and inspired lengthy debate attacking evils of such corporate structures. Senator George W. Norris (Republican), Nebraska, charged that 95 out of every 100 holding companies were formed "for the purposes of deception"—either to avoid taxes or otherwise escape effect of laws.

Glass Falls in Line.

Even the usually conservative Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, joined in urging taxation of dividend income of corporations. He previously voted against abolishing consolidated returns, but said he did so with misgivings. He thought holding companies had sorely afflicted the banking world.

Chairman Pat Harrison, of the Finance Committee, in charge of the bill, however, strenuously objected to both proposals, contending particularly that the proposal to tax dividend income of corporations would be a serious blow to insurance companies. Although it was not mentioned in debate, the plan probably would fall more heavily on the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. than any other.

The Senate was nearing completion of the bill when it adjourned yesterday. The next fight will center on the La Follette proposal to make all income tax returns public records which may be inspected in their entirety by anyone. Action also must be taken on the Ashurst amendment to place an excise tax on copper imports—in effect, a copper tax—and the Clark proposal to tax income from securities now exempt.

It is possible the Senate will take a final vote on the tax bill late today unless too much time is consumed in extraneous discussions.

Mob "Kidnaps" Tax Officials

Discrimination Charged as Pennsylvanians Seize 2 Commissioners.

Pottsville, Pa., April 12 (AP).—A crowd of angry taxpayers, protesting their assessments had been raised while coal companies were not affected, battered through steel doors in the courthouse annex today, seized two county commissioners and hustled them to an indignation meeting.

Leaders charged that assessments were increased on private dwellings in some instances as high as 300 per cent.

A mass meeting was arranged and the commissioners were ordered to appear. They declined.

This infuriated the crowd, estimated at 1,000 persons. They invaded an anteroom in the annex and, using benches as battering rams, forced the locked doors of the offices of Commissioners Roy E. Brownmiller and William R. Adamson. The crowd rushed them to the meeting in a courtroom.

Peter Bavolac and Ray Burchill, clerks caught in the melee, were taken along. Bavolac was beaten and Burchill's glasses were broken.

City police had restored some semblance of order before they were reinforced by State police.

Shortly afterward, the commissioners unanimously decided to hold hearings on revision of assessments at public places throughout the township rather than with individuals in their office. The private meetings were termed "star chamber" sessions by the taxpayers.

Mail Contract Cancellation Quiz Approved

Senator Austin Charges Independent Air Lines Formed "Society."

Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), was authorized yesterday to investigate the cancellation of contracts between the Postoffice Department and private air lines.

The Vermont member of the Senate's special air-mail investigating committee, whose probing led up to the cancellation, announced he planned to summon all postal officials who participated in the air-mail negotiations.

Chairman Hugo L. Black, of Alabama, told Senator Austin to "go as far as you like" in bringing out facts about the cancellations.

The Republican's plans were announced as the Black committee continued its investigation of the general air-mail situation. William I. Denning, Washington attorney, who admitted Wednesday that he received $50 monthly from the Braniff Airways, of Oklahoma, for working to get contracts, testified again yesterday.

Says Small Lines Organized.

Senator Austin charged that Mr. Denning represented a group of independent air lines who wanted the Postoffice Department to cancel existing contracts with the larger companies and bring about a redistribution of the business.

Testimony before the Senate committee "proves beyond any question" that independent airlines organized a "society" last year to seek cancellation of domestic mail contracts, according to Austin.

"The testimony shows," Senator Austin said, "that cancellation was the sole objective of those independents who had no contracts, and that the Postoffice Department officials were pressed to take some action to gave them contracts.

"From Mr. Denning's correspondence with his employers, it is clear that a society of independent operators was formed and that he was the local representative.

Cancellation Aim.

"His duty was to contact members of the Postoffice Department staff and Senate and House committees in order to obtain passage of legislation favorable to his clients. The definite objective was cancellation.

"The independents asserted they could carry the mail cheaper than it was being carried. That was not a good cover for them. That barrage amounted to nothing. It was all blown away.

"As a matter of fact, Mr. Farley had the power and duty to reduce payments to a proper price. He did not do it. Instead, the Postoffice Department asked Congress for an increased appropriation.

"Mr. Denning's sole duty was to get contracts for his clients by cancellation. The testimony shows that he was making good progress. My contention that a society was organized for that purpose has been proved beyond any question."

The Vermont Republican said the new air-mail bill introduced by him and Senators W. Warren Barbour (Republican), New Jersey, and James J. Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, had "a solid bank of Republicans behind it."

Claims Wide Support.

"As far as I know," he said, "it's the only measure in the Senate at this time which is supported by a substantial block of Senators. I think it also will find some Democratic support. In my opinion this bill will save the situation."

Austin said the Roosevelt Administration "justified" the amount of contracts let under former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown by applying to Congress last year for an increase of $1,000,000 in air-mail appropriations.

Denning said one of the extensions he sought to have canceled was between St. Louis and New Orleans. "I don't think that anyone can contend that the extension was warranted," he said, "and I'll argue that before any legal tribunal."

After contracts were annulled, Mr. Denning said he received instructions from Braniff to attend all committee hearings on proposed new air-mail legislation and "to continue to maintain contact" with postal authorities.

Returning to a discussion of Brown's policies, Senator Austin said "every one recognized" that under the McNary-Watres air-mail act the Postmaster General had authority to grant extensions.

"I don't know about that," Denning said. "The first section of the act required that all awards should be made to the lowest responsible bidders. You certainly can't legally make extensions which turn out to be longer than the existing routes."

Denies Advance Tip.

Denning reiterated he had not sought cancellation of all contracts, but merely those which were considered to be illegal because let by extension rather than competitive bidding. This, he said, was supported by an opinion of the Comptroller General.

He said he placed his claim before the Postoffice Department before the wholesale cancellation, but denied emphatically he had any advance information on Postmaster General Farley's action.

Denning, in a telegram to Braniff, February 12, 1934, said he had contacted the department "about temporary service."

The telegram added the belief prevailed that the law did not authorize such service, but that the matter was "being considered."

Another communication from Denning to Braniff said that after passage of temporary air-mail legislation, then being considered, Harlee Branch, Second Assistant Postmaster General in charge of air mail, would "call the independents to Washington."

Bill Not Passed.

Denning explained he understood all qualified aviation companies would be called. The bill then under consideration provided for temporary service by the Army Air Corps, supplemented by private lines. It did not become a law.

Austin, after asking whether there was a "set-up in the Postoffice Department highly favorable to Braniff," questioned Denning about antecedents of various Postoffice officials.

Denning agreed that Karl Crowley, Postoffice solicitor, came from Texas, and that Stephen Cisler, air-mail superintendent, was situated in Fort Worth for two or three years, but said he knew nothing of Silliman Evans, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, or Eugene Vidal, director of aeronautics of the Department of Commerce.

Classes Being Held in 30 Schools Built More Than Half Century Ago

Built during the Civil War, the Wallach School, Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, is still being used because of shortage of schools in Washington.

Renovation Insufficient to Make Buildings Meet Needs.

This is the fourth of a series of eight articles on Washington schools.

By Felix Bruner.

Back in the days when Abraham Lincoln was living in the White House and Washington was full of soldiers and war workers, builders were just putting the finishing touches on a new schoolhouse. It was named the Wallach School and was put into immediate use to take care of a surplus of pupils that existed even then. The building, at Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, still is in use for school purposes.

Almost as old is the Anthony Bowen School, renamed Rossell School in 1927, and still in use. It was erected in 1867. Other old buildings still in use for actual classroom purposes include Stevens School, erected in 1868; Lincoln School, Seaton School, and Sumner Schools, all erected in 1871; Cranch, Jefferson and Lovejoy, all built in 1872. In all, Washington has 30 school buildings in actual use for school purposes that are between 50 and 70 years old.

One Built in 1869.

These buildings, of course, have repeatedly been remodeled and additions have been erected in some instances, but nearly all of them are outdated for modern school purposes and some of those still in use were recommended for abandonment as long as 25 years ago. Among those recommended for abandonment in 1908 and still in use are Lincoln School, Jefferson Junior High School and Webster School. Abbott School also was in this list and it was abandoned for school purposes in 1931, and is now being used for a cabinet shop. Among the oldest buildings also is the Franklin School Building, erected in 1869, and now used as the school administration building.

Crowded condition of the schools has made necessary the use of numerous rooms for class purposes that were not intended for that purpose.

Classes in Halls.

Following is a description of some of these conditions:

Shepherd School—A teachers' room is used for a regular class.

Truesdale School—Two rooms have had to be combined for kindergarten use and a janitor's room is being used for a first-grade class. The janitor's room is in the old part of the building, adjacent to a heating plant.

Bunker Hill School—This school consists of two regular classrooms and a comparative large entrance hall. The hall is being used for a kindergarten.

Burroughs School—Two small rooms intended for coaching small groups of children have been pressed into service as regular classrooms. The domestic art room also is being used for regular class purposes.

Emery School—One domestic science room is being used for a regular class.

Polk School—A basement room is being used for manual training.

Benning School—The girls' playroom is being used for manual training. Seventh and eighth grade pupils, who would normally attend junior high school, are accommodated in this building.

Heated by Stoves.

Van Buren Annex—The condition of this structure prompted the construction of the present Van Buren Building. The annex is heated by separate stoves in the classrooms and is considered unfit for school use. School authorities say the use of this building can be discontinued only when the Anacostia Junior High School is opened, so that seventh and eighth grade pupils in the Ketcham and Van Buren Schools can be accommodated in that junior high school.

Stevens School—A corridor is being used for a domestic art class.

In none of these instances is there any appropriation to relieve the conditions existing nor any indication that they can be relieved in the near future. Meanwhile, school enrollment is increasing each year, making necessary more makeshift arrangements to care for the additional pupils.

Many Oversize Classes.

In addition to crowded conditions making necessary the use of makeshift arrangements to care for some of the classes, they also have resulted in oversize classes and in some instances in the establishment of part-time classes. General school practice and the rules of the Board of Education call for no more than 40 pupils to a teacher. A detailed study made by school authorities indicates that 33 per cent of all classes in Washington contain more than 40 pupils. The number of such oversize classes now is higher than in 1930 and in 1925, indicating that school facilities are not keeping pace with growing enrollments.

This situation applies in all school districts. Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, estimates that at least 58 additional classrooms are needed to take care of excess pupils now enrolled in the schools. This does not take into account any future expansion. Yet there is not one cent available at this time to relieve this condition, and, of course, nothing available to take care of additional pupils in the future.

Sixteen Portable Buildings.

Part-time elementary classes have been established at Thomson, Douglass-Simmons, Birney and Lovejoy Schools, with no prospects that the situation can be eliminated. Two part-time classes at Langdon School were eliminated when the junior high school pupils were transferred to Taft Junior High School last December. An appropriation for the erection of an eight-room building in the vicinity of the Logan School was carried in the 1934 appropriations bill. This building, when occupied, will eliminate five part-time classes at Logan School.

Sixteen portable school buildings still are in use in the Washington system. The school authorities have made rapid progress in the elimination of use of these undesirable structures in the past few years; but there is little indication that much more progress can be made until funds are available for erection of more permanent buildings. In 1920 there were a total of 78 portable school buildings in use in the District. In 1932 there were 25, as compared with the present total of 16. Of the portable buildings, 12 are used by elementary schools. Armstrong is the only high school where classes use such buildings, 4 being in use there.

Elementary schools still using portable buildings are Fillmore, Keene, Ketcham, Garrison, Bates Road and Cleveland.

The next article will discuss the vocational school problem.

House to Sift Grain Bill 'Plot' In Prosecution

Action Against Cutten Held Timed to Rout Control Foes.

Investigation into reports that Agriculture Department officials timed their prosecution of Arthur W. Cutten, noted Chicago grain dealer, to discredit opposition to the commodity market control bill will be started today by the House Agriculture Committee.

The committee is expected to call Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, chief of the grain futures division of the department. He may charge, it was said, that accusations against Cutten were held up during the last Administration.

The charge that the accusations were deliberately timed was made by Robert P. Boylan, executive vice president of the Chicago Board of Trade, in testifying before the House committee.

He pointed out that the alleged irregularities charged against Cutten occurred in 1930 and 1931, but that prosecution was not started until the grain exchange bill came up for consideration. Chairman Marvin Jones (Democrat), Texas, denied there was any connection between the two events.

Charges Called Old.

The Cutten story was given directly to the press without notice of any kind to the Chicago Board of Trade, Boylan said.

"I am not going to try to discuss with you whether there is any foundation for these charges," he said. "This would be improper in view of the fact that a hearing is to be held on this matter on May 14. What I do want to point out, as is apparent from the face of the complaint, the supposed acts complained of took place in 1930 and 1931, three years ago. The complaint is based on information which, if you give the Grain Future Administration the benefit of every doubt, must have come into its hands many months, perhaps two or three years, ago. The business conduct committee was not informed or advised in any way of such information or suspicions, and was given no opportunity to invoke its disciplinary powers or to cooperate in any way."

Seth Thomas, solicitor of the Department of Agriculture, said the case against Cutten was completed only last week.

Jones used the Cutten accusations as a basis for spirited questioning of Charles V. Essroger, treasurer of the Chicago Board of Trade, and vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago. Jones told Essroger that Cutten was reported to have been short 30,000,000 bushels of grain at one time. Essroger said he was not familiar with the case.

Questioned by Jones.

"If Board of Trade officers permit the selling of such tremendous short holdings and like practices and don't know about them, they certainly are not, in my opinion, in much of a position to do their own self-governing very properly, are they?" Jones asked.

"I would answer 'no' to that," Essroger said.

Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, testifying before the committee, asked that no legislation be enacted and that time be given to permit operation of the code governing commodity markets. He said this was the consensus of the membership of his organization, expressed in a referendum.

"The code not only imposes standards of fair competition and places immediate administration of its provisions in the hands of a special code authority so chosen that its representative character can be assured, but it gives powers of supervision to the Secretary of Agriculture," Harriman said.

"The code provides self-government for grain exchanges taken together, whereas self-regulation heretofore has lain with each exchange itself. This means that the grain trade as a whole can deal with conditions in any part of the trade."

Wide Authority Is Voted for Reserve Board to Fix Limit.

fused to make any changes in this section, covering registration of securities and reports of corporations, although a new paragraph was agreed to specifying there be no interference "in the management and affairs of an issuer."

Follow Senate Lead.

Action of the House sub-committee in modifying marginal provisions of the bill was in line with alterations voted Wednesday by the Senate Banking Committee, giving the proposed new Federal Securities Exchange Commission broad authority over margins, except as affecting Reserve member banks.

To date, the essential difference in the bills prepared by House and Senate committees consists in the House sub-committee's insistence that the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Reserve Board administer the act.

The Senate has vested this power in an independent agency, the proposed Federal Securities Exchange Commission.

Both House and Senate Committees are nearing completion of their bills, with many additional changes probable before the draft of either reaches floor consideration.

Today an effort will be made in the Senate sub-committee to rewrite the controversial proxies section of the bill, so as to give the new securities agency power to draft necessary regulation.

Reconsideration of the Senate committees action in striking out section 2 of the bill, carrying the so-called "stump speech" and statement of purpose, also is probable.

Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, is reported to have redrafted the section, believed to be the constitutional savings clause of the bill, in language less objectionable to committee members.

Yesterday's action of the House Interstate Commerce sub-committee on margins represented concessions between two extreme viewpoints represented on the sub-committee.

Compared with original 60 per cent inflexible margin requirement in the revised bill, it was regarded as broadly liberal. Minority members of the committee, however, had contended that no figure should be specified. The gap was bridged by suggesting that stocks be given a loan value of 55 per cent of their market price, but making that figure in no way binding on the Federal Reserve Board in adjusting margins up or down.

Draft of Section.

The subcommittee was under instructions from the full committee to bring back "a statutory formula for fixing margins."

The tentative draft of the rewritten section provides:

"Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection A of this section, the Federal Reserve Board may with respect to all or specified classes of securities or transactions and for specified periods of time by rules and regulations, (1) prescribe such lower margin requirements as it deems necessary or appropriate for the accommodation of commerce and industry having due regard to the general credit situation of the country and the standards provided in subsection A of this section, and (2) prescribe such higher margin requirements as it may deem necessary or appropriate to prevent the excesive use of credit to finance speculative transactions and securities."

Oil Man's Dream City Is Sold At Auction for $1,775,000

Rawlins, Wyo., April 12 (AP).—The town of Parco, Wyo., with its attractive stucco dwellings, handsome business buildings, modern hotel, paved streets and fine lawns, was purchased today by the Consolidated Oil Co.—all for $1,775,000.

The town was bid in at an auction ordered by the Federal district court to satisfy creditors' claims against the Producers & Refiners Co., now in receivership.

Other Carbon County properties of the company, consisting of pipe lines and a refinery at Parco, were purchased by the Consolidated for $1,151,223.

Parco, which takes its name from the company which brought it into existence to house its oil field and refinery workers, was the dream of Frank E. Kistler, Denver oil man, who organized the Producers & Refiners Co.

He founded the little city near Rawlins. While the oil industry boomed, Parco was a hustling community. The oil industry slackened pace, and so did Parco. The five-story hotel has been nearly deserted for several years. Lately only a skeleton crew has worked the refinery and oil wells.

Sears, Roebuck Tire Prices Hit By Rival Firms

Trade Commission Told Goodyear Is Favoring Big Company.

(Associated Press.)

Further testimony that Sears, Roebuck & Co. competition damaged independent tire dealers was presented yesterday in the hearing on the Federal Trade Commission's citation of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. for alleged violation of the antitrust laws.

The tire company is accused of price discrimination in favor of Sears, Roebuck.

E. E. Drew, Chattanooga dealer, handling another manufacturer's line, testified that his sales volume fell from $64,000 in 1927 to $30,000 in 1933 and attributed 25 per cent of the decline to Sears, Roebuck competition.

Continuation of Sears, Roebuck tire sales, he said, would "put us out of business."

Counsel for Goodyear sought to show that price wars figured in the decline of dollar volume and said Sears, Roebuck's unit sales in Chattanooga fell from more than $21,000 in 1928 to about $4,000 in 1933.

Leroy Mazzulo, Washington dealer, said he had been told Goodyear was making tires for Sears, Roebuck on a cost plus basis. This was the first time during the hearing that Trade Commission attorneys had asked about the working contract.

Celluloid Smoke Kills 3 Shoe Plant Workers

St. Louis, April 12 (AP).—Smoke fumes from burning celluloid caused the death of three employes last night following a fire in the Brown Shoe Company building, city hospital physicians said today. The dead are Fred Pointer, 37, Albert F. Deitsch, 55, and Miss Minnie Schultz, 42.

About 300 employes were endangered by the fire, but left the building safely.

Usury Hearing Today Before Senate Group

Reynolds Sub-committee to Hea Complaints of Loan Victims.

Hearing on the King usury bill will be continued by the District Senate sub-committee headed by Senator Robert Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, at 2:30 p. m. today.

The hearing will be held in the committee room in the Capitol and is expected to be attended by a number of persons who have complaints against lenders who have, they say, charged them too much for loans and treated them harshly in collecting their due.

Representatives of several small loan companies are expected to continue efforts to have the bill amended, so as to provide for a change in the law governing small loan companies. As the bill was introduced by Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, committee chairman, it dealt only with the existing usury law. The small loan companies, represented at the last hearing by William W. Bride, former corporation counsel of the District, urged the measure should amend the small loans law as well as the usury law to be consistent.

A hearing on the pending old age pension laws for the District has been called by Senator Reynolds, sub-committee chairman, for 10 a. m. Tuesday morning. That hearing also is to be held in the committee room in the Capitol.

There are pending before the committee pension measures introduced by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, ranking minority member, and Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York. Both measures have the same purpose, but differ in administrative provisions and age limits. Senator Caper said that the differences were not sufficiently serious to forestall agreement on a measure which he predicted would be reported out of the committee room.

Some members of the committee feel that the pension measure should be delayed until the population of the National Capital becomes more fixed. They believe that too many "floaters" would claim Washington as their home in order to take advantage of a pension law under present conditions.

Haitian Ruler Coming to Ask Money Control

President Vincent Here Next Week to Confer With Roosevelt.

By Kendall Foss.

Marines will be on hand to welcome President Stenio Vincent of Haiti when he arrives at Union Station next Monday afternoon.

Vincent is to spend three days in Washington, primarily to confer with President Roosevelt on the question of the financial control of Haiti. The control now is exercised by an American adviser, nominated by the United States and appointed by Haiti. Vincent is anxious to have full control restored to his government.

Full honors will be rendered the visiting President. He will be greeted at the station by Secretary of State Hull and leading members of his staff, as well as by other high Government officials. The marines will form two lines from the platform to the entrance to the station, where a troop of Cavalry will be drawn up. A band will render the two National anthems.

Vincent will spend practically all day Tuesday at the White House, arriving at 10:30 a. m., conferring, attending a luncheon given in his honor by President Roosevelt, and conferring again until 6 p. m.

May Ask Protection.

While no announcement on the nature of the conferences has been made, it is generally understood the main topic will be the control of Haitian finances.

Reports are current, however, that Vincent also intends to ask President Roosevelt to keep the marines in Haiti beyond next October, the time limit set in the agreement of last August.

These reports are without confirmation and State Department officials declare they have no information substantiating them. It will be recalled Vincent was elected to the Presidency in 1930 on the slogan the marines were keeping his predecessor in office.

Such a request by Vincent being first cousin to political suicide, it is possible the reports are inspired by opposition groups perhaps not unwilling to see the Nationalist President discredited.

At the same time, this Administration is determined to withdraw the troops on schedule. The policy right along has been to cut down on responsibilities in Latin America and the gesture is too good a substantiation of the "good neighbor" policy to be overlooked.

Asks End of Control.

President Vincent wrote President Roosevelt last December suggesting abolition of the "useless control" over Haitian finances and pointing to Haiti's good record in meeting its international obligations.

Roosevelt replied he could not in fairness to the holders of Haitian bonds undertake to modify the terms of the treaty. These bonds were sold upon the United States undertaking to supervise the collection of Haitian revenues and to see to it that payments were made promptly. At the present rate of amortization the bonds will be liquidated in 1944 and the financial control automatically will cease.

Roosevelt, although declining to modify the agreement, offered his good offices in helping Haiti obtain a refunding of its obligations to eliminate the control clause providing such aid did not involve the United States in further responsibilities.

Vincent has spent two weeks in New York, presumably discussing with interested bankers the possibility of such a refunding operation. Reports from New York speak discouragingly of his success. Following his conferences with President Roosevelt it may be possible to determine the degree of success Vincent has attained.

Primarily the desire for financial autonomy is a matter of national pride. Although Haitian finances were in a very sad mess in 1915 when the United States intervened and arranged for consolidation of the various foreign loans into one, they have since that time been scrupulously and carefully managed. Possibly the existence of financial control had something to do with this.

Stands of Two Nations.

Haitians stand on their post-1915 record in claiming the right to manage their own finances; this Government maintains the treaty signed then and modified several times since, must be kept intact until the debt is wiped out. Must be kept intact, that is, unless the bondholders consent to a refunding operation, in which case the United States would be only too glad to give up its responsibilities.

In addition to his lengthy conferences in the White House, Vincent plans to lay a wreath on the grave of the Unknown Soldier, visit the Pan-American Union, motor to Mount Vernon, and attend a number of social functions in his honor.

Besides the White House luncheon, Vincent will be entertained by Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles, the governing board of the Pan-American Union, with Secretary of State Hull presiding; James Clement Dunn, special assistant to Secretary Hull, and the Haitian Minister, Mr. Albert Blanchet.

He will be escorted from New York by Minister Blanchet, the Haitian Minister of Finances, Lucien Hibbert, and Norman Armour, the American Minister to Haiti. He returns to New York on the midnight train Wednesday to sail for home the following day.

Guns in Silk Stockings Found on Jail Grounds

Folsom Prison, Calif., April 12 (AP). Two pistols, loaded clips and a box of cartridges were reported today by Warden Court Smith to have been found wrapped in women's silk stockings within the prison reservation.

The weapons were found Tuesday afternoon by Guard Lieut. W. J. Ryan. The discovery was kept secret until today to give officials of the State bureau of identification a chance to search for fingerprints. None was found.

President Ready to Accept Securities Act Modification

try as to what is required to further recovery and to get men back at work.

"On March 26 we sent you a letter, asking your immediate attention and action in connection with the securities exchange act of 1934. That letter pointed out the dangers to industry and recovery of this proposed legislation. Industry, large and small, from all parts of the country, awakened to the far-reaching effect of this bill, made known its viewpoint to Congress. Your committee now believes that Congress understands:

"(1) That industry and stock speculation are not one and the same thing.

"(2) That industry is not opposed to constructive rules for regulating securities exchanges.

"(3) That industry is opposed to the provisions of this bill that go entirely beyond the purpose of exchange regulation and reasonable protection of the investor.

"(4) That industry is opposed to attempts to place corporations and their officers and directors under additional governmental control and under unfair liabilities and penalties.

"Congress has not yet amnded this bill (H. R. 8720) so as to meet industry's objections, but is now giving careful consideration to them.

"The purpose of this letter, however, is to bring to your attention at this time the necessity for immediate action to secure at this session of Congress a revision of the securities act of 1933.

Three Major Channels.

"The extent of recovery is measured by the number of men back at work on normal and productive jobs. In the durable goods industries, it is estimated there are about 5,000,000 unemployed. The requirements for even partial recovery in these industries are:

"(1) The restoration of confidence in the Government's future policies.

"(2) The opening up of channels for the free flow of private savings into normal investments.

"(3) The breaking open of the frozen mortgage situation and the creation of new forms of real estate financing.

"Your committee intends to express the viewpoint of industry on these points. But the current legislative program in Congress requires advance action in reference to item (2).

"The securities exchange act of 1934 has threatened a serious interference to recovery. But the securities act of 1933, which was enacted almost a year ago, has definitely interfered with the free flow of private savings into industrial enterprise. With every month that passes, it is becoming increasingly evident that in the worthy attempt to protect the average investor against the occasional fraudulent issuer and unfair manipulative practice, the great majority of honest American business men and bankers have had imposed upon them such impossible liabilities and penalties that few prudent men are willing to risk the issuance or sale of securities. The result is the almost complete stoppage of the flow of private savings into normal investment channels.

Savings Being Drained.

"Few people outside of industry realize just what has actually happened. In the ten years prior to 1930, the volume of new capital moving into enterprise in the United States was about four billion dollars per year. In 1933, this had been reduced to $160,000,000, or about 4 per cent of this annual average. Moreover, the current accumulation of savings in the country are being drained into a new channel as indicated in the following:

"(1) Since 1930 a constantly increasing proportion of the National income and of National savings have been distributed or spent through governmental channels.

"(2) In the past four years the Federal Government alone, through the increase in the debt outstanding has absorbed about twice as much of the new private savings and bank credit of the Nation available for investment, as have been absorbed by all private industry and business.

"(3) In 1933 about a third of the total National income produced was taken and distributed in Governmental channels, including Federal and all other Governmental agencies.

"(4) In 1934 it is estimated that about 40 per cent of the total National income produced will be used in this way.

"When these factors are studied in connection with the many legislative emergency measures of the past year, the conclusion is clear that, perhaps without conscious intent, we are gradually enforcing the nationalization of productive wealth.

Obscured by Haste.

"Increasing amounts of Government money in productive enterprises must inevitably result in an increasing degree of direction, regulation, control and operation by Federal agencies. In our desperate need and haste to stop the depression, we have failed to clearly realize this fact.

"We believe we express the viewpoint of all industry when we point out the necessity of turning this great river of private savings back into private business and then gradually relieve the Government of the burden it has assumed.

"A revision of the securities act of 1933 by the present Congress would go a long way toward accomplishing this purpose with the resultant stimulation of the durable goods industries and the opening up of many new opportunities for employment of men now being supported by direct Governmental relief or artificial work created by Government expenditures."

Germans to Attempt Himalayas Peak Climb

Munich, Germany, April 12 (AP).—In the hope of pinning German colors to the first conquest of Mount Naga Parbat, 26,629-foot peak in the lonely Himalayas, a main group of seven German mountaineers left Munich today.

The first effort to conquer Naga Parbat was made in 1895 by A. F. Mummery, an Englishman, who lost his life. An expedition, including Elbridge Rand Herron, of New York, and Miss Elizabeth Knowlton, of Boston, was forced to turn back in 1932 with success almost within their grasp.

Lester, Topping Meet For Mason-Dixon Title

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 12 (AP).—Robert Lester, of West Orange, N. J., and Daniel R. Topping, of Greenwich, Conn., will be the finalists tomorrow in the 1934 Mason and Dixon golf championship.

Taking advantage of his opponent's disastrous second shots today, Lester, one of the low handicapped golfers in the metropolitan district, overhauled Robert A. Stranahan, of Toledo, Ohio, 5 and 4, and Topping scored a one-sided victory over Arthur Lynch, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., the comedalist, 7 and 6.

walked away. After Phillips got in the car with Davis, Caton walked toward the running board.

As he called to the pair to surrender, the man believed to be Davis slid from his seat with a machinegun, while Phillips seized an automatic.

"Get away, boy, I'm going to plug you," he cried at Caton.

When the gun was half out of Phillip's pocket, Caton fired twice, and Phillips fell to the street, while Davis trained a machine gun. It jammed, and Davis ran to an alleyway, where he tried once more to fire before he fled.

Scout cars responded to the alrm, and the Department of Justice agents rushed to the scene at the sound of shooting.

Building Is Searched.

The agents and police placed a cordon of guards around the buildings, and, using skeleton keys, searched various flats in hope of finding the gunmen's hideout.

Later the Department of Justice, in announcing it had located the apartment from which the former convicts operated, said it was occupied also by seevral women.

Phillips died on the way to Emergency Hospital. He carried $475 and several pictures of a girl. A note from a girl addressed Phillips as her "Yankee."

At the Morgue attendants discovered Phillips' body was completely tatooed. On one leg was the inscription, "Live hard, fight hard, die hard."

Caton described the shooting as follows:

"I saw three suspicious looking men at the corner. I knew, somehow, they weren't on the up-and-up.

"They huddled together and they talked, and then one went up Adams Mill road, while the other two kept coming toward me and the car I was watching.

"'These are the guys,' said I to myself.

Didn't Notice Officer.

"I started toward them. I don't think they saw me until I was just about 20 feet away. Then the one next to the driver slid out of the car, quick as an eel. He had something under his arm. The other got out on the other side of the car. When he reached for his pocket, I let him have it. I shot him twice.

"He fell to his knees, and the other took a submachine gun from under his coat, levelling it at me. He pulled the trigger, but it jammed, and that saved my life.

"The fellow with the machine gun raced down the alley. His gun still was jammed, and he escaped, taking it with him."

The automobile in which the pair was trapped was stolen from Leo P. Darr, of 4910 Kansas avenue, March 26, at Thirteenth and Monroe streets.

In Phillips' pockets was an identification card belonging to the Rev. Samuel Carroll Coale, of the 5000 block of Eighth street northwest, pastor of the Brightwood Methodist Church. The Rev. Coale's car was stolen last Tuesday.

Hostile Soviet Paper Barred in Germany

Berlin, April 12 (AP).—The important Soviet newspaper, Pravda, today was barred from Germany until further notice as the climax of reproaches from the German side that the Russian press has been increasingly mostile toward Nazi Germany.

No reason was given for the action, but it was thought to have been motivated by resentment here toward articles written by Georgi Dimitroff, a defendant in the Reichstag Building fire and now a Russian citizen.

Quiz Finds Scottsboro Prisoners Well Treated

Birmingham, Ala., April 12 (AP).—A Jefferson County grand jury today reported the seven colored defendants in the "Scottsboro case" confined in the jail here were "given the same food and accorded better treatment than other prisoners at the jail because of widespread publicity given these Negroes."

The grand jury had investigated the treatment of the men at the request of Sheriff J. F. Hawkins to whom Samuel S. Leibowitz, of New York, chief of counsel for the Negroes, had protested last week that they were ill treated and not sufficiently fed.

High Tariffs Destroying Trade, Bankhead Says

The Senator indorsed legislation now before Congress to give the President power to make reciprocal trade agreements and to revise tariffs downward.

Senate Votes Estate, Gift Tax Increases

desire to take a recess over the week-end is expected to be an important factor in speeding action today.

The amendment increasing Federal estate taxes, sponsored by Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, was approved by a vote of 65 to 14. The amendment provided for a set of estate taxes ranging from 1 per cent on net estates up to $20,000, to a tax of 60 per cent on estates in excess of $10,000,000. Gross estates up to $40,000 would be exempt from the tax.

LaFollette estimated these rates would produce $92,000,000 a year additional for the Treasury over existing estate rates which end with a maximum levy of 45 per cent on estates in excess of $10,000,000. The Finance Committee had recommended a set of rates which reached a maximum of 50 per cent on estates in excess of $10,000,000. The committee's proposal would have added only $7,000,000 to the Treasury.

House Support Forecast.

Although House leaders said they were not enthusiastic about the Senate's action in voting the higher estate taxes, it was believed that they would accept the change in view of the overwhelming Senate vote. The proposal was supported by 45 Democrats, 19 Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite.

Only four Democrats voted against the amendment—Bailey of North Carolina, Byrd of Virginia, Copeland of New York, and Thomas of Utah. The 10 Republicans opposing the increased levy were Barbour and Kean, New Jersey; Fess, Ohio; Goldsborough, Maryland; Hastings and Townsend, Delaware; Hebert and Metcalf, Rhode Island; Hatfield, West Virginia, and Keyes, New Hampshire.

On adoption of the higher estate taxes, the Senate viva voce adopted an amendment by Senator LaFollette to boost in proportion the Federal gift taxes. As in the existing law, the gift rates are three-fourths to the estate tax rates. It was estimated $4,000,000 would be raised by the added gift taxes.

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, proposed both the amendment to abolish consolidated returns and to tax dividend incomes of corporations. His first proposal was adopted by a vote of 40 to 37, after Senator Hastings (Republican), Delaware, switched from "no" to "yea" in order to be able to move reconsideration of the vote. Therefore, the real division was 39 to 38—a margin so close that it might be overturned when some of the absentees of yesterday vote.

The move to abolish consolidated returns was supported by 25 Democrats, 14 Republicans (including Hastins) and 1 Farmer-Laborite. It was opposed by 22 Democrats and 15 Republicans.

Under the present law, consolidated returns may be filed by corporations affiliated through 95 per cent stock ownership, subject to a 1 per cent penalty tax. The bill as it passed the House and was reported by the Finance Committee increased this penalty tax to 2 per cent, which it was estimated would add $20,000,000 annually to the Treasury.

No More Total Gain.

Senator Borah contended that the Treasury stood to gain an additional $150,000,000 annually by abolishing consolidated returns. But in this estimate, he was apparently in error. L. H. Parker, chief expert of the Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue, said he did not think any more would be gained by abolishing consolidated returns than by penalizing them at 2 per cent additional.

The House Ways and Means Committee, pointing out that in 1931, 46.7 per cent of corporate gross income reported was in the form of consolidated returns, originally decided to abolish the latter, but was dissuaded by the Treasury, which proposed doubling the penalty tax. The committee at that time reported that "the Treasury estimates that under present conditions this plan will bring in more revenue than the abolition of the consolidated return."

Under existing law a corporation, in computing its net income for taxation purposes, is permitted to deduct from gross income sums received in the form of dividends from other corporations. Senator Borah proposed to strike this out. Since it would mean double taxation of corporation dividend-income, the additional revenue would be large, although no estimate was given for it.

The Borah proposal in this respect, however, was rejected by a vote of 34 to 38. Senator Borah changed his vote from "yea" to "no" in order to move reconsideration, so the official result was 33 to 39. Twenty Democrats, 12 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Laborite voted for the amendment, which was opposed by 23 Democrats and 16 Republicans (including Borah).

The Senate also adopted an amendment by Senator Shipstead, (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, exempting from the excise tax on furs articles selling for less than $75.

Schweitzer to Turn Mat Pro Next Month

Kelly has just signed an agreement with Schweitzer at Morgantown, where the latter is completing a law course at the university, and he will make his debut in Fairmont under Kelly's management. Schweitzer was captain of the Mountaineer football squad in 1932 and captain of its wrestling team in 1933. His home is at Huntington.

Wirt Denies Ickes Charge That He Sought PWA Loan

could get $2,000,000 of United States money for a merry-go-round and an observation tower they gave an option to a man for 2,000 feet at $50 a foot.

"I do not know what the good old Doc paid for the sand, but he was willing to sell it for $50 a foot. It was reported to me that his company controlled a good deal of the surrounding area. If they could get $2,000,000 of communistic money for their individualistic enterprse, it would enhance the value of the rest of the property, but the project didn't go through.

"It just didn't seem to be meritorious. But when you take subsistence homesteads where people who need them might get decent homes, that is communistic. But give us some roller coasters and a merry-go-round and make a fat profit, and that is American."

Ickes said the project was submitted to the Government in December, 1933, and that officials of Porter County had applied for the loan. He said Wirt had been at PWA several times to note the progress of the project. Ickes added that the project had been rejected by the Indiana PWA advisory board, but that it was forwarded to Washington notwithstanding.

Commenting on the dinner party at which Wirt testified a project to overthrow the social order was discussed, Ickes said that Miss Alice Barrows, hostess at the dinner, "is an estimable lady.

"It is too bad," he said, "that a guest and an old friend should cause her so much publicity, especially when you consider that Wirt requested that one of the guests in particular be invited."

Ickes said the guest referred to was David C. Coyle, a member of the PWA technical board of review.

Deaf Mute Guests Best.

"I guess the only kind of guests to invite to a dinner where Wirt is present would be a person who is deaf and dumb," Ickes concluded.

Wirt said that he was president of Dune Acres, Inc., and that his company had owned property along Lake Michigan for 11 years. He said the company was a non-profit making concern and that it was seeking to maintain a part of the lake front for residential purposes and to keep industry from marring its scenic beauty.

"There were some people interested in the west end of the property for the amusement project," Wirt said. "We thought this project would help give employment, although we were not interested in the amusement park idea. I never did know what the detailed plan was. We gave these people an option at the cost of the land to us, plus carrying charges for the 11 years we had owned it.

"I never at any time asked the Government for a cent of money for anything. I had never heard of the park project when I attended the dinner at the home of Miss Barrows. That was in September. The option, which ran for 60 days, was given in December."

Wirt said the Porter County commissioners were interested in the park plan and that they made application for Government funds. He said he had asked that Coyle be invited to the Barrows dinner, but that he had no idea that Coyle would be connected with any such thing as the park proposal which came up three months later.

Coyle's board is the organization which passes on such projects. Wirt said he had wished to talk with Coyle about the Government's theories in spending public works money.

Reads Letter to Bulwinkle.

The letter from Reed demanding that Bulwinkle apologize for having said Wirt was jailed during the war said:

"On yesterday afternoon on the floor of the House of Representatives you made the following statement in referring to Dr. Wirt:

"'He is not here to be investigated. If he had been I would have gone into his private character. If he had been being investigated I would have brought out from him the fact that during the war, on account of his pro-German activities, he was confined in the jail at Gary, Ind. I did not bring any of that before the committee.'

"The statement you made was published extensively in the press of the country. It is without the slightest foundation of fact, which you could easily have learned by a simple inquiry from Dr. Wirt himself, who was in the city at the Mayflower Hotel, or you could have learned it from me, or you could have learned it by a simple inquiry at the Department of Justice.

"You did none of these things. You could have easily learned before making this charge against a man of unblemished character and reputation that during the entire period of the war, he was at the head of the Gary schools every day of the war except the time he spent as a consultant with Mayor Mitchel of New York. You could also have learned that he patriotically supported our Government in its conflict with Germany.

"Moreover, when Representative McGugin stated on the floor that your charge was false and that he had communicated with me and with Dr. Wirt, you did not then take the floor and retract what you had said, or even admit that you might have been mistaken. You allowed your charge to stand.

"You have done Dr. Wirt an irremediable wrong and an incalculable injury. One thing you can still do, which will in some degree mitigate the injury. You can upon the floor of the House retract every reflection you have made upon Dr. Wirt, and you can apologize to him and to the House for your statement.

"Representing Dr. Wirt, I am asking you to do so, and to do so today."

Record Was Changed Later.

Bulwinkle's statement in the original stenographic version was as Reed quoted it. In the Congressional Record, however, the last sentence was changed to read, "If he had been, I would have brought out from him the fact that during the war, whether or not on account of his pro-German activities, he was confined in the jail at Gary, Ind."

Reed said he expected to stay in Washington and to appear at the committee hearing next Tuesday, when the six persons who attended the dinner with Wirt will be witnesses. He said he did not know whether he would be permitted to appear officially, but that he would be present. Wirt said he might return to Gary today. He would not say whether he expected to attend the hearing.

Wires Barred From Record.

McGugin was repeatedly blocked in his attempts to get the telegrams into the record. Representatives Blanton (Democrat), Texas, and Schulte (Democrat), Indiana, led the opposition.

After several unsuccessful attempts to read the telegrams, McGugin said: "Then I'll have to go over to the Senate to get them in." He left the House carrying the telegrams with him.

"I have been Dr. Wirt's personal attorney for 27 years," Hodges telegraphed. "I was Mayor of Gary during the World War. Dr. Wirt was neither imprisoned nor interned in Gary jail during the war for pro-Germanism or any other cause. His Americanism has never been questioned by anyone here. He is regarded as an outstanding educational and intellectual leader throughout Indiana and the Nation, as well as in our community."

Norton telegraphed:

"The charge made on the floor of the House yesterday that Dr. Wirt because of pro-German tendencies during the war was interned or even uunder suspicion is entirely unfounded and unjust. As Gary member of the Lake County Council for National Defense during the war I have full knowledge of any charge made during those trying days against residents of the county, more especially of Gary, of suspected disloyalty. Dr. Wirt took an active part in every patriotic endeavor during the war."

Railroad Fight Looms on Rate To Passengers

Half-Cent Differential Is Basis of Controversy in Southeast.

(Associated Press.)

A battle between railroads in the Southeast over rates to be charged for carrying coach passengers appeared imminent yesterday when it became known here that a group of railroads planned to file with the Interstate Commerce Commission a petition for a 2-cents-a-mile charge.

The Southern Railway filed an application for permission to continue after May 31 its charge of 1½ cents per mile for coach passengers throughout its system.

The 2-cent group, headed by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co., is carrying out a tentative agreement with bus line operators made in New Orleans two weegs ago. The Southern bolted this conference, notifying the conferees that it would insist on continuing the 1½-cent rate on coaches.

The bus operators proposed that the railroads raise their rates from 1½ cents to 2 cents and agreed to amend their code to abolish certain practices which have been instrumental in taking much traffic from the railroads.

The Southern, first railroad to experiment with the low passenger rates in an effort to regain traffic lost to buses, showed in its most recent report an increase of 105 per cent in passenger travel. In its application, the Southern also stated that the 2-cent rate had failed to provide as much traffic as expected, but that the 1½-cent rate had proved more profitable.

Stott Is Wounded In Showing Pistol

Stott was replacing the weapon in the case.

Penetrating the holster, the bullet entered Inspector Stott's body just above the solar plexus, emerged from his back and lodged in a wall. He was rushed to the United States Naval Hospital in a patrol wagon from the Sixth Precinct.

Inspector Stott gave an account of the accident to Inspector Edwards after reaching the hospital. He said that he had been exhibiting his collection of firearms to David L. Reardon, Washington lawyer, and his brother, Thomas D. Reardon.

The inspector said he had kept the hair-trigger revolver until last. "I'm going to show you a real gun now," he said he told the visitors. "Producing the .38 caliber colt, he described the ease with which the gun could be fired. Then the hair trigger caught on the holster and the gun discharged."

Inspector Stott's interest in firearms dates from the days when he was in the Marine Corps. He had built up a colection of varied types of guns over a period of years. Inspector Stott joined the police force September 6, 1904. He was appointed a captain in charge of equipment in July, 1929. In 1932, he was promoted to the position of acting inspector. Following the death of Inspector Ogden Davis last month he was made an inspector.

Congressional Parade Today For President

Unprecedented Gesture Is Limited to Members of Both Houses.

ten out of hand since Mr. Roosevelt went away. The overwhelming defeat of the President on the veteran veto was followed by agitation for silver legislation which has reached the point where legislation is likely unless Mr. Roosevelt steps in to thwart it.

Agitation for the McLeod bill, to pay off depositors in closed banks, similarly got out of hand. The attempt to force it to a vote by the petition method was blocked temporarily yesterday when the House Banking Committee reported the measure out, thus compelling the petitioners to delay a week before renewing their attempt to force a House vote.

Two Other Reverses.

Agitation for modification of the securities act developed and on Mr. Roosevelt's return to Miami yesterday he indicated some minor amendment would be acceptable. The Senate voted a processing tax on cocoanut oil despite Mr. Roosevelt's insistence that it would run counter to the Philippine independence act. The House rejected the Norris amendment to take politics out of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, although Mr. Roosevelt indorsed this proposal.

But today, members were ready to forget if Mr. Roosevelt would forgive. They are prepared to wave their hats and contribute stentorian cheers while the band plays "Hail to the Chief!"

Plans for the royal welcome were outlined to the House members in a letter by Representative Arthur H. Greenwood, of Indiana, Democratic whip. It read as follows:

"Dear Colleague: Tomorrow, Friday, the President will return from his vacation. Committees from the House and Senate are arranging to give him an informal greeting upon his arrival at the Union Station at 10 o'clock a. m. This reception is entirely informal and nonpolitical.

Promptness Asked.

"The membership of the House are requested to meet on the front of the portico of the House wing at 9:15 o'clock, from whence they will proceed in a body to the Union Station. There will be no others in this parade than the membership of the House and Senate, and you are invited to join with your colleagues in paying this tribute to the President and helping to add to the joy of his safe return to the Capital.

"Upon leaving the House wing, the House delegation will be joined by members of the Senate. We trust that each member will be present promptly at the designated hour."

There was some uncertainty as to whether the occasion would call for high hats, but it was indicated that any member with a clean collar and a fresh shave would be acceptable.

Snell Raps Ballyhoo.

Some Republicans looked on rather dubiously as the round-up for the parade proceeded.

"They're going to ballyhoo him to death," said Representative Snell, Republican leader of the House.

The proposed demonstration took the press gallery so much by surprise that it was some time before members recovered sufficiently to contribute suggestions. One proposed that in keeping with the spirit of the occasion each member who had voted against an Administration measure during the President's holiday carry a bright red apple as a peace offering.

When plans were announced in the Senate yesterday, Borah, of Idaho, protested impishly that the committee in charge was composed entirely of Democrats. He said he couldn't understand it. Later it was explained that Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, had invited the Republican leader, Senator McNary, and his side to join in the ceremonies.

All Democrats.

The Senate committee in charge was composed of Robinson, of Arkansas; Connally, of Texas; Lonergan, of Connecticut, and Murphy, of Iowa. Vice President Garner, President Pro Tem Pittman, Edwin A. Halsey, Senate secretary, and Chesley W. Young, sergeant at arms, also will participate.

The House committee, also entirely Democrati, was composed of Speaker Rainey and Representatives Greenwood, of Indiana; Woodrum, of West Virginia; Dickstein, of New York; Lozier, of Missouri, and Majority Leader Byrns, of Tennessee.

There was some argument as to whether the Senators would parade or, in more dignified fashion, merely assemble in the Presidential waiting room at Union Station. In announcing the plans, Senator Connally told the Senate they would meet at the station. The House announcement said the Senators would parade. Senators have never paraded as a body behind a brass band, and some of them felt enough precedents had been broken in this Administration.

District Y 'Fencers' Down Baltimoreans

The Washington Y. M. C. A. fencing team brought its season to a successful close with a 5-to-4 victory over the Baltimore Y, which had taken the measure of the local swordsmen, 7 to 2, in a match earlier in the season. The contests were held in Baltimore.

The Capital City bladesmen comprising the team were Lieut. Comdr. L. Doughty, of the Naval Academy; Maj. E. L. Dyer, Everard, Doughty, Morrell and R. Dyer. Everard, former Yale fencer, and Maj. Dyer shone for the Washington team, the former winning, 5 to 4, and the latter winning, 5 to 2, though losing his first match.

Special Speeds Roosevelt Here After Vacation

President Set to Push Toward Recovery With New Zest.

Zangara, mortally wounded Chicago's Mayor, Anton Cermak, in a futile attempt on the President's life, today's events were free of any untoward incident, excepting, perhaps, a narrow escape Gen. Johnson experienced at a railroad crossing.

The Nourmahal entered Biscayne Bay shortly after dawn, but it was midmorning before Mr. Roosevelt, on the arm of his son, James, came down the gangplank to receive the welcome of Mayor E. G. Sewell, and the recovery administrator:

"Look at him," the President called out when Gen. Johnson approached; "he's not half sunburned yet."

Johnson, looking tired and worn in sharp contrast to the picture of vigorous health presented by the President, was told by the latter to leave the train at Charleston, S. C., and take a few days off from his Washington duties.

Closely guarded by Secret Service men, Mr. Roosevelt entered an open car for the ride through Miami's streets to the station. All along the route policemen, sailors, firemen, National Guardsmen, and legionnaires saw that the handclapping crowds kept to the sidewalks.

That Miami was anxious lest any disturbance mar its reception was obvious, but Mr. Roosevelt, exhibited no recollection of the wild night last year of the Zangara shooting. He spoke a few words from the platform at the station, in conversation with Senator Park Trammell, of Florida, and repeated appearances at stops on the trip northward.

Vincent Astor, the President's yachting host, followed him to the train to bid him farewell, while others of the Astor party came aboard for the trip home. These bronzed companions of Mr. Roosevelt included Judge Frederic Kernochan, George St. George, W. R. Stewart and Kermit Roosevelt, of New York, and Dr. Leslie Heiter, Mobile, Ala.

"Perfectly Marvelous."

"It was perfectly marvelous; I got a real rest," Mr. Roosevelt told correspondents.

"The first two days I spent fishing; then I caught a little cold in the nose and slept a day or two. Then I fished some more and just lazed around."

As he said this in his private car, he laughed and joked about his fishing and incidents of the trip. It was clear he meant every word of it. Fishing still furnished a major part of his conversation, with him insisting not only had he and James caught 196 fish Tuesday, but also that they had taken 110 yesterday.

In quick succession, Mr. Roosevelt disposed of questions concerning the McLeod bill to pay depositors of closed banks, the new tax bill, and the stock exchange bill, by saying he was not familiar with details. Likewise, he declined to forecast when Congress will get through, although his return to the Capital doubtless is counted on to hasten action.

While opposed to any general revision, Mr. Roosevelt gave it as his understanding the Federal Trade Commission is to propose several minor amendments to the securities act, now under fire for thwarting capital issues. One of the modifications would limit the liability of the house of ultimate issue to the amount it underwrites, which he favors.

Only the appropriation bill, providing $2,000,000,000 or more for emergency expenditures of the next fiscal year remains before the Administration's relief legislation is completed, it was brought out. Neither the President nor Gen. Johnson was prepared to say definitely whether the licensing provision of the National recovery act would be extended beyond June 16, or allowed to lapse.

"In my opinion," the recovery administrator declared later, "the act has teeth without it, but it may be found necessary to continue it. We're still studying it."

Consideration of the housing program, Gen. Johnson disclosed, is based on the "Philadelphia plan." This involves circulation of pledge cards among home owners, who promise to spend specified amounts for home renovation, in return for which labor unions agree to allow low wages and building suppliers offer substantial concessions.

Ponder Credit Scheme.

Thus, a great deal of work should be done for the smallest expense, Gen. Johnson emphasized that no decision has yet been reached.

Those studying the plan, including Frank C. Walker, of the National Emergency Council, also "are trying to work out some credit scheme."

The program should be carried out within NRA, which would make additional use of the local emergency councils. Since it would form part of his own organization, Gen. Johnson would be in charge of the program without relinquishing his position as National recovery administrator.

Gen. Johnson reported to the President his letter to Senator Robert F. Wagner concerning the latter's labor bill, now agitating industry. He gave the opinion Mr. Roosevelt is in substantial agreement with his general approval of principles of the bill, which is designed to prevent company "domination" of unions.

Oil Pay Slide In Code Is Hit

Differentiats Held Unfair at NRA Session; Instances Cited.

(Associated Press.)

Proposed wage differentials in the oil industry, continuing regional differentials, were opposed yesterday before the Petroleum Labor Policy Board by John P. Frey, member of the NRA Labor Advisory Board.

The differentials proposed by the planning and coordination committee to be retroactive to December 2, when the industry's code went into effect, were supported by a number of Southwestern oil operators, including J. D. Collette, of Fort Worth, Tex.

If certain regions should pay less wages, Frey said, by the same reasoning they should pay less for their equipment. He said there should not be a 15 per cent difference between sections merely because they were on opposite sides of a river.

B. D. Hull, of Houston; E. M. B. Keye and R. M. Collins, Oklahoma producers, were among those supporting the proposed differentials.

Keye said regional wage scales were necessary because interior points had smaller refineries with higher production costs and freight rates to markets. He added his own company would not be affected as it was paying higher wages than those proposed.

Every employe of Southwestern refineries, he said, was getting a larger pay envelope than before the code went into effect.

District Repair Shop Control To Be Changed

L. C. Wormington, head of the District repair shop, will be transferrel from his position partly as a result of protests of a colored delegation, it was learned yesterday.

Wormington will go back to his position as an inspector in the municipal architect's office. The complaint against him was based on an alleged state by him that he was not in favor of employing colored mechanics.

Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, said the District had no policy against employing colored mechanics and added that Wormington had "not been tactful" if he was correctly quoted.

It was explained that there were other causes for Wormington's transfer. He had been in poor health and was working under a strain caused by the CWA repair program.

Semifinals Held in Post Essay Contest

Winners of Silver Medals Will Be Selected Tonight.

Enthusiastic student support of The Washington Post scholarship competition was reported yesterday to The Post by principals and faculty members of local public senior high schools, following their semifinals, in which nine or more finalists were selected in each school from original participants totaling more than 2,000.

Intramural finals, to be concluded tonight, will determine three division winners at each school, who will receive silver medals from The Post and will compete for scholarship awards in the project's finals, during the coming month, on the campuses of American, Catholic, Georgetown and Howard Universities.

Faculty supervisors of the intramural events stated the project has appealed to an unusual number of voluntary competitors. They attributed its appeal both to the challenging type of social science subjects stipulated for essay topics, and to the prospects offered for higher education at the local universities.

"There has never been as widespread a response or as worthwhile accomplishment in any project of its kind at Western, so far as I know," declared Mrs. Bertha A. Werthmer, chairman of the competition committee at that school. "And I can conscientiously state that this response has been voluntary and spontaneous on the part of the students themselves. Most of the participants in my own classes, although juniors, and therefore ineligible for final awards, were keenly interested in the subjects, which they discussed at great length in the classes, and in the prospects of gaining awards if the project is repeated next year."

That the competition has stimulated unusual student interest in current civic problems and in higher education was the conclusion of officials at the other schools, including Frank C. Daniel, principal, and Andrew Vliet, history director, at McKinley; Dr. H. A. Smith, principal, and Miss Harriet Lasier, economics teacher, at Central, and Charles Hart, principal, and Miss Kate Bucknam, history director, at Eastern.

'Quite Creditable."

Walter L. Smith, principal at Dunbar, said: "All of the branches of the Public Library, the Congressional Library and the book shelves of friends were used in the preparation of the essays. In addition to the senior class competitors, over 200 younger students, although ineligible for prizes, wrote on many of the social science subjects. They were all enthusiastically interested in the contest, and all their papers were quite creditable."

J. B. Hunter and Mrs. R. D. Brooks reported fine accomplishments in the competitions, which they managed at Armstrong and Cardoza, respectively.

Central's nine finalists and their essay topics were:

Benjamin Waldo, "The Pros and Cons of Inflation;" Arthur Carbonell, "Facism, Communism and Democracy;" Dorothy Dewhirst, "The Minority Problem in a Democracy;" Maurice Atkins, "Our Far-Eastern Policy;" John Knight Harris, "Is America Self-Contained?;" Suzanne Martin, "The Obligation of Wealth to Society;" Onsken Owens, jr., "The Monroe Doctrine and Pan-Americanism;" Robert Stevenson, "The Causes and Cures of Unemployment," and Mary Tidball, "The Development of the League of Nations."

Jury Personnel.

The following faculty jury, who will serve also in the Central finals, selected the papers: Mrs. S. C. Palmer, Misses Charlotte R. Farrington and Grace Vale. The esays were prepared under the supervision of th following teachers: Mrs. Elva C. Wells, civics; Miss R. Robinet, economics; Miss H. Harriet Lasier, economics, and Miss Grace Johnson, international problems.

Miss Kate Bucknam, chairman of Eastern's judges, as well as contest committee, reported that her jury agreed that all the essays submitted were of great merit and indicated much study and intensive work. After lengthy consultation and deliberation, they selected the following semifinalists:

Elizabeth Murray, "The Reorganization of Local Government;" Paul Shapiro, "Communism, Fascism and Democracy;" Hall Simpson, "The World Court;" Kay Turner, "Development of the League of Nations:" Clarence Corkran and Richard Colfer, "The Monroe Doctrine and Pan Americanism;" Annette Temin, "The Minority Problem in a Democracy;" Earle Martyn, "Constitutional Implications of the National Recovery Act;" Bernard Steinkuller, "A National Transportation System;" Louis Lazaroff, "National Security and International Cooperation;" Robert Gordon, "The Influence of the Supreme Court on American History;" Samuel Kahansky, "The Causes and Cures of Unemployment," and Samuel Clements, "Problems of National Defenses."

Wide Range of Topics.

Western's finalists included William Waldo, Richard Logan, Ben McCleskey, Hudson Moses, Louis Bleaker, Lawrence Smith, Evelyn Johnson, Mary Jane Brahany and Elizabeth Griswold.

Winners at McKinley's semifinals, designated by a faculty committee composed of Misses Louise Kingsley and Gay Donnelly and Mrs. M. Weber, included:

Robert M. Winfree, "The Four Major Panics of the Nation;" Elinor Powers, "Causes and Cures of Unemployment;" Marion Pike, "The Depressions of 1837, 1873, 1893 and 1929;" Dorothy Anderson, "A National Transportation System;" Robert Black, "The Pros and Cons of Inflation;" Mary Dunham, "The Panics of 1837, 1873, 1893 and 1929;" Charles Holbrook, "Constitutional Implications of the Recovery Program;" John Spates, "Problems of National Defense," and Alfred Whiton, "The Gold Standard and Managed Currency."

Mrs. R. D. Brooks, committee chairman, reported the following Cardoza finalists:

Ernestine Greene, Elsie Woodbury, Pearl Faulkner, Bernice Brown, Ernestine Swann, Cordelia Key, Elease Newman, Mollie Buchanan and Pauline Marshall.

Armstrong's winners were reported as follows by J. B. Hunter, chairman of both the jury and contest committee of that school:

Charles R. Williams, Susia B. Perkins, Doris Butler, Norma Howell, Thomasene Bryant, George Banks, Leon Thompson, Clarence Coleman and Oscar Lane.

Dunbar's finalists were selected by a faculty jury composed of J. N. Saunders, Mrs. I. M. Davis and M. W. Tignor. They included William H. Lewis, jr., Blanche L. Scott, Frances Ellen Datcher, Mary Reid, Bernice Simms, Betty Francis, Esther Cooper, Alva Taylor and Alice Davis.

Arizona Weevil Safe Behind 'Keep Out' Sign Jeers at Ban

New Species Discovered Amid Feverish War by Quarantine.

The Department of Agriculture has found the boll weevil's brother. There is nothing cheering about the discovery.

It seems that after years of quarantine procedure which successfully kept the boll weevil of the Southern States out of the cotton regions of Arizona. Arizona has a boll weevil of its own.

This weevil is a double menace, the entomologists say. It may invade a cotton territory free from the boll weevil or it may interbreed with the boll weevil to produce a hybrid more injurious to cotton than either parent.

The weevil of Arizona is so closly related to the boll weevil that only an expert can tell them apart. Entomologists believe that the two are descended from the same ancestor.

Before the new insects were discovered attacking Arizona cotton, the experts found that they lived upon the Thurberia plant—a woody shrub of the Southwest which bears pods resembling cotton bolls.

Big-Eyed Sea Freak.

Dr. George S. Myers, assistant curator of fishes of the Smithsonian Institution, has just described three amazing creatures of the ocean—hitherto unknown to science—which were obtained from the Puerto Rico "deep" by the Johnson-Smithsonian Expedition.

First of these, Dr. Myers has named the Johnsonina eriomma. Each eye is about a fifth as long as the fish's entire body. In the same relation a man's eye would be a foot long and 8 inches high.

This strange animal also has two false eyes on its sides near the tail. These eyes, the same in appearance and size as the real eyes, are only spots of color and have no visual function.

Scientists can only speculate about the purpose of the false eyes. Perhaps this fish serves as chaperon in the fish schools with "eyes in the back of its head" (tail).

This type of fish was found at the depth just before utter darkness is reached in the ocean and the large eyes represent the evolutionary effort to see in this area of borderline dusk.

Armor-Plated Fish.

This fish, an orange-pink in color, came from the "red level." Most of the fishes of the 150-fathom line display various shades of red, but at greater depths they are either black or white.

The second peculiar creature has been named Peristedon bartschi, named in honor of Dr. Paul Bartsch, of the Smithsonian, director of the scientific work of the expedition. The bright red fish has its whole body armored with plates, each plate having a very sharp spine a quarter of an inch long.

The third new species is of the "lantern fish" group, small minnow-like creatures which live only in the open ocean.

Most fish remain near shore or near the ocean's bottom, but not these. They live in deep water, far fron. land and are never found near the bottom.

They live and die, Dr. Myers says, with no knowledge that the ocean is limited or that it has a bottom. All have rows of luminous spots along their sides, which probably enable them to see each other in the eternal darkness.

Safe-Deposit Box In Bank Robbed Of Liberty Bonds

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 12 (Spl.).—An unusual robbery was reported to State police here today by Owen Moore, of Wolf Summit, and his brother, Burgess, of Bristol.

Visiting the safe deposit box of their mother, Mrs. Mary Moore, of Bristol, in a bank in Salem today, they found that $4,500 in Liberty bonds had been extracted from it since it was last opened by members of the family last October, they told the police.

The box had been tampered with, they said, and screws of the outside panel had been loosened. Other Government bonds in the box were not molested, they said.

State troopers began an investigation.

Last 6 of 102 On Ice Saved

Soviet Fliers End Heroic Work of Rescuing Arctic Party.

Moscow, April 12 (AP).—A saga of the sea reached a conclusion tonight as Soviet pilots rescued the last six persons of a party of 102 marooned on an Arctic Sea ice floe two months ago.

The aviators a few hours earlier had conquered hazards of the Far North and brought 22 to the mainland at Cape Van Karem, Siberia, from the ice pack on which they sought refuge when their ship, the Cheltuskin, was crushed in the ice February 13 and sank.

Pilots Vodopianoff and Doronin, who effected the rescue of the last survivors, had flown by easy stages from Khabarovsk to Cape Van Karem.

Prof. Otto Schmidt, commander of the Wrangel Island expedition aboard the Cheltuskin, had been taken by airplane to Nome, it was reported, whence he might be flown to Fairbanks, Alaska, for treatment for a pneumonia condition.

The rescuing of the last members meant that exactly one day less than two months after their craft sank, with the loss of one life, all of the surviving company had been saved by fliers who braved subzero weather and hazards of a hitherto unexplored route.

Youth Electrocuted As He Climbs Pole

Killed Day Before His 19th Birthday.

Staunton, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—A boyish prank cost the life of Hallie C. McCauley, of Staunton, the day before his nineteenth birthday.

He climbed a pole carrying a high-voltage wire and near the top lost his balance. In an effort to save himself he grabbed the wire with both hands and was electrocuted.

Dr. T. M. Parkins, coroner, said the boy was dead before his body struck the ground. The funeral was held here today, with burial in Thornrose Cemetery.

Jones Gets Relief Post.

Charleston, W. Va., April 12 (Spl.). While formal announcement was withheld pending Federal approval, it was stated today at the State relief administration offices that E. S. Jones, of Kanawha County, would be the new head of its auditing division, succeeding Fred Heavener, of Randolph County.

Federal Relief Program Told By Johnstone

Field Agent Is Speaker at Virginia Conference on Social Work.

Charlottesville, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Addressing tonight's session of the Virginia conference of social work, in Monroe Hall, at the university, Alan Johnstone, field representative of the Federal Relief Administration, said the Federal relief program from now on would be divided into three main divisions.

The divisions are: A work program in urban areas, where employment will be limited to those in need and based upon their budgetary requirements; rural rehabilitation to place people in agricultural areas upon a self-sustaining basis through relief grants and work stock, and redistribution of those stranded around coal mines or dead industries back to the land, or in the vicinity of new industries.

There are approximately 13,000,000 persons on the relief rolls today, said the speaker, and it is the job of the relief administration, cooperating with the States and governmental units, to take care of these until they can be given opportunities in industry and agriculture. The work should reach its peak in May or June, he said, by which time the relief work should begin to decline.

Maryland Employment Gains 35 Pct. in Year, Report Shows

Baltimore Rise Greatly Exceeds State as an Entity.

Baltimore, April 12 (Spl.).—Employment in Maryland factories has increased approximately 35 per cent since the low point of a year ago, it was reported today by Dr. J. Knox Insley, State commissioner of labor and statistics.

Basing his estimate on reports from 671 manufacturing plants, covering 44 selected industries, Dr. Insley said that industrial pay rolls have increased 69.7 per cent. The figures were contained in his April report, made public today.

Improvement was noted in virtually all lines of business. The only exceptions were retail general merchandise, cleaning and dyeing, building construction, cafes and cafeterias and retail lumber and building material business. Construction is still at a low ebb, he reported.

In Baltimore employment improvement is greater than in the State. The pay roll gain was up by 72.6 per cent, and employment gain was 33.8 per cent. For April the gain over March was 4.6 per cent in employment and 7.1 in pay rolls. In the State, as a whole, for the same period, employment improved by 3.5 per cent and pay rolls by 6 per cent.

Largest Attendance.

Attendance at today's sessions of the conference was the largest in the history of the organization, and virtually all speakers were present. Substituting for Dr. C. C. Carstens, executive director for the Child Welfare League of America, was Miss Elizabeth Clarke, whose topic was "Children Away From Their Own Homes."

Mrs. Winfred McLain Shepler, secretary, central application bureau, Washington, led the institute on social case workers, while the institute for emergency relief workers was presided over by Miss Margaret Woll, of Richmond.

Arthur W. James, State commissioner of public welfare, led the group discussion on social organization and administration in Virginia cities and counties, and Dr. Warren F. Draper, State health commissioner, discussed public health in Virginia during the recovery program. The institute on maternity home work was led by Miss Catherine J. Wilcox, of Richmond.

Urges New System.

Speaking on the future of the jail, Dr. Frank W. Hoffer, of the School of Sociology at the University of Virginia, said that in Virginia, as elsewhere, deterrance through punishment, not rehabilitation, is the keynote of the system, and more attention should be given to a study of each offender. He suggested organization of a clinical staff, including physicians, psychiatrists and social case workers, to study the individual offender. Prisoners should be committed directly to the central State authorities, who would place various types in institutions best suited to their needs.

Dr. Hoffer urged extension of the indeterminate sentence, and recommended payment of a moderate wage to prisoners to make restitution for damages and support of their families.

Need of Game Bird Sanctuaries Cited

State Game Warden Says Space Available.

Baltimore, April 12 (Spl.).—If wild bird life in Maryland is to be adequately protected, more sanctuaries must be provided where the birds can breed unmolested and be assured food all seasons of the year, it was declared today by State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte.

"While there are many such sanctuaries on the Eastern Shore," Mr. LeCompte said, "there is room for a great many more in the State."

He also urged that berry-bearing bushes be planted, and advocated the construction of bird houses and shelters for nongame birds. Game-bird sanctuaries in or near a city are impracticable, he said, but urban dwellers can readily build houses and shelters for song birds.

His statements were made in connection with the observance of conservation week in Maryland. Tomorrow is Arbor and Bird Day.

Mrs. Mollie M. Carter Is Paid Final Tribute

Shepherdstown, W. Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Services were held here today for Mrs. Mollie Mills Carter, widow of C. D. Carter, who died at her home here late Monday.

Surviving are three children, C. D., jr., Granville, at home, and Mrs. Leo Emorey, all of Shepherdstown; two brothers, Charles Mills, of Brunswick, Md., and Andrew Mills, of Sharpsburg, Md.; four sisters, Miss Julia Mills, of Bakerton; Mrs. Annie Stride, Harrisburg, Pa.; Mrs. Ida Carter, Hagerstown, Md., and Mrs. Lucy Long, Brownsville, Md.; and one small grandson.

Jobless Taken From Downtown Section

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Objections to having relief roll people congregating in the heart of the downtown section while awaiting attention at headquarters resulted today in decision to move the headquarters from a vacant bank building to a high school building. The change will be made by May 1.

Ash Trail Widened.

Lexington, Va., April 12 (Spl.)—The Lexington town council has passed a resolution requesting the State highway department to widen the Midland Trail, Route 60, 40 feet under the B. & O. Railroad bridge on the western outskirts of the town.

Miller Quits Welfare Board.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 12 (Spl.).—D. Gold Miller, of the county, named several weeks ago to the Berkeley County welfare board, has resigned, due to personal reasons which prevented him assuming a full share in the work, he said.

Four Maryland Utilities Bought By Potomac Co.

$520,000 Is Paid Under Service Commission Authority.

Baltimore, April 12 (Spl.).—Sale of electric power plants in four western Maryland towns to the Potomac Edison Co., was authorized today by the Maryland public service commission.

The power plants, all owned by the Maryland Light & Power Co., are at Lonaconing, Midland, Antietam, and Emmitsburg. The price for the four units was reported at $520,000.

In addition to this sale, the public service commission authorized the Potomac Edison interests to buy the Harper's Ferry (W. Va.) Electric Light & Power Co.'s properties on the Maryland side of the Potomac. The price was set at $149,601, plus the cost of net additions.

It was specified by the commission, however, that the prices paid were too high for rate-making cases. In determining rates in the future the commission provided, some other basis than the cost of the plants must be employed. This point was demanded by Herman Moser, people's counsel to the public service commission.

The Potomac Edison Co. now owns virtually all the power plants in Western Maryland, with the exception of the municipal plant at Hagerstown.

Clore Accounting Report Completed

Goolrick Lays Part of Blame to County.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Former State Senator C. O'Conor Goolrick, master commissioner appointed to examine the audit of the accounts of Irvin C. Clore, treasurer of Spotsylvania County, reported to Judge Frederick W. Coleman in circuit court today the existence of a shortage of $2,210.52 in Clore's accounts.

The report, however, laid part of the blame for the discrepancy to the county, which Senator Goolrick said had failed to install an adequate system of accounting. Mr. Goolrick said this fact and his belief that there was no intentional wrong-doing on the part of the treasurer prompted him to recommend that the county make some reasonable compromise with Clore.

The report presumably brought to a close the case which began after the State auditor's office in 1932 revealed alleged shortage in the Clore accounts amounting to $3,721.97, Clore denied being indebted to the county and contended that any existing shortage was due to errors in bookkeeping.

$2,000 Damage Verdict.

Richmond, April 12 (Spl.).—For personal injuries he suffered when struck by a truck of the R. F. & P. Transportation Co., near Quantico, Michael L. Hillman, New York traveling salesman, today was awarded a $2,000 verdict by a jury in the U. S. District Court.

Three Youths Bind, Rob Driver of $7

Hagerstown Trucker Had Delivered Cattle Here.

Middletown, Md., April 12 (Spl.).—State police, Frederick and Washington County officers are still without clews tonight as to the identity of three young bandits who held up and robbed Clarence Bussard, of Hagerstown, of $7 late last night on the Frederick County side of South Mountain 4 miles west of Middletown.

Bussard was returning home from Washington after having delivered a truckload of cattle in that city yesterday, and it is believed that the bandits thought that he had the money from the sale with him and trailed him from Washington for about 45 miles.

After searching Bussard, the bandits tied his hands and ordered him to proceed in the truck. He guided the truck down a treacherous mountainside with his elbows to a garage near Boonsboro, where he was released. The tags on the bandit's car were turned upside-down to prevent identification, but Bassard said they were of the same color as District of Columbia license plates.

PWA Denies Lynchburg Aid

Bonds Sold, but Federal Cash Is Not Paid; May Drop Plans.

Lynchburg, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Another issue is joined between the City of Lynchburg and the Federal PWA board in that the Government is declining to pay the city a grant in connection with the sale of $450,000 of the water department bonds to the Government.

According to the way the administration here figures out letters from Federal authorities the grant will not be paid until the entire issue of bonds have been taken over and paid for by the Government.

This, City Manager R. W. B. Hart contends, is in direct contravention to the contract under which the city agreed to dispose of the bond issue to the PWA. He holds that a grant would be forthcoming on the second requisition for funds. The second requisition was made a week ago and this money, $100,000, has been made available to the city, but the information is that the grant will be withheld until the bonds are all taken. The result of this, if carried out by the Government, would be to require the city to pay interest on bonds, which would have to be issued to take the place of the grant which has been expected by the city.

Mr. Hart, in discussing the situation, said he would be ready to recommend to the city council, if the Government adheres to what appears to be its stand, that the city abrogate the entire contract and issue bonds, to be sold to private interests.

The money secured from the sale of the bonds is being used to replace 30-inch wooden pipes with 36-inch castiron pipe in the gravity water line which brings water to the city from Pedlar River, a distance of 22 miles.

THE STEINWAY GRAND OWES MUCH TO THE Violin

Theodore Steinway (the first) studied the violin. And when he was quite convinced that it was the long, unbroken curves of its box which gave the instrument its surpassingly beautiful tones . . . he changed the entire construction of the Steinway frame.

For then, as now, the first ideal of the Steinway family was to give their beloved piano the most glorious tone possible to a keyboard instrument. No research was too arduous, no investment too great, no experiment too hazardous, if only the Steinway could be brought nearer to perfection. That adventurous spirit still lives, and today in the Steinway shops the search for improvement goes on as quietly and as ceaselessly as when the earliest Steinways were built.

Wagner and Liszt used the Steinway in their time; Paderewski, Hofmann and Rachmaninoff use it today. But the Steinway is primarily a piano for the home . . . within the reach of the average income. And prices at present are lower than they have been for many years.

Growers Urge Tariff Pact Bill

Apple Men See Chance of Increased Marts Under Plan.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Apple sales agencies here and a number of individual apple growers have been writing Senators and Representatives from West Virginia, asking them to support President Roosevelt's request for power to readjust tariffs, with a 50 per cent latitude in adjustment.

The apple men are looking toward European and South American markets, and the tendency of governments of those countries to restrict imports of United States apples. With tariff bargaining in the hands of the Administration, many of these restrictions could be broken down, the apple men feel.

The State Horticulture Society has also protested to President Roosevelt against adoption of the report of Railroad Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman, which recommended that motor trucks be placed under supervision of Interstate Commerce Commission.

The growers' society stated that this move would mean establishment of the same high rates on apples moved by truck as are charged by the railroads, and that those railroad rates are so high now that they are throttling commerce.

Nazarene Body Opens Session At Cumberland

200 Delegates Attending Annual Gatherings of Church.

Cumberland, Md., April 12 (Spl.). An important feature of the twelfth annual assembly of the Washington-Philadelphia district of the Church of the Nazarene today was the examination of about 20 candidates from Nazarene seminaries in New York and Boston for admission to the ministry.

Twelve States represented by 300 delegates, comprise the assembly, which will end Sunday night.

The Rev. Daniel E. Higgs, Baltimore, supervisor of this district, which includes Maryland, District of Columbia, Delaware and parts of New Jersey, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, declared this is the largest assembly that he has ever conducted.

The conference has drawn 41 Minister and laymen from other districts. There are 28 more official delegates in attendance at the assembly this year than were present last year at Norristown, Pa., indicating an increase of 1,400 in membership in the district. Eight new Sunday schools were established during the year, making 40 schools now in the district with an enrollment of 5,275. The Rev. E. E. Corbett, a visitor from the Ohio district, described Sunday school work there.

Mrs. Grace Slocum, head of the Women's Missionary Society of the district, reported that the Prayer and Fasting League of the general church raised $46,000 in eight months through the fasting savings of 11,000 members.

Committees were nominated today that will function during the convention. They include ways and means, foreign missions, education, resolutions, church extension, pastoral support and ministerial relief. The nominating committee is composed of S. E. Slocum and the Rev. J. G. Gould, Baltimore; the Rev. J. N. Nielson, Hollandale, Pa.; the Rev. Marvin S. Cooper, Ballston, Va.; the Rev. L. B. Williams, Washington, D. C., and the Rev. J. H. Parker, Cumberland.

C., who is chairman of the District Sunday School Board. S. H. Williamson, Ballston, Va., is reporter-secretary of the assembly. Prof. Murray Morford, Lebanon, Pa., has been leading the music of the assembly.

Romney Loan Body Is Facing Losses

Warning Is Given to Get Sufficient Business.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Romney Production Credit Association, the "local" of Baltimore Regional Farm Credit Administration for Federal crop loans to farmers of the Eastern Panhandle, has received applications totaling about $32,000, from some 40 farmers.

Expense of the Romney association will run about $1,800 a year, it is estimated. This will take about 6 per cent of the $32,000 in loans applied for, provided all loans are granted. The associations have only a quasi-Federal relationship, and are expected to carry their own expenses and losses.

The expense money derives from the 3 per cent difference between what the association must pay Intermediate Credit Bank for its money, 2½ per cent and the 5½ per cent it charges the farmer-borrower. But with expense set at $1,800, the amount of loans must more than double the present $32,000 before the association can become self-supporting, say Federal loan officials.

Believe in Signs? Men Go to Work With Vengeance

Staunton, Va., April 12 (Spl.). Don't always believe in signs. That is probably the motto now of G. A. Field, Baltimorean.

Yesterday while en route to Staunton he was stopped near West Augusta, at the foot of Shenandoah Mountains, by a man who waved a red flag bearing the legend, "Men at Work."

Field stopped, and before he got started again two men had robbed him of $27 in cash and his ignition key.

Field, however, had a duplicate switch key and drove to Staunton, where he reported the robbery to police here.

CCC Moves Into Forests

Third Corps Area Orders Conditioning Camp Units Out.

Baltimore, April 12 (AP).—The first contingent of replacements under the third enrollment period of the Civilian Conservation Corps has left the conditioning camps behind for forestry camp assignments under instructions issued at Third Corps area headquarters here.

The initial transfer moved 864 men from the three conditioning camps as follows: Fort Monroe, 509 men to camps in Virginia; Fort George G. Meade, Md., 165 men to camps in Maryland and Virginia; 190 men from Fort Hoyle, Md., to camps in Pennsylvania. A second group of 175 men left Fort Hoyle today for Pennsylvania camps.

These men, who first began arriving in the conditioning camps April 6, already have been examined, equipped and given permanent camp assignments. Newly selected men for the forestry army are arriving at the conditioning camps at the rate of more than 500 a day. Army authorities expect to retain them only a limited time for the necessary processing before sending them into the forests.

The transfers of certain companies to new work areas for the summer also will begin within a few days. First to move will be Company 1353 from its winter site near Kate, Pa., to Frederick, Md., about April 16.

3 Generals in Line For Stephan's Post

Leader to Be Named for 29th Division.

Richmond, April 12 (Spl.).—The death in Washington of Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan, commanding general of the Twenty-ninth Division, composed of troops from Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, leaves a vacancy for which three brigadier generals are in line for promotion.

Brig. Gen. S. Gardiner Waller, adjutant general of Virginia, took command of the Ninety-first Brigade in 1922 and outranks the others as a line officer, but Brig. Gen. Milton A. Reckford, of Maryland, as adjutant general of that State, held the rank for three years before taking command of the Fifty-eighth Brigade in 1924.

The third general officer of the division is Brig. Gen. J. Craig McClanahan, of Maryland, who since 1931 has commanded the Fifty-fourth Field Artillery Brigade.

Of the total, about $15,000,000 will be for Federal projects, chiefly river improvements. The rest will go for public buildings and water and sewage plants.

Hint For A Novelist.

Every so often there comes to light a story which helps prove the validity of those bitter and half-mad stories which William Faulkner and others are forever digging out of what seems to be perverted imaginations. The last nine years of the life of William Youngblood, of Nashville, would make excellent copy for some member of this morbid school.

When he was 30 years old, Youngblood's wife was slain. The husband was suspected and widely sought by the police. But Youngblood was not found because he had gone into hiding in the dingy attic of his parents' home, where he remained immured for nine long years. His father died there, making him promise that he would never give himself up because, the old man said, he was afraid enemies would give false testimony against the suspect. Whenever grocery boy, or ice man, approached the house Youngblood would timorously conceal himself. Finally the sheriff came and made the long-awaited arrest. On Wednesday a court set him free.

Here is a wonderful background for a modern novel: The mother who would not let her son give himself up; the father adjuring him to stay with the old lady; the awful nights; the long days; the changing seasons as seen from an attic room; the fear shooting through his body at the sound of footsteps—all this transcends the imagination of a Poe, or a Dr. Cronin, or a Faulkner. Placed in a setting of the "decadent South," happy hunting ground for novelists of the American morbid school, this set of facts would make a "Sanctuary" pale in comparison.

We would offer this gratis to the young novelists. But reflection suggests that they are probably already at work on it by now, reading Freud in the morning, drinking corn in the afternoon and banging their typewriters at midnight by the light of the moon, while starved hound dogs bay among the cypress trees of the distant swamp.

State-Operated Gambling.

Incredible though it seems, the movement to establish public lotteries as a means of governmental revenue is gaining ground. There could be no more telling or disheartening demonstration of the demoralizing effect of the depression upon standards of public conduct than this effort to sanction State-operated gambling in a country that has consistently frowned upon private lotteries and denied the use of the mails to those engaged in such activities.

Representative Kenney, of New Jersey, has introduced a bill to raise $1,000,000,000 yearly to meet the costs of the Veterans' Administration by sales of lottery tickets through postoffices. The Government would retain 40 per cent of the profits of this gambling venture, and the rest would go to the veterans. A sub-committee of the Ways and Means Committee is conducting hearings on this amazing measure and is actually said to view it favorably.

The fact that the gambling instinct is irrepressible and that it results in many millions of American money being squandered upon the Irish and other sweepstakes is undeniable. But it does not suggest that the Government of the United States ought to pander to this human failing and set up a huge gambling establishment for the benefit of a favored class of citizens. The veterans themselves, one might hope, would hesitate to accept money collected in such a manner.

Such thoroughly vicious proposals ought to be fought not only as evidences of moral obliquity but as insidious devices for levying heavy tax burdens upon people who pay, not according to their ability, but because of their weakness in face of temptation. The lotteries still found in some countries are not institutions to emulate, but to shun. They are the remainder of primitive revenue-raising systems which had as objective the extraction of tribute without any embarrassing accounting of expenditure.

The Modern Pillory.

A Denver magistrate has sentenced a man and woman to sit for two hours in a smashed and blood-stained automobile wrecked as a result of drunken driving. The judge undoubtedly thought this modern type of pillory would serve as a warning to the culprits and those who witnessed their predicament. But there is something repugnant to a developing sense of justice about any kind of punishment that makes a spectacle of the offender. Punishment should not only be of a character which fits the crime; it should be suited to the temper of civilized men.

There is something brutalizing about types of punishment which invite the attention of the passerby or arouse in him feelings of definite hatred or resentment against the individual offender. In its extreme manifestations, the desire to make a public example of criminals may lead to demands for brutal and degrading kinds of punishment, such as floggings. Moreover, it encourages the public to think that laws were meant to be punitive instead of preventive.

In the long run the cause of law enforcement suffers from giving encouragement to this attitude, which places the emphasis upon the wrong-doing of the lawbreaker instead of on the sanctity and social importance of the law.

What Price Tax Reduction?

Some minor improvements were made in the District budget by the House Appropriations Committee, but they do not balance the deficiencies of that measure. The committee adhered to the policy of drastic retrenchment that was inaugurated last year. No effort was made to finance new community projects for which urgent need has developed. It is a subsistence budget in the strict sense of the word.

The proposed tax reduction is a logical sequence to the sharp trimming of appropriations. Too often in the past budget-slashing has merely given Congress an opportunity to reduce its contribution to the Capital City. If the District is to continue on a subsistence basis, certainly the savings should redound to the benefit of local taxpayers. But real economy is not always achieved through reduction of expenditures. If necessary municipal service is impaired, tax reduction may prove to be an actual extravagance.

What sacrifices are necessary to permit the projected cut of 30 cents in the tax levy? The House committee slashed the estimate for the Public Utilities Commission by 40 per cent. This agency has saved residents of the District large sums of money in the form of rate reductions, and it is now carrying on several investigations that may save the public several times the amount of its entire appropriation. Obviously, it would be crippled by such an unreasonable cut in its appropriation.

Only one of the projects requested by the Commissioners in supplemental estimates to the Budget Bureau was included in the bill, namely, a branch library for Georgetown. The committee deserves credit for approving this item, which was rejected by the Budget Bureau. In view of our recent series of articles on the handicaps confronting public libraries in Washington, this action is especially gratifying to The Post. On the other hand, the meager allowance for school buildings and repairs was reduced. Even the appropriation for light, fuel and power in the schools was diminished in flagrant disregard of well-justified complaints against poorly lighted and heated schools.

Within the last few weeks a storm of protest has been raised against the prevalence of tuberculosis in the District. Yet the allowance for the Health Department was reduced. The committee refused to take seriously the petitions of disfranchised local citizens for more adequate community service. Even the request for adequate relief funds was denied on the optimistic assumption that unemployment will be greatly reduced during the next year.

Washingtonians are only too accustomed to seeing local appropriation bills of this character reported to the House. Nor does experience give much hope that the measure will be liberalized on the floor. In the Senate, however, there appears to be greater understanding of the District's problems and more determination to uphold reasonable standards of community service for which this disfranchised city must beg as a suppliant.

Britain's Sedition Act.

A disquieting legislative project will have its second reading in the House of Commons next week. Popularly known as the "sedition bill," it is officially called "the incitement to disaffections" act, designed to prevent attempts to "seduce" or incite members of the military services.

Already Liberals and Laborites, according to the London correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, are expressing grave concern, basing their opposition upon two provisions. One makes possession of literature containing incitements an offense and the other confers powers of unlimited search without first proving the commission of some overt act. Since the Englishman's home is traditionally his castle, it is no wonder that the introduction of this act has been received with hostility.

The motives behind this bill are not at all clear. There is no reason, the Manchester Guardian points out, to believe Great Britain "on the edge of serious disturbances." It would seem, in the absence of any other reason, that the bill is the result of nerves on the part of a government which knows that its huge parliamentary majority is not representative of national opinion at the present time.

Such governments are not infrequently tempted to enact repressive legislation in the name of an emergency that does not exist. For laws ostensibly designed to guard the national safety may easily be put to political uses. The recent sweep of the Labor party in the London municipal election and the growing belief that at the next parliamentary election Labor will stage a formidable comeback may have had something to do with the origin of the bill. If so, the reasoning will probably prove exceedingly shortsighted. No British government will strengthen its popularity by indorsing legislation so contrary to the deep-rooted national traditions of free speech and individual liberty.

Cuban Debt Moratorium.

News that the Cuban Cabinet has approved a decree suspending principal payments on foreign bonds, held chiefly by Americans, has been received with considerable dismay. However, unilateral declarations of this sort have ceased to be unusual in this era of defaults and arbitrary alteration of the terms of contractual obligations. Assurances are at least given that the interest on the bonds will be regularly paid.

Moreover, the relief to the budget from release of funds needed to pay public employes may obviate a further political crisis more disastrous from the point of view of foreign bondholders than the present proceeding. In any case American investments, public and private, can best be protected by assisting Cuba to rehabilitate her economic system. Plans to stabilize the sugar industry, to which our Departments of State and Agriculture have been giving much thought, can do more than protests, coercion, or threats of intervention to safeguard American owners of Cuban securities against defaults which are intimately connected with the collapse of that industry.

Foreign Trade In 1933.

Our foreign trade figures for 1933, as released by the Department of Commerce, make an extremely poor showing both by comparison with the records of previous years and with those of other trading countries. The "dollar value" of our exports increased 4 per cent over the low total of 1932 but, on a gold basis, their value actually declined 19 per cent, as contrasted with a reduction of only 5 per cent in that of British exports and an estimated fall of 13 per cent for the world as a whole. The disproportionate loss experienced by the United States is illustrated in the fact that for the first time since 1914 our export trade has yielded first place to that of Great Britain.

There was some improvement in both our export and import trade in the later months of the year, following the general increase in business activity. However, the uncertainties created by an unstable dollar combined with the rise in domestic prices to neutralize to a very great extent the stimulus to exports resulting from currency depreciation. Moreover, such stimulus as dollar depreciation afforded has now largely spent itself.

The Department of Commerce notes that export trade last year was seriously handicapped by uncertainty arising from the fluctuations in the dollar. Foreigners hesitated to place orders while there was a possibility that further declines in exchange would enable them to buy more advantageously at a later date, and payments for goods shipped were delayed for a similar reason. With provisional stabilization now decreed, this element of uncertainty is eliminated, but there is no present prospect of a major trade revival so long as prohibitive tariffs, exchange controls and import quotas, along with rising domestic production costs under the recovery and agricultural relief programs, act as a barrier to expansion.

Substantial progress in expansion of exports, and in employment dependent on that recovery, obviously depends on clearing the blockaded channels of international trade, for which mutual action with other countries is necessary. The reciprocal tariff proposals of the Administration are not likely to provide any sudden or startling expansion in our export trade, but they are at least a constructive move in the right direction. The desirability of the pending tariff legislation, now awaiting action by the Senate, is emphasized by examination of the levels to which our foreign trade has sunk.

Pre-election Raids.

More half-baked legislation is usually crowded into the months immediately preceding a congressional election than into any other comparable period. The first primaries are a signal for the promotion of innumerable quack remedies designed chiefly to win the favor of various groups supposed to wield extensive political influence. Congress finds it very difficult to legislate intelligently during these anxious days. The public is always relieved when adjournment gives Congressmen an opportunity to advance their panaceas on the stump instead of trying to enact them into law.

Two years ago members of the House tried to manifest their devotion to favored constituents by advancing the veterans' bonus and the so-called pork-barrel measure. This year the same or very similar tricks are being played. The House cast a vote of doubtful sincerity for the bonus, and adopted the Dies bill as a sop to farmers and silver mining interests. Both chambers joined in overriding President Roosevelt's veto of the independent offices bill, with its special subsidies for veterans.

Both the Frazier-Lemke bill to issue currency against farm mortgages and the McLeod bill to pay off depositors in closed banks of the Federal Reserve System seem to fall in this category of pre-election measures. In other words, it is unlikely that they would now receive consideration primarily from the viewpoints of economic soundness or social justice. At this time the vote-getting propensities of a measure tend to outweigh arguments as to its soundness or practicability. Consequently, Treasury handouts are more popular than truly constructive legislation.

Administration leaders are properly nervous over this situation. The President's leadership may be put to a severe test. It is not a pleasant reflection that White House influence is necessary to prevent raids upon the Treasury before election day, but that seems to be the case.

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

THE FOUR gunmen—Frank Cirofici, Frank Seidenshner, Harry Horowitz and Louis Rosenberg—convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, New York gambler, paid the penalty with their lives in the electric chair at Sing Sing.

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD, JR., the well-known theatrical manager-producer of the "Follies," and Miss Billie Burke were married in Hoboken two days ago, it was revealed.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY.

DIPLOMATIC EXCHANGES between the Government of the United States and the Government of Japan and a survey of the situation by American officials convinced Administrative spokesmen that a very serious international complication would result from the Japanese exclusion provision of the Johnson immigration bill which passed the House by a vote of 322 to 71.

THE AMERICAN people are on the threshhold of a great struggle of the States to regain their lost rights and retain their present ones against the increasingly insistent encroachments of centralized Federal power, declared Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

A Modern Paul Revere.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Separate and seemingly distinct charges are made by two prominent persons: First, that the NRA has really failed to function, and, second, that men who are in a position to do so are deliberately adopting and applying methods that hinder recovery, with a sinister objective in view.

The disposition to "laugh these charges out of court" is not surprising. However, those who were present at the "basic code" hearing, or at the hearing on a specific code, if at all thoughtful, will more likely be in a reflective mood as they consider those charges which may be "key" pieces of an economic jig-saw puzzle. It is quite obvious to level-headed men in business that no man is a "stuffed shirt" because he is interested in knowing what that completed economic jig-saw puzzle will contain. Moreover, the man who yells, "stuffed shirt" may be the superlative "stuffed shirt," himself.

Incidentally, it seems strange that the head of the NRA legal talent develops a bad case of jitters over the Dr. Wirt case. It is possible that the "little educator" is a Paul Revere, 1934 model.

WALTER B. GODSALL.
Washington, April 10.

"Running Around in Circles."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The taxpayers and people of the United States should take notice and act accordingly on election day with regard to this New Deal or the present crowd of political know-nothings to whom we are paying large salaries.

As a world traveler, writer, sailor, business man, taxpayer, property owner and private citizen, living in Washington practically since the set-up of this Administration, I have talked to people in every one of the 20 or 21 A's or bureaus, particularly giving attention to the NRA, only to be told "they did not know what they were doing" or "they were running around in circles," and one fellow openly admitted "they were all half-crazy."

It is too bad that we have to pay all their expenses and salaries, because there are homes and institutions where they could go, and it would not cost us so much to feed them, or pay for official cars, office equipment, printing, &c.

I wish every good, honest American citizen and voter throughout the country could read this short, but very true, statement.

JAMES M. ROBERTSON.
Washington, April 9.

The Wirt Investigation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just written the Dr. Wirt investigators the following: "I hope you will let nothing hinder you from thoroughly investigating. Give Dr. Wirt all the rope he wants. Let no party enter and do no whitewashing because of your desires. America is nearing a brink. Hiding our heads in the sand does not change it. When you investigate, investigate. I have voted as many Democratic tickets as any man under 90 years in North Carolina, but for 12 years I have known of the Third International's intentions."

S. L. ROSE.
Goldsboro, N. C., April 9.

Placing the Blame

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was much pleased to read that one person, at least, realizes the necessity of starting to train the child from infancy in the paths of righteousness.

Yet I ask, how, in heaven's name, can parents train their children when they themselves are ignorant of life's meaning — when the cleverest deeds of the day are to get something for nothing, and to slide through life with the least exertion?

One cannot preach children into being honest; one cannot beat children into being honest. It is only the example of honest daily living and daily thought that will make children honest. When a child suddenly becomes a problem, no one blames the parents, yet if one stops to think, the guilty one is quite obvious.

D. A. says that the churches should train children in honesty—they ought to, by all means. But I would suggest that we start on the parents themselves.

A. J. SHANE.
Beltsville, Md., April 9.

Underworld Government.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Charles Hall Davis should at least indulge in a 5-inch shelf of Marx before he attempts to solve the mystery of Dr. Wirt's charges.

He might resign himself to the phenomena of American Government and know that the real Government is not in the White House or on the Hill, but in the underworld. In what other country do they spend millions of the taxpayers' money to persecute and spy upon harmless citizens who merely pick up a pamphlet of Marx or Lenin, or express an opinion that this is not the best of all possible worlds?

Can you imagine the Government spending millions to watch a handful of radicals while gangsters, dope peddlers and white slavers are allowed to work without danger of arrest? H. L. Mencken is right; this is the funniest place in the world.

WHOOZIZ.
Alexandria, Va., April 9.

A Tip for Mrs. Reynolds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mrs. Dick Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, says that she and her husband will have to find some way to use their great tobacco fortune—and as she so well expresses it—to some directed good purpose.

I want to speak for the community, and suggest to Mrs. Reynolds that developing air transportation by means of the new idea of the elevated site for flying fields, from Winston-Salem to Baltimore, is in line with the new spirit of the twentieth century.

Bare Hills, just north of Baltimore, is a natural site for such an air terminal, with a steel platform built over the top, and a similar steel platform on a hilltop at Winston-Salem will "tell the world" that we Southerners have solved the problem of air transport.

To fly from a high place is natural, safe and economical. It is the one thing needed to put air transport on a commercial basis.

EDMOND FONTAINE.
Ruxton, Md., March 9.

An Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an ardent friend of The Post for years I have been delighted to see its sales increase at our newsstands. It is well-deserved recognition and appreciation of a real first-class newspaper, both in its general news and editorials, always fair and well stated without abuse.

Post Lecture Series.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to add my congratulation to The Post and my appreciation for the excellent and highly instructive and informative lectures given during the past season on different countries of the world at the Masonic Auditorium. I consider them very educational, especially for those who do not have the opportunity or expense for personal travel to visit these countries and see for themselves. You are doing a great public service and, to judge from the attendance, the lectures are very popular. I hope you can repeat this service in the future.

ALFRED DIETZ.
Washington, April 12.

Welcome Back!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have returned to Washington after a long absence to find The Post so greatly improved that it seems like a different paper. May I say how much I admire the independent tone, and in the issue of April 9 the excellent editorial on Senator Carter Glass from Virginia and the criticism of other Congressmen whose one anxiety is to catch votes and the fear of not being re-elected.

WILLIAM HAYES ACKLAND.
Washington, April 9

Books for the Young.

The tractarian bent has all but disappeared from the children's books of today. Those written for the little ones in the nursery must be bright and amusing, with droll pictures. For youngsters of grammar-school age they must be packed with adventure and the triumph fo heroism. The just deserts of good and evil are insinuated in them by stealth and indirection; they are not omnipotently bestowed as they used to be in the tales which edified our forefathers. The Rollo books and the Franconia stories were almost the last of the juveniles in which children's disobedience and its fruit supplied the theme. And Jacob Abbott, who became pastor of the Eliot Church in Roxbury just 100 years ago, was somewhat in advance of his time. Solicitous as he was to illustrate the hard way of the transgressing child he knew enough of child nature to sweeten his moral doses with a good story. In an earlier generation the story had been only a peg upon which to hang a picture of the wrath which threatened the unregenerate infant. We get some idea of the general atmosphere in which the young grew up in Washington's old age in the account of Lyman Beecher's wooing. Lyman's idea of making his sweetheart grow fond was to ask her, "Are you prepared to rejoice even if God should damn you for his own honor and glory?" And so the light banter of love's young dream would be carried on between him and the fair Roxanna Foote during a long evening.

It is easy to imagine, then, that the contemporary books for children were not of a kind to help them to forget their place in the divine scheme. The good children in them died young—"not that they died the sooner because they were good, but, being good, they were the sooner fit to die." Going farther back to the beginnings of juvenile literature in America in the period of the witchcraft delusion, a primer for children warns them that if they are undutiful to their parents "God has reserved for them the blackness of darkness forever." And another unfolds the tale of little Anne Butcher, who "at the age of 2½ years would ask herself as she lay in the cradle, 'What is my corrupt nature?'" and answer out of her own precocious, infantile experience, "It is empty of Grace, bent unto sin and only unto sin, and that continually." A child of that stamp would surely grow up—if ever she did grow up—expecting to be made love to after the Beecherian formula, by catechism rather than soft pagan avowals of delight in her beauty. On the whole, the more one learns of the joys of childhood and of the way of a man with a maid in the good old times, the less is he disposed to sigh for their return.

The Post Impressionist

The Little Red Schoolhouse

Postoffice, Friday.

Sometimes the letters that reach this column seem to demand publication simply because they are so opposed to popular beliefs and our own notions. The Major's letters are almost invariably like that. And his latest is even more so than usual.

The Major has been reading Felix Bruner's articles in The Post, exposing the congested conditions—among others—of Washington's public schools, and, whereas he accepts Mr. Bruner's statements of fact, they do not alarm him. He has—at least, he says he has—been looking into the sad financial condition of American public schools in general, with particular reference to high schools; he admits that it is bad, but he might be almost justly described as being glad of it.

In short, the Major is opposed to the American public school—again with particular reference to the high school—as it recently was and as so many self-sacrificing educators are trying to restore it.

• • • •

"I have lately been elected," he red-flags us, "to membership on the school-board of your old home town, and you can bet you are going to see some changes in its school system, especially its high school, when you visit us again.

"All our American cities and most of our towns are public school crazy. . . .

• • • •

"There's a popular superstition," the Major declares, "that something or other inheres in American principles which gives little citizens the right to a free education. Well, there's nothing of the kind in American principles—not in the Declaration of Independence, or the Constitution, or anywhere else, except in the brains that believe it.

"Somebody got off the words 'Free Schools' sometime or other, and everybody else thought those words meant what they said. But our public school's aren't free; they're bought. They're paid for by taxes. And the price is exorbitant.

• • • •

"There isn't," says the Major, "a racket in this racketeered country equal to the public school racket. There isn't any other racket that the suckers have fallen so hard for, either. . . .

• • • •

"Look," he continues, "at the case of Cleveland, Ohio. I was reading about that in some magazine a while back—the Forum, I think it was.

"During the last 20 years, the number of pupils going to the Cleveland public schools has gone up 200 per cent—that's natural. But the cost of the schools has gone up 800 per cent—and that's a racket.

"The fellow who wrote this article in the Forum took a Cleveland tax-dollar. He told how part of every tax-dollar had to go for State support, part for county operation, part for libraries, and part for public schools. And then he told how the State, county, municipal and library shares of each tax-dollar, taken all together, footed up only 60 cents, while the public schools got 40! . . .

• • • •

"Cleveland's just typical," the Major asserts. "Where does the 40 go in the schools? Does it go into the children's heads? You know it doesn't! It goes into salaries for teachers to teach subjects that no child needs, wants or will be fool enough to learn—I could give you figures to prove how such teachers in Trenton, N. J., are better paid than professors nearby at Princeton. And it goes into hardwood floors for the children to scuff up. It goes into regular office desks for them to spill their ink on. . . .

• • • •

"Free schools!" the Major screams. "Except America, in all the least barbarous countries the free schools are just rudimentary. Even the more barbarous countries, like England, charge fees for public high school attendance. Except America, it's only the most barbarous countries that perpetrate the cruelty of compulsory education in inutilities, above the eighth grade.

"High schools! High prices—for the taxpayer! Did you ever see the list of things they pretend to teach nowadays in our old high school back home? Where, in heaven's name, did our high school get its name?

• • • •

"Or any other American high school, for that matter," the Major adds, just not to seem provincial. "What real service," he demands, "have our high schools ever done the United States? I should like to know the name of one man or one woman who ever achieved success by means of anything taught him or her between the last grade of a junior high and the modern high's diploma.

• • • •

"Washington, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit—all kicking about the deterioration of their public schools," concludes the Major, "and meaning by that the cutting down of the money they can spend on fads and fancies! If that sort of deterioration will only go on to the extinction mark, we may get back to the Little Red Schoolhouse. Then the teachers will know the things they teach; then the pupils will be learning things that will be useful to them, and then the taxpayer will have more money in his pocket!"

This attitude of the new school board member in our small town-of-origin has, we confess, bewildered us. It is no comfort to recall that, even in our young days of low school taxes, he always used to be inveterately in arrears with his. We know that what he now says is mistaken, but we hear that, in the rush for public economizing, there are many who share his views on education, and we don't know exactly why and where he is wrong.

Won't somebody help us to answer him—crushingly?

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

I KNOW of nothing more likely to add to the confusion, to the bewilderment, of those millions of us who these days are groping in the maze of life, stumbling, faltering, at times becoming frantic, again despairing of ever getting free from the chains of restlessness and discontent, than the reception at the Russian embassy the other night. It is as if the world's leaders were deliberately toying with us, baiting us and gleefully laughing at our dance.

Here was a philosophy, the communistic, that seemed to so many of us to offer the way out, to bring surcease to our pains of uncertainty and doubt. As I had come to understand it, it promised no material improvement to us underdogs but it did offer to remove our envy by eliminating the upper crust. It did not promise one any increase in salary, but it assured one that nobody else would get more than I do. As the way to contentment, therefore, it seemed to many of us the best way to go.

BARGERON.

* * * *

Then into this state of mind is projected that picture of the embassy party, such a party as would shame the kings and queens of pre-revolution courts or the best industrialist party givers in our land. Why, the party which Henry L. Doherty threw for his daughter that time was not a circumstance. The grandeur of the embassy, the ornateness of the trappings, the finery of the dress of the men and women guests—the vodka, the champagne, the cakes and caviar—I had considered all that the veneer of capitalist state, an unhealthy varnish which the Communists would remove.

I am lost, never have I been so befuddled, so enveloped in the fog of life. The ray of light which had been communism to me has given way to a blur. About me is the sense of futility, the feeling of utter defeat in seeking contentment through any of the things which our governmental planners present.

* * * *

It would be different even had the guest list been confined to the workers. Then it would have been sort of in the nature of giving us a peep at the promised land or of life's strawberries and cream. But it was not confined to the workers at all. Instead, there was only a smattering of them present, and in boiled shirts at that. The others, the greater part of the assemblage, were capitalists—capitalists whether they came from the Government or the newspaper ranks.

The capable young correspondent of the Daily Worker and his charming wife were there, but instead of resenting the class of their fellow guests of the profession, the journalists and the bosses, I understand they had the time of their lives.

* * * *

Of the Senators there were none of the friends of the proletariat, like George Norris there, but instead the buddies of the capitalists. Old Smith Brookhart got in, and according to my information, was, with his plain, every day attire in the assemblage of tail coats, the only one who looked and acted like a Communist.

The one thing that utterly baffles me is that the workers, instead of being disappointed at being thrown with the capitalists, seemed rather to enjoy this and resented only the fact that some of their fellow-workers got invited, too. I think the hosts of this occasion must have had in mind a cauldron of emotions and the resultant stew. They could not have intended that satisfaction and contentment of equality which I had understood the Communist philosophy to offer.

* * * *

There is no doubt in my mind that Communism will take a rap because of this party. To those of us to whom the philosophy had appealed the party leaves an increased uncertainty and doubt. There were too many conflicts there, too many things inconsistent with what had been held out to us to be the perfect state.

I know of no better way to sum up our plight, our despair, in fact, than with the words of the "communistic" Mr. Ray Tucker, of the capitalist-owned Collier's Weekly. Standing at the head of a pretentious spiral stairway, he observed the gathering and exclaimed:

"I am just a Bolshevik in a gilded cage."

$5,000 of Fund, Cannon Forgot Agent Testifies

Request for Cash Instead of Checks Related by Prober.

tional Bank of Blackstone, Va., the subject of Cannon's transferring his money to a neighboring bank was being discussed.

A broad grin spread over the bishop's face. He sat up in his seat and chuckled.

"I didn't get 4 per cent. That was the troouble!" he blurted.

M. J. Fulton, attorney for Miss Burroughs, poked him in the back, admonishingly, and the bishop subsided.

The Government spent most of the day building up its contention that the money transferred was "Jameson money," used later to pay the bishop's debts to an estate of which he was executor, and to make up part of a $12,000 loan to one of Cannon's life-long friends and fellow workers in "the movement against alcoholism."

Details of Gift Revealed.

Assistant U. S. Attorney John J. Wilson also drew from witnesses details of a $10,000 contribution to Cannon's anti-Smith campaign made by former Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, and in a heated exchange with defense counsel succeeded in telling the jury he would trace the money, also, to the Bank of Crewe, Va., the institution in which the bishop kept his now famous "executor" account.

With bankers and bank employes as witnesses most of the day, the trial dragged as the bishop's checks, notes, accounts and activities as executor of the estate of Mrs. Mary C. Moore, of which he was residuary legatee, were traced laboriously and over the incessant objections of the defense.

It was not until the Government, just before the close and with obvious design, put on Oliver, the Department of Justice agent, that the case against Cannon took on a lively tempo.

Bishop's Statement Related.

Questioned by Roger Robb, youthful assistant United States attorney, Oliver told of being assigned to the case in September, 1931, and of being present at a meeting here at which the bishop made a four-hour statement in his own defense.

Oliver told of Cannon's explanation of why he asked E. C. Jameson and other contributors to the anti-Smith campaign in 1928 for cash instead of checks.

"He said he didn't want that crowd down there to know anything about his business," the witness testified.

"What did he say about the use he made of the money?" asked Robb.

"He said he carried $4,000 or $5,000 around in his pocket all the time and paid individuals who worked for him. He said he would give them $200 or $500, as he knew it took money to run automobiles," replied Oliver, adding:

"He said he didn't want the courthouse gang to know these men were working for money."

Happened to Open Box.

Oliver said the bishop told of going to the American Bank & Trust Co. in December, 1928, to borrow $2,500 to pay a debt to the Citizens Bank & Trust Co. of Blackstone, Va.

After negotiating the new loan, the bishop happened to visit his safe deposit box on other matters, according to his statement as related by Oliver.

And in an envelope, he found $5,000 which he had "forgotten all about," he told those investigating his case.

Oliver also quoted the bishop as saying at the time he was "in somewhat of a hole," and as explaining that he drew cash from his own account to make certain payments "because if I drew it from the committee account I would have to report it."

The Department of Justice agent told of a subsequent meeting in September, 1929, at which Miss Burroughs appeared, lugging a heavy suitcase. According to Oliver, the conversation between Cannon and his former secretary ran somewhat as follows:

Cannon—"I thought I had taught you to travel light."

"Time About Up."

Miss Burroughs—"Well, the time is about up."

Asked by Robb what he thought Miss Burroughs meant by this cryptic remark, Oliver said he supposed it referred to the statute of limitations—two years—covering destruction of records.

Cannon, the witness said, agreed that the investigators could have all the records of the "Headquarters Committee, Anti-Smith Democrats," and any other papers or checks desired.

"He said he felt he had nothing to conceal," the witness explained.

"Were any records ever produced, however?" asked Robb.

"None whatever," replied Oliver.

A fortnight later, the Department of Justice agent said, Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs were indicted by the grand jury.

Play Politics, Says Butler to Veterans

Roanoke, April 12 (AP).—Gen. Smedley D. Butler and National Commander James E. Van Zandt of the Veterans of Foreign Wars last night urged veterans of all wars to stand united for favorable veterans' legislation and to "play politics" in order to achieve their objectives. They spoke at a veterans' rally sponsored by the Virginia Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"You veterans quit playing little politics. Your business is National," Gen. Butler advised.

Van Zandt urged the veterans to "turn the heat" on their Representatives in the National Legislature who have been voting against veterans' legislation.

Changes in Tax Law Irk Officers

Richmond, April 12 (Spl.).—Changes in Virginia's tax laws at the recent session of the General Assembly have brought headaches for commissioners of the revenue.

In many counties and towns they have been compelled to deliver their tax interrogatories twice, once during the session and again after the law was amended to make changes in the forms necessary.

The changes materially lessened taxpayers' exemptions and deductions, and they are having a financial headache along with the commissioners.

Walter Damrosch.

The first time I saw Walter Damrosch was in the spring of 1888, when he conducted Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony" in New York. He was young and handsome, though not so handsome as he is now. The first violin was Gustav Dannreuther. The first time one hears the "Ninth Symphony" is a tremendous event, and although I have heard it since in Paris, in Munich, in Philadelphia, in New Haven and in New York, that performance in 1888 is as vivid in my memory as if it were yesterday.

The first time I heard Wagner's opera, "Die Walkure," was at the Metropolitan Opera House in 1897; the conductor was Walter Damrosch, and the old reliable Emil Fischer sang Wotan.

Walter is the son of the famous Dr. Leopold Damrosch (1832-1885) who, born in Prussia, was a violinist and composer; as conductor of the Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra, 1884, he exercised a tremendous influence in arousing American enthusiasm for the operas of Wagner.

Walter was born in Breslau in 1862, came to America with his father when he was 9 and for 24 years was the director of the New York Symphony Society. He is the composer of two operas—"The Scarlet Letter" and "Cyrano de Bergerac." He used to conduct orchestral music to many thousands; now he conducts to many millions. As an interpreter of music over the radio he is unsurpassed, and it is pleasant to observe that at a time when many would believe their career to be finished he is doing the most important and the most interesting work in his long and happy life.

One of the most interesting autobiographies ever published in America is "My Musical Life," by Walter Damrosch. It is full of entertaining anecdotes. I recommend the reading of this book to the throngs of people who listen over the air to the music he conducts.

State Income Tax Drops $344,112

15,565 Virginians Pay Levy for 1933.

Richmond, April 12 (AP).—Income tax collections in Virginia dropped 344,112.59, in 1933, from the total of the previous year, the State tax department said today.

In 1932 the State received $866,121.89 in income tax payments, while last year the sum received from the same source was only $522,009.30.

The tax returns for 1933 show, the department said, that only 1,008 Virginians had incomes above $5,000; 1,043 had incomes of between $3,000 and $5,000; and 13,517 paid taxes on incomes of less than $3,000. Totals show that 15,565 persons in the State reported incomes within the tax range. The State's population is approximately two and a half million.

He Knows Little of Trouble if He Has None in His Home

By Robert Quillen

If you are like nine-tenths of your fellow citizens in these uncertain times, you consider yourself a victim of misfortune.

Perhaps you are. But the misfortune is relative, and the situation that causes you to bewail your hard luck might cause another to rejoice. In short, you may be spoiled.

If you have neither cancer nor tuberculosis nor any other incurable disease, you are one of fortune's favorites.

There are tens of thousands who would dance in the street and shout for joy if they had your sound body. And they would gladly sacrifice whatever fortune they possess and face the world without a job or a dollar if they could be whole again.

If you have no "family trouble" you were born lucky. There are millions who would envy you. They lie awake at night, unable to rid their minds of worry. Their days are passed in fear and shame and mental torture, and they have no peace at all.

What do you know of trouble if you have no tragedy in your home—no drunken husband to make your life a nightmare of dread and shame; no wanton wife to disgrace you and set the world whispering behind your back; no wayward son or daughter, wholly beyond control, out at night with the town's scum; no family quarrel that makes home a torture chamber filled with malice and cruelty?

You are a pet of the gods, too, if your conscience is clear. There are millions who salt their pillows with penitent tears or live in constant dread of exposure.

The lust for money has made us such snobs—desperately eager to keep up with the Joneses, so fearful of being regarded as failures—that we no longer appreciate our real treasures until we lose them.

The things that make life worth living are health and friends and a soul at peace, but few are wise enough to realize it until they are humbled by tragedy.

Tailor Misplaces Confidence In Strangers; Cost, $5,000

Roanoke, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—August Rex, former tailor, is resolved to look upon friendly strangers in the future with a wary eye.

Two men, who last week sought his acquaintance, are missing, along with $5,000 Rex had saved through hard work. Police, to whom the story was told, say it is another case of the old confidence game.

Rex told officers the strangers spoke casually of a desire to start a clothing business, and that he was interested in doing the same thing. Friendship grew. The men took lodging here and arrangements were made for Rex to get $5,000 in cash. The three planned to go to New York and invest in a wholesale ready-to-wear business.

Rex said he cashed a $5,000 bond and took the money to the rooms of his prospective partners. The men suggested delaying the trip to New York until the next day, Saturday, and advised Rex to take the money to a safety-deposit box in a local bank, which he did. The next day a further delay was suggested, so Rex took his package of money, so he thought, back to the safety-deposit box.

When the men failed to show up for a scheduled dinner meeting Rex became suspicious, went to the bank and discovered his package contained no money. The men had fled.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

The Stuffing of Dr. Wirt.

A bunch of the boys were whooping it up in a home near Washington,
The girls who plot out a nation's course were having a lot of fun
When out of the night, with inquisitive gaze, and into the din and the glare
There stumbled a doctor looking for facts, and wanting the when and where.

* * * *

He seemed like a fellow most anxious to know the how-come, the what-for and who,
And he drew up a chair and got himself set as fact-seekers often do;
There was none could place the stranger's face, but we gave him all the dirt,
And we shot the works with our Brain Trust stuff for the gullible Dr. Wirt.

* * * *

There's men that somehow just listen hard and seem to be in a spell,
And such was he, and he looked to me like a man who would never tell;
With a startled look all our dope he took with a long and solemn face,
As we gravely shot our Kerensky Plot all over the stuffy place.

* * * *

His eyes they widened to giant orbs and he seemed in a kind of daze
As we downed our drinks and spun our tales fit for motion plays.
A lady gay was spieling away; she was using a lot of gas,
And the doctor wiggled his ears a bit and acted as green as grass.

* * * *

He seemed in a spell and we all could tell it was silly to try to break it—
And he sat there until he had had his fill—My gosh! how that boy could take it!

Overlooked.

One of the things not cleared up by the Wirt inquiry is who mixed the cocktails and what was the base.

Success.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

THIS column today should be worth seventeen hundred times its weight in gold to each and every one of you. That is, provided you have a job.

For a little book has come in by Ray W. Sherman entitled "If You Want to Get Ahead" (Little-Brown, $1.50), which sets down with seemingly the greatest good sense in the world those advices, maxims and mottoes leading straight to a fatter pay envelope. If I propose to cull the choicest here and thereby push you into affluence while you drink your morning coffee, I beg off the responsibility of taking the place of the volume itself. No doubt you will want more explanation than I can give, as well as those cheerful anecdotes which prove theory in practice. For all this you must turn to the full measure provided by Mr. Sherman. I aim only at leading you to the well.

THEO. HALL.

* * * *

The horse-to-water paradox is as central in this book as it is in human nature. For one thing, you are pardonably likely to feel a bit sold when I tell you the basic formula for success which Mr. Sherman offers. It is nothing more nor less than this—"Simply DO the things you ALREADY KNOW you ought to do, and STOP doing the things you ALREADY KNOW you ought not to do."

Mr. Sherman surrounds that with illustration. I pass quickly on to "Some Simple Methods That Have Made More Money for Many Men."

Find a system, tiny notebook or jottings placed in a definite pocket, for remembering the things you ought to do. Every successful man has this device, consciously or not.

Chart a direct course, without detours, to the place you want to get to.

Most men stop learning as soon as school days are over. Keep stretching your brain hard.

In your job, "you may have to choose between rights and raises, and you can't pay rent with rights."

Cut out waste motions—Mr. Sherman even recommends that you count the number of motions it takes to put on your BVD's, and reduce them forthwith.

Organize yourself, then you won't worry—it strikes me a book could be written on that topic alone.

When you decide to make a change, "throw your hat across the creek" and commit yourself definitely.

If people don't think you are as good as you really are, dress and act the role you desire. Avoid bad mannerisms. "Talk like a money-maker; don't be a wise-cracker." But don't talk too much. It's harder to learn to keep your mouth shut than to talk—there's a maxim I could certainly recommend to one or two salesmen I've met.

"Never expect to find a perfect job."

"Don't be stubborn about learning from others."

"Do first the things that count the most; don't waste time on things that don't count."

If you want to "sell" yourself to your boss, learn his needs, interests, even his hobbies. Then address yourself accordingly.

"The easiest way to earn a dollar is not to spend it."

Mr. Sherman suggests certain "monuments," that is, little mottoes to hang up in the front of your head. Among them are: "Take the blame and pass the praise. When in doubt cut it out. Never chase a person that you want to come to you. The way to interest a man in you and often make him like you is to ask him to do something for you." And this one, from Edward S. Jordan, of the Jordan car: "If a young man starts out to be clever, he will have keen competition. If he starts out merely to be honest, he will have very little competition."

* * * *

I am quite aware that there is in all this a certain obviousness. And yet I am not far behind Mr. Sherman in realizing that this trite, fatherly advice is not to be sneered at. From the vantage of 30 years of all kinds of occupations he has watched the procession of average men, lean, inferior, wishful. Yet he says, with as much modesty for his counsel as one could ask, that 750 out of 1,000 men who actually carry out these suggestions will better their fame and fortune.

Retiring by nature as I am, you must not be surprised if my next communication is dated from the White House.

Schuler Starts Tercentenary Medal Work

Statue for St. Marys City Celebration Also Is Begun.

Baltimore, April 12 (Spl.).—The executive committee of the Maryland tercentenary commission has announced that Hans Schuler, noted sculptor, has been authorized to proceed immediately with his work on a tercentenary medal and huge "Freedom of Conscience" statue for the St. Marys City June tercentenary celebration.

The medal, to be executed in bronze and sold throughout the country, will bear full-length figures of Leonard Calvert, first Maryland Governor; Father Andrew White, Jesuit chronicler of the Ark and Dove expedition; Capt. Cornwaleys, builder of the first grist mill in the province; a flag bearer, and a seated Indian.

On the reverse of the medal will be the profile of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and the Maryland coat of arms.

Of Indiana limestone, 12 feet high, the "Freedom of Conscience" statue represents the figure of a youth emerging from a rocky background. It will be placed at the entrance of the parkway leading up to the memorial State House of 1676 at St. Marys City.

So large is the scale of the work that Mr. Schuler states it will take a year to finish. For the June ceremonies, however, he has assured the commission that a plaster statue done to scale can be placed there temporarily.

In special session this week, the executive committee heard reports from the following members: J. Spence Howard, Mrs. Edward Shoemaker, Miss Elizabeth Chew Williams and Swepson Earle.

Mr. Howard reported that the grounds in front of the State House had been graded and were ready for tree planting, and that the old-fashioned wall around the grounds had been completed. Furnishings for the building have been decided upon, Mrs. Shoemaker declared, and will be specially constructed by a noted Virginia cabinetmaker. Miss Williams' report stated that Calvert County had been added to the list of counties contributing $250 to the State House replica, and Mr. Earle expressed pleasure at securing the cooperation of the Cruising Club of America for the memorial regatta on St. Marys River in June.

Portsmouth, Va., April 12 (Spl.). Erroneous identification of the body of an automobile crash victim at Deep Creek Tuesday night resulted in announcement that the dead man was Willis Eastwood, of Wallaceton, when the man was Leslie Vernon Willoughby, 22, of Portsmouth.

Although the crash occurred Tuesday night, correct identification was not made until late yesterday, when Eastwood appeared and refuted the story of his "death."

Identification was made by members of the Willoughby family at a funeral home. Services will be held tomorrow.

Virginia Board Reveals Rules On Wine Trade

McLaughlin Is Named Secretary; Warehouse Space Obtained.

Richmond, April 12 (AP).—The Virginia Alcohol Beverage Control Board today named John T. McLaughlin, of Norfolk, secretary to the board. Mr. McLaughlin will assume his duties tomorrow, the board said. For seven years he has been secretary to the city manager of Norfolk.

The board also announced it had leased its first warehouse property today.

The property, for which the board signed a six-month lease with an option for another six-month period, is the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad freight warehouse here. The board will assume occupancy May 1.

Alterations Planned.

The railroad will install an automatic sprinkler system and make other alterations to adapt the property for the storage of whisky and other spiritous liquors. The base rent is $600 per month, to which $150 to cover the sprinkler system and alterations, will be added monthly for the first six months. After that time the board will pay the base rent and will have the privilege of canceling its lease on one month's notice.

The property will be used for the storage of hard liquor destined for sale in State dispensaries.

With warehouse space assured for the high-content beverages it is soon to handle, the board turned again to the complicated wine merchandising plan which has been devised.

Wine Rules Issued.

Rules covering the handling of the product are being drawn by the board and printed copies will be mailed to all licensees and all wine merchants listed with the board. The board, in announcing the plan today, urged that no transactions begin until after the first of next week, by which time the official texts of the wine ruling will be available.

Under the plan the board will designate suitable warehouses, assigning thereto its own special agents who will receive the wine, stamp the containers and handle the orders.

Salesmen for vintners, meanwhile, will be free to solicit orders which will be cleared through the board's office, on forms prepared by the board. License holders may order any brands they want at the best prices they can get. The only restriction is that no wine may be ordered shipped except through the board.

License Plan Told.

Each licensee will add 20 per cent to the price quoted him by the salesman for f. o. b. warehouse delivery. He must pay that 20 per cent to the board before his order is authenticated. Upon this payment the board will authorize shipment of the wine to the designated warehouse. The board assumes no responsibility for loss or breakage and the cost of handling, opening cases, stamping and etc., must be carried by the retailer to whom the goods are consigned.

When a shipment is received in one of the warehouses an agent of the board will receive, inspect and stamp every bottle. Each stamp will note the license number of the retailer. After this is done the wine will belong to the retailer to whom it is consigned and he is free to withdraw it from the warehouse as he pleases.

Peace Group Expects "War"

R.O.T.C. at Johns Hopkins to "Attend" Pacifist Parley.

Baltimore, April 12 (Spl.).—War is expected at the one-hour "peace meeting" at Johns Hopkins University tomorrow, when an anti-militaristic demonstration is scheduled by the pacifistic undergraduates.

In order to attend a meeting, the "war party" at Hopkins, which includes the students taking the reserve officers training course, has arranged with instructors for permission to leave classrooms during the meeting.

Students of the anti-war variety have not asked for permission to cut classes. They are staging, instead, a one-hour "strike" as a protest against war and military training, and will hold a meeting during the period. It is this meeting that the R. O. T. C. boys plan to invade.

Maj. Carl McKinney, in charge of the R. O. T. C. work at Hopkins, announced today he has given permission to students attending his courses to leave their classes without having absent marks noted against them.

The pacifists admit they have little hope of converting the embryo army officers to their cause. Instead, they admit they expect some little opposition—how much they do not venture to predict. There is a distinct possibility that fisticuffs might result from the "peace meeting," according to the sentiment on the Hopkins campus.

Pickets were maintained here during the strike and a few minor clashes occurred, but no serious trouble.

WHILE we were away our confrere said something pretty nice about Dickens and Shakespeare in this department, apparently, for we have found a letter from Palmer Brink, of the Northern Dramatic Co., thanking him for it. Mr. Dickens and Mr. Shakespeare might have written letters, too, had they been able.

Mr. Brink goes on to say that all this talk about the Northern Dramatic Co. going off the air is just a lot of stuff. He says he started the rumor himself because he wanted to find out what people think of the Northern Dramatic Co. anyway. Now, it seems, the rumor is sort of getting out of hand. But Mr. Brink isn't worried. On the contrary, he seems to be having a lot of fun.

"It was gratifying to find out how many people actually were interested," he writes. "We have had several inquiries as to the truth of the statement. Naturally we have not said yes or no, up to now. However, we are staying on the air here, and, starting next Sunday, the Northern Dramatic Co. will be heard on Sundays at 12:15 on Station WFBR, Baltimore, sponsored by the Rex Theater. The first program will be 'Oliver Twist.'"

It seems the Northern Dramatic Co. has to go over to Baltimore every time it wants to get sponsored. We can appreciate how unhappy that makes the Northern Dramatic Co. because it used to be that we had to go to Baltimore every time we wanted a decent glass of beer. It was pretty depressing.

The real reason, of course, why the Northern Dramatic Co. can't get a sponsor in Washington is because it has been playing around here for almost nothing so long that everyone expects it to keep on. Baltimore has never heard the Northern Dramatic Co. except through Washington's WOL.

But there's no use getting too bitter about it, for, as Mr. Brink says, "Oh well, as the saying goes, a 'man is without honor in his own country.'"

STRICKLAND GILLILAN, after-dinner funnyman, WJSV whimsy, never graduated from Ohio University, but the college's alumni association, no stickler for formality, elected him its president.

The news came last night while Strick, thinking of nothing in particular, was washing his hair.

"Strick," said his wife, "they've gone and elected you president of the Alumni Association of Ohio University (Athens, Ohio)."

Strick remembers vaguely attending a few classes there in his youth, but he can't understand why anyone should hold that against him after all these years.

"It's probably their way of showing their appreciation for my leaving so soon," he explained.

Strick refused to give an inaugural address, saying he's on to those things and, anyway, his hair needed washing.

The estimable Mr. Sullivan in the last issue of the New Yorker has written a funny piece about the fellow who strikes gongs around radio studios.

Out of the Pacific Northwest, looking a little frightened, comes Gale Page (above, to sing blue tunes with Frank Hazzard, Don McNeill, the King's Jesters and Harold Stokes' Orchestra on N. B. C.

We had been thinking about him for some time and yesterday got around to checking up. We found out that the machine age has practically swept the gongers away, if they ever really did exist, professionally.

Most studios are equipped with machines for striking gongs, though now and then an announcer will be found doing it by hand just to keep himself in trim for emergencies such as a break-down of equipment. Another example of technological unemployment, Mr. Sullivan.

The Interior Department has called on its former director of the National Park Service, Horace M. Albright, to do most of the talking on the next National Parks broadcast from WMAL tomorrow night at 10.

Mr. Albright is no armchair forester. Much of his life has been spent right out with the big trees. He has been known for years as one of the Nation's foremost conservationists. He resigned as director of the park service last August to enter private business, having served the department 21 years, ten of them as superintendent of Yellowstone.

Incidentally, Mr. Albright was born and reared right in Inyo County, California, a region of mountains and deserts very much like Yosemite and some of the other places he will romanticize in "Reminiscences of Parks and People."

The Marine Band will provide musical interludes.

WJSV has just had a baby . . . a baby transmitter.

It came the other day rather unexpectedly and seems to be doing nicely.

Rather large for its age, its portability threatened WJSV minds with a serious problem until Manager Harry Butcher happened to think of a baby carriage that hasn't been used in his family for some time.

Tucked in its carriage, the baby's waves will be tested for the first time when Bob Trout does his Friday the 13th broadcast with mirrors this evening. The waves, of course, are short.

Next job for the baby transmitter will be the Cherry Blossom Festival Thursday for which WJSV is planning some pretty thorough broadcasting beginning with the Japanese sunrise services and including the parade and the festival queen coronation.

Mrs. Roosevelt will do duty for the Nation's mothers at ceremonies attending the printing of the first Mother's Day stamp today. Postmaster General Farley and his third assistant, C. F. Eilenberger, will be the other speakers. WRC will make it a Nation-wide broadcast starting at 12:15 p. m.

It was just as we thought.

"Klondike of Nome," the singing Alaskan sled dog, doesn't sing at all. He howls, and a little off key at that. During yesterday's WMAL broadcast he was supposed to have been howling "Jingle Bells" and an Eskimo song.

News of Columbia's round-the-world transmission Wednesday probably should be suppressed as likely to give ideas to house guests whose notion of something funny is to make long-distance calls chargeable to their hosts.

The combined facilities of Columbia and International Telephone & Telegraph will be used to send the voice of I. T. T. President Sosthenes Behn around the world to C. B. S. President William A. Paley. Both gentlemen will be in their Manhattan offices ten blocks apart.

Goal of Columbia and I. T. T. is a new round-the-world transmission time record, now 4 minutes 10 seconds.

Rep. Will Bankhead Marks 60th Birthday

A cablegram from London, signed by his daughter, Tallulah, the actress, reminded Representative Will Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, that yesterday was his sixtieth birthday anniversary, the Associated Press reports.

Bankhead celebrated the occasion by shaking off an attack of lumbago which has confined him at home this week. The lumbago, he said, had eased up a bit.

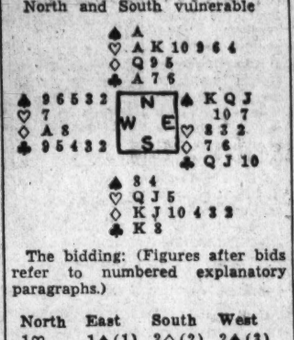
Bidding Opponents' Suit.

A bid that is greatly abused by many Contract players but is realy one of the finest bids available on hands of a certain type is a bid of an opponent's suit to indicate no losers in the suit and thus possibly point the way to a safely bid Slam, where the hand itself is strong enough and the bidding of partner has indicated that the strength held by one player will be complemented by strength in the partner's hand.

In a recent Duplicate game Mr. Leslie Coloney of New York was the only player to reach the makable Slam in the hand shown below because he used the Overcall in the adversely bid suit and thus gave his partner information relative to the continuance of the bidding. The hand was:

North, Dealer
North and South vulnerable



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

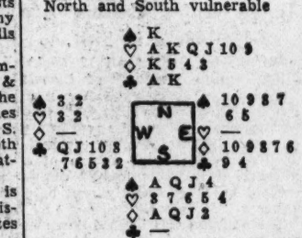
North	East	South	West
1♡	1♠(1)	2◇(2)	2♠(3)
3♠(4)	4♠(5)	5♡(6)	Pass
6♡(7)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—East, not vulnerable, seeks to erect a bidding defense against vulnerable opponents.
2—Inasmuch as this is a free bid, it shows a hand of greater strength than would a bid of two diamonds over partner's uncontested Opening bid.
3—With five trumps, the Ace of diamonds and the singleton heart, of course West is correct in bidding two spades.
4—North has a very fine hand and reads South's free bid as showing a diamond suit of at least five cards in length. Hence the Overcall of opponent's suit.
5—East decides to make it as difficult as possible for North and South.
6—At this point South had a choice of calls. This was the one actually made, but five diamonds would not be bad and neither could a pass at this juncture be utterly condemned. However, South reasoned that he had never shown heart support and, knowing that his partner had no spade losers, was perfectly willing to follow this road to Slam.
7—The choice of the Slam is quite close. Six diamonds is an alternative bid, and even though West does hold a singleton heart, six diamonds would be made as East could not be put in the lead to give West a ruff if he elected to open a heart.

In the play six were made without the slightest difficulty. East decided to open his doubleton diamond, and Mr. Coloney breathed a sigh of relief when East followed suit on the return. His troubles were over, for adverse trumps were drawn, the club loser discarded on the established diamond.

Tomorrow's Hand.

North, Dealer
North and South vulnerable



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Forced to Vacate Home, Man Seeks $20,000

Because, he alleged, his gas and electricity were cut off when he declined to vacate his home on less than a month's notice, John C. Robey, 648 I street northeast, yesterday in the District Supreme Court filed suit against Sarah H. and William B. Severe, 717 Eighth street northeast, for $20,000 damages.

Robey had paid his rent for the month of February, he said, but on February 26 he was ordered to move by the end of the month. Believing he was entitled to a longer notice, he declined to leave, and on March 3 his gas and electricity were cut off, the doors of the house were locked, and food and clothing were damaged by some one who forced an entrance, he alleged.

A New Year's Sequel: $10,000 Damage Suit

Nathan Herson, 1706 Seventh street northwest, yesterday filed suit in District Supreme Court against Weaver Bros., Inc., as operators of Meridian Mansions, 2400 Sixteenth street northwest. He asked damages of $10,000, citing an alleged assault upon him by the manager of the Sixteenth street apartment last New Year's night.

Canadian Grain Stock Shows Some Decrease

Ottawa, April 12 (AP).—The total stocks of wheat, oats, barley, rye and flaxseed in Canada on March 31 were in each case lower than at the corresponding rate a year ago, said a crop report issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The wheat stocks are approximately 36,900,000 lower, or 12 per cent.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Persons with Buerger's disease need not have surgical amputations if they will live properly and follow directions. Even if they develop gangrene of a foot or part of a foot it is safe to let nature take its course, provided the patient is properly guided. Nature is a better and a safer amputation for these cases than is a surgeon.

So far as the gangrene of Buerger's disease is concerned, the above advice holds true regardless of whether the gangrene is of the wet or of the dry variety.

These are the conclusions of Dr. S. Samuels. In the treatment of three hundred cases of Buerger's disease, he found it necessary to amputate only once, and the reason then was not exactly applicable to most cases. In that instance spontaneous amputation was proceeding with safety to the patient and with loss of the smallest possible part of the foot, as is to be expected in spontaneous separation of gangrenous area in Buerger's disease, but it was evidence that the stump left would be a bad one. Amputation was done really to get a good stump and not because it was necessary to save life or to spare tissue.

What Dr. Samuels designates as proper treatment of Buerger's disease with gangrene in order to do away with the need of surgical amputation is as follows:

First—Rest in bed. The patient must go to bed and stay there until the physicians advise otherwise. The legs must be held horizontal all the time. This is vitally necessary.

Second—The use of tobacco must be stopped. It is rather generally known that using tobacco is especially harmful for persons with Buerger's disease. Nevertheless many people disregard advice and continue smoking in spite of the danger. If gangrene develops orders to stop tobacco should be enforced.

Third—Dr. Samuels injects one-third of a quart of a 2 per cent salt solution into a vein every other day. This treatment is started as soon as the diagnosis is made and without waiting for gangrene to develop. The interval can be lengthened after treatment has continued for a while.

Fourth—The gangrenous area should be washed in an antiseptic footbath and dressed with sterile dressings.

Fifth—If there be pain in the affected gangrenous area, anesthetic ointments should be used locally. In some cases the pain may be great enough to demand pain relievers internally.

Has Nose Bleeds.

A. L. writes: I am a boy 20 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches, and weigh 145 pounds. I work as a polisher in a rhinestone jewelry factory. Lately I have been getting quite a few nose bleeds. Can you tell me the cause and the remedy?

Reply.

Boys and girls 20 years of age and less are very prone to have nose bleed. As a rule it is of little consequence in adolescents. I have no way of knowing what causes your nose to bleed. As a rule, polishing has hazards, but if the rhinestone jewelry polishing business has any special hazards I do not know of it.

Colitis.

E. S. writes: I have been advised that I am suffering from a chronic mucoucolitis condition.

1. What is the cause?
2. Can it be cured by dieting?
3. Is it seriouh?

Reply.

1. Among the causes are a neurotic temperament, spastic colitis, chronic constipation, the use of enemas and purgatives.
2. Some cases are cured by proper living patiently observed. This includes avoidance of the cause, developing calm, overcoming constipation by diet and habits.
3. It does not threaten life. It does cause colicky pain, discomfort, and inconvenience.

Wooing Sleep.

A. H. writes: I am a girl of 19. I find it very hard to fall asleep. Could you tell me what this is from? No matter how early or how late it is that I retire it is always the same.

Reply.

If you will go to bed thoroughly relaxed physically, mentally, and emotionally you will go to sleep. Physical fatigue promotes sleep. Going to the movies, excitement and emotionalism prevent it.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

It Makes a Dog Laugh

When Mr. Man got home with no bear, no turkeys, no gun, no hunting vest and mighty little breath, Mrs. Man wanted to know what on earth was the matter with him. "The—matter—is—that Blackie—Bear—and—some—of—those—rascally friends of—his—got—my—gun—and my—vest—and—my—turkeys—while—I was asleep," said Mr. Man, with a long breath between each word, for he was so tired he could hardly talk.

Then after he rested a bit and got so he could talk better, he continued: "When I found that he had my gun and my shells, I was so afraid he would shoot me that I ran myself most to death to get out of the reach of that gun."

Then he told Mrs. Man all about shooting the turkeys and stopping at the spring for lunch, and taking a smoke and a nap after lunch, and waking up and finding that all his things had been stolen. You have heard of things being "funny enough to make a dog laugh?"

Well this was one of those funny things, and Rover Dog, who had been lying in the corner behind the stove all day, because he had such a bad cold from getting wet the day before, just had to laugh.

Rover Laughs Out Loud.

At first he just snickered a little, and then when Mr. Man told his wife that while he was running home a rabbit jumped up and started down the path in front of him, and that the rabbit ran so slow Mr. Man had to kick him out of his way—when Rover Dog heard that, he just had to laugh out loud.

That made Mr. Man mad, and he started to kick Rover out of the kitchen, but Rover came up and licked his hand, and told him he wasn't laughing at him for running from whoever had his gun, but was laughing at the rabbit for letting a man out-run him.

Rover would lots rather tell a story than go out from his warm corner, and Mr. Man would rather believe that Rover was laughing at the rabbit than at him, and so he let Rover stay in his corner.

After supper, Mr. Man and his wife talked a long time about the troubles of that day, and they didn't know what in the world they were going to do without a gun.

The foxes could catch all their chickens, the possums could eat all their grapes and persimmons, the coons could eat all their roasting ears, and Blackie Bear—that very fellow that had his gun—could get his fattest pig or sheep.

Really it was awfully bad. They talked about it a long time, and then went to bed, without once thinking about leaving Rover Dog shut up in the kitchen.

Whipporwill is Out Nights.

And what do you think! Whippoorwill never goes out in the day time, but he stays out all night, and Jay Bird had asked him to go over to Mr. Man's house and hear and see all he could, and come back to Blackie's house and tell all the party about it.

So Whippoorwill had been sitting on the doorknob all this time, and peeping in and listening through the keyhole.

He saw them go to bed and leave Rover Dog locked up in the kitchen, and he knew that Mrs. Rover Dog and the puppy dogs were all gone off for a week's visit, and so there wasn't any trouble around Mr. Man's house for anybody that wanted anything from the barnyard that night.

So, when Whippoorwill got back to Blackie's house, what he told them made every single animal there and all the birds, too, laugh and hop and skip. For once, they all knew where they could go and get just what they wanted without getting into any sort of trouble.

They took all the bags and buckets that Blackie had, for they expected to bring back more things to eat than they had ever before.

Jocko said that Mr. Man had a tree full of the biggest apples that he ever saw, and so he took along a big bag. Well, it came out just as Mr. Man had told his wife it would do; for Blackie Bear did get a fat pig. Doctor Coon got a big turkey. Billie Possum got the biggest, reddest rooster he had ever seen, and Who-Who Owl got a big white hen. Doctor Coon wasn't satisfied with a turkey, but went into the garden and filled his bag with sweet potatoes.

Mr. Man and his wife and Rover Dog slept on and didn't even dream of what a good time the Crock Folks were having that night, all because Mr. Man went to sleep.

"Jig Saw" Cast Familiar on Both Stage and Screen—England Loses an Artist

Principals Are Equally Gifted In Both Fields

Seen Recently in Pictures; Sir Gerald's Last Call; Theater Notes.

By Nelson B. Bell.

In foraging about for a few vagrant notes with which to adorn this space, one comes upon a surreptitious item anchored securely to the one inescapable spot on an otherwise cluttered desk by that crafty publicist, Mr. Ned Holmes, pertaining, of course, to "Jig Saw."

"Jig Saw," it can hardly have been forgotten, is the new play to be given its world premiere in the National Theater on Monday night, April 23, the date upon which Panjandrum Stephen E. Cochran previously decided for the opening of the tenth season of his National Theater Players. Unless they hit upon something else they feel like doing, this will be the final production of the season by the Theater Guild of New York.

We look with some skepticism upon these announcements of "final productions" by the Guild for good and sufficient reasons.

Failure Changed Minds.

It seems that the Theater Guild had decided to call it a season when "Races" was produced in Philadelphia a few weeks ago. "Races," however, never got to the Broadway races, in a manner of speaking, and the Guild, probably no end miffed by the failure of this anti-Hitler drama to roll serenely into New York, plunged at once into rehearsals of this "Jig Saw," a comedy by Dawn Powell.

Miss Powell last season authored her first play, "Big Night," which the Group Theater, an ambitious offshoot of the Guild, produced—just as it did "The House of Connelly" a few seasons ago, thus bringing Franchot Tone to the fore as a young actor of exceptional promise.

It must be judged from the importance of the cast the Theater Guild has engaged for "Jig Saw" that this artistic and astutely commercial organization deems it a play of some consequence. Ernest Truex and Spring Byington, as has already been made known in these dispatches, head a cast that includes Helen Westley, Elliott Cabot, Gertrude Flynn and Cora Witherspoon—all good Theater Guilders, tried and true.

What They've Done.

Ernest Truex, if memory serves, was last seen here exactly one year ago in Edouard Bourdet's "Best Seller," with Peggy Wood and Ian Keith, at the National. Miss Byington, to the best of my recollection, has not been seen in person locally since "When Ladies Meet," also at the National. Helen Westley is best remembered for her performance in the role of Frau Lucher in Robert Emmett Sherwood's "Reunion in Vienna," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne.

All three of these able players, however, have since permitted their shadow images to regale Washington audiences on various screens. Mr. Truex was in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of "Whistling in the Dark," with Una Merkel—well, maybe not that, exactly, but you get the idea!

Miss Byington offered a complete surprise by the charm of her portrayal of Marmee, with Katharine Hepburn in "Little Women," and Miss Westley, more recently, appeared to fine advantage with Constance Bennett in "Moulin Rouge."

If the observation does not come too late in these remarks, Philip Moeller is directing "Jig Saw" and Lee Simonson has designed the stage settings and costumes.

The executives of the Loew organization in Washington yesterday afternoon staged a marathon preview for the benefit of the local dramatic desks. At 2 o'clock in the private projection room at the Fox Film Exchange, "Stand Up and Cheer" was unfurled, this being the pseudo-political spectacle formerly known under the working title of "Fox Movietone Follies." Immediately following this all-star musical, "Nana," Anna Sten's first American vehicle, was unwound. Wednesdays being what they are in point of deadlines and official duties, this department met with complete and overwhelming success in not being able to get to either one, so particularization will have to come later.

An Artist Passes.

Current news dispatches of the death in London yesterday of Sir Gerald du Maurier are of especial interest to Washington at just this time.

By an odd coincidence, "Catherine the Great," the British-made film, costarring Elizabeth Bergner and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., of which the local showings have been postponed innumerable times, opens at RKO-Keith's today. Sir Gerald du Maurier is importantly cast in the role of Lecocq, confidential adviser to the Empress in this picture. Next to the junior Fairbanks, Sir Gerald's assignment is one of the most engaging allotted any male member of the cast.

Sir Gerald du Maurier, 61 years of age, was the son of George du Maurier, famous artist of the celebrated English comic magazine, Punch, and author of the novel, 'Trilby," dramatized and played with great success in this country with the late Wilton Lackaye in the role of Svengali, a part played not so long ago on the screen by John Barrymore, with Marian Marsh in the title role.

Sir Gerald received his knighthood in the New Year's honors of 1922. His was one of the most distinguished careers in the English theater, his accomplishments having embraced acting, directing, playwriting, legitimate production and extensive work these latter years in pictures.

In the fall of 1927 we were unimportantly implicated in the formal opening and dedication of the Stanley Theater in Baltimore, the then largest and most ornate temple of the titillating tintypes operated by the Stanley-Crandall Co., of Washington—since absorbed lock, stock, barrel, target and all the shells by Warner Bros.

Last night the ceremonies attending that gala fall evening in 1927 were approximately re-enacted in celebration of the return of the Stanley to Warner management after a long period of operation by Loew's, Inc.

The rededicatory bill was headed by the Warner picturization of Al Jolson's stage hit, "Wonder Bar," with Al present in person to lend the occasion a little glamour, just as he was here, a week or so ago, when "Wonder Bar" opened at the Earle. A considerable delegation from Washington looked in on the resurrection of the Warner name plate.

Maxine Matriculates.

Authoritative word finally comes from the West Coast concerning the present activities of Maxine Doyle, former mistress of ceremonies at the Earle and now a Warner Brothers contract player being tossed around into various spots all in the name of experience.

As has been rumored from time to time, Miss Derle is now appearing in the Mayan Theater, Los Angeles, Calif., in Olsen and Johnson's stage production of "Take a Chance." The piece opened a week ago tomorrow night, Friday, April 6. The present engagement marks the first appearance of Olsen and Johnson on the Coast in something over two years.

A cast of 70, "headed by Lillian Miles, Maxine Doyle, Florine McKinney and Johnny Downs, supports the stars in the piece," for which Vincent Youmans, Herb Nacio Brown and Dick Whiting wrote the music and Lawrence Schwab and Buddy de Sylva the book.

Some time, if she isn't careful, Maxine may find her way into a picture!

Come to think of it, Maxine wrote me many weeks ago to watch for her in "Baby in the Icebox." It will, however, avail nothing now to watch for that title. There is no picture at the present time known as "Baby in the Icebox." There is, though, a picture called, "She Made Her Bed," opening at the Columbia tomorrow, that was adapted from James M. Cain's story of "Baby in the Icebox" and used to be called that. So we shall see what we shall see—if anything. The way things have been going, Max probably once again was left on the cutting room floor. Early life in the fillums is like that.

Last Song.

Cantor Joseph Rosenblatt, who was well known in Washington by reason of his many personal appearances here, went to Palestine to take a leading part in the talking picture, "The Dream of My People," to be shown for the first time in the Capital in the Masonic Temple Auditorium, Thirteenth street and New York avenue, on Saturday and Sunday from 3 to 11 p. m.

He died the day the picture was completed. Earlier that day, the voice that the Jewry and the entire world so loved had sung its last song. It is recorded in the score of "The Dream of My People," a picture of history, religion, romance and music, interpreted, but not primarily spoken, in English.

Manager Stephen E. Cochran of the National Theater departed the Capital yesterday afternoon at 3 to browse further up and down Broadway and a few bypaths off the main stem in the interest of perfected plans for the opening of the tenth consecutive season of his National Theater Players late this month. When it comes to getting what he wants to put on a show, Mr. Cochran leaves no stone unturned—which is much better than leaving no turn unstoned, as anyone will tell you.

Spring Song.

Another way to make it last is to put the coal on the furnace with bon-bon tongs instead of the scoop!

Opening Today and Tomorrow

Delinquent Income Tax Drive Ordered

Only 64,094 Returns Are Made in W. Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Officers and field agents of the State tax department have been directed by Fred L. Fox, State tax commissioner, to launch a drive May 1 for the collection of delinquent State income taxes.

Fox says that not more than half of the persons liable have paid the tax. So far only 64,094 returns have been received, bringing $552,814.29 into the State treasury. The tax, which has aroused much opposition because it is based upon gross instead of net incomes, requires the payments of 1 per cent upon all gross incomes over $600, with exemptions of $1,000 for married persons and $200 for each dependent.

Fox has ordered the collection of penalties with the delinquent taxes. These amount to 5 per cent of the tax for the first 30 days and an additional 1 per cent for each subsequent 30 days.

State Conventions Pick Clarksburg

Four Groups Will Convene During May.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Arrangements have been made to hold several conventions here in the near future, bringing many delegates and visitors from all parts of the State.

The fifty-fourth annual convention of the West Virginia State Council of Religious Education will be held May 1-3.

The Knights of Columbus will open its annual convention May 7.

Plans for the annual convention of the West Virginia Laundrymen's Association, which will open May 11, are in charge of Isaac J. Coston, of Clarksburg. The annual meeting of the West Virginia State Dental Society will be held May 21-23.

Foreign Note Struck in New Theater Bills

"Alien" Plays and Players Come to Our Screens and Stages in Numbers.

Reproduced from yesterday's last edition.

For another week, beginning Monday, April 16, the Shubert-Belasco Theater will hold solitary sway in the field of living drama, the National will be dark and Col. Jimmy Lake will furnish the only light musical entertainment in town with his burlesque offering, further resuscitating the career of "Bozo" Snyder at the Gayety.

In the temples of the celluloid drama, two long-awaited films will be placed on view for the first times locally today and tomorrow and a rousing musical will continue on lower F street the run so brilliantly begun on Thirteenth.

Such, briefly, is the outlook in the Capital's downtown sector as a new amusement week is about to swing into action.

* * * *

"The Green Bay Tree," a play by Mordaunt Shairp that has been succesful on both sides of the Atlantic, is the attraction announced for the week beginning next Monday evening at the Belasco. It relates a story of struggle between a youth, his father and his fiancee on one side and his foster-father on the other. The drama, which is a work of some delicacy, is said to be enacted with discernment by a capable cast led by Paul McGrath, Robert Wallsten and Mary Arbenz.

* * * *

Beginning with Sunday's regular matinee performance, the Gayety will present Bozo Snyder and a new company in a return engagement. In this all-new show, the chief comedian will be supported by Bates and Hunt and the sensational Fritzie Bey. Bozo will feature his celebrated "Paper Hanger" and "Theater Scene" specialties, which are among the funniest burlesque can boast.

* * * *

Beginning today at RKO-Keith's Theater, Washington at last will be privileged to form its own appraisal of "Catherine the Great," the British-made historical drama, dealing with the Russian Empress whose name it bears. The principal roles in this period play of imperial Russian court life are assumed by Elizabeth Bergner, one of the most gifted of contemporary actresses, and Douglas Fairbanks, jr. The production is a pretentious one and the supporting cast includes many celebrated names. "Catherine the Great" was made under the same auspices as "The Private Life of Henry VIII" and promises to be as great a hit in America as its predecessor.

* * * *

Also opening today, at the Rialto, is "Glamour," Universal's picturization of the Edna Ferber story of the same name. This subject is declared by those who have viewed it to preserve with rare fidelity the distinctive flavor that the author of "Show Boat" and "The Royal Family" always gives her novels, short stories and plays. The principal roles are taken by Paul Lukas and Constance Cummings, supported by Philip Reed, Joseph Cawthorn, Doris Lloyd, Alice Lake, Yola D'Avril and numerous others. Short-reel supplementaries will complete the bill.

* * * *

A new face and a new talent will be revealed to Washington picturegoers at Loew's Palace tomorrow when Anna Sten, protege of Samuel Goldwyn, will be seen for the first time on a local screen in an elaborate film rendering of Emile Zola's novel of "Nana," a tale of the 1870s. Richard Bennett, Lionel Atwill, Phillips Holmes, Mae Clarke and Muriel Kirkland are foremost in the support of the young Russian star, whose preparation for her American screen debut has consumed almost two years. A "Silly Symphony" cartoon comedy, short subjects and the Metrotone News will augment the program.

* * * *

Fredric March, in Paramount's picturization of Alberto Casella's stage play of "Death Takes a Holiday," will be the major screen feature of the bill opening tomorrow at the Earle Theater, with the Landt Trio and White, NBC radio harmony group, headlining the vaudeville. Mr. March, cast in a role which he deems his best since "Dr. Jekyll," will be supported by Evelyn Venable, Sir Guy Standing, Kent Taylor, Gail Patrick, Helen Westley, Henry Travers and numerous others. Additional stage acts will be supplied by Chester Fredericks, youthful comedian and dancer; Nelle Kelly and Ferry Corwey. Universal News, with Graham McNamee, and C. Frederick Clark's orchestral contributions will round out the entertainment.

* * * *

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy comprise the romantic partnership to be seen for the first time tomorrow in "Men in White," principal screen feature for the new week at Loew's Fox Theater. The stage's headline offering will be the Long Tack Sam Troupe of Chinese artists, familiar to Washington's vaudeville enthusiasts. "Men in White" is the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer camera version of the successful stage play by Sidney Kingsley, still running in New York. The supporting cast is led by Jean Hersholt, Elizabeth Allan, C. Henry Gordon, Henry B. Walthall and Otto Kruger. The stage bill also will embrace acts by Mells, Kirk and Howard, knockabout comedians; Prof. Lamberti, in piano capers, and the dance novelties of Betty Jane Cooper and the Lathrop Brothers. The program will be augmented by the Fox Movietone News and Prof. Lampkin's interesting orchestral interludes.

* * * *

"Wonder Bar," adapted to the screen from Al Jolson's stage success, with Jolson still in his original role, continues its downtown run at the Metropolitan, beginning tomorrow. This fabulous musical melodrama enlists the services of a large group of stars, including Ricardo Cortez, Kay Francis, Dolores Del Rio, Dick Powell, Henry Kolker, Guy Kibbee, Louise Fazenda, Ruth Donnelly and Robert Barratt. Busby Berkeley's choral and dance effects are stupendous and the final number, "Going to Heaven on a Mule," is worth the admission price all by itself. An elaborate auxiliary bill will surround the feature.

* * * *

The strange kaleidoscope of an auto tourist camp, with all its adventure, excitement and variegated personnel, supplies the locale of "She Made Her Bed," coming to the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater, beginning tomorrow, with Sally Eilers and Richard Arlen in the co-stellar roles. Robert Armstrong, Roscoe Ates, Charles Grapewin and Grace Bradley comprise the supporting principals in this film version of James M. Cain's story of "Baby in the Icebox." News events, comedy and short subjects will be added.

* * * *

"The Dream of My People," a talking picture of the new Palestine, combining history, religion, romance and music, and featuring the late Cantor Joseph Rosenblatt, will be shown on Saturday and Sunday from 3 to 11 p. m. in the Masonic Temple Auditorium, New York avenue at Thirteenth street. The picture was filmed in the Holy Land for distribution in America and England. The running story of the action is delivered in English.

Straight From the Studios

Paul Lukas and Wynne Gibson to Costar at Universal; Joan Blondell in New Type of Stellar Role; Glimpses of Hollywood Pageant.

Reproduced from yesterday's last edition.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, April 11.—Paul Lukas and Wynne Gibson are to become co-stars, and will appear in a picture called "I Give My Love," under Universal auspices. It is to be a very dramatic and romantic affair. Interesting is the fact that Scarpitti, Italian sculptor, who recently made a statue of Mussolini, is also to do one of Miss Gibson which will have a prominent part in the picture, and which makes it seem a reminder of the "Song of Songs," in which Marlene Dietrich was sculpted.

EVALYN KNAPP.

"David Copperfield" Castings.

Castings in "David Copperfield" are again being heard of. This time it is the more mature role that seems to be pretty definitely set. I understand that Sir Guy Standing will play the role of Edward Murdstone, and William Faversham that of Dan Peggotty. Elizabeth Allan is the only one so far cast in the picture. She plays Copperfield's mother.

Buck Jones In Serial.

Universal has given a long-term contract to Buck Jones, under which he will do a 15-episode serial, followed by a series of adventure story films. These pictures will not be Westerns, the studio announces.

Jones is one of the few big Western stars left in pictures. He will taken Ken Maynard's place on Universal's next year's schedule, since Maynard has completed his contract and gone to Europe. Eight cowboy movies are planned.

Joan and The Fleet.

Interesting and out of the ordinary is the fact that Joan Blondell may be seen in a production called "Miss Pacific Fleet," written by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan. The story is what the title implies. The heroine is a pet of the sailors. Miss Blondell has not done this type before. The selection, while not definite, looks likely.

Picture Pageant Now Passing.

Warner Brothers yesterday added another story to their film schedule. It is called "Window Panes," and was written by Harry Sauber. It tells a story about the romance of a society woman with a working man.

Evalyn Knapp will enact the feminine lead in Tim McCoy's next picture, "Fire Patrol," which tells the thrills in a city fireman's life. Ward Bond and Dewitt Jennings are also in the cast.

J. Carroll Naish has been assigned to an important role in "Hell Cat."

Ronald Belgard will collaborate on the screen play of "The Captain Hates the Sea," with Wallace Smith, its author.

Jed Kiley, former newspaperman, yesterday received assignment to work on the screen treatment of "The Criminal Within."

Lupe Velez may go back on the stage. Negotiations are now on, it is understood, which may cause her to appear in "Roberta." In this show she will take the place of Lyda Roberti, who is ill at the present time.

Edward Everett Horton must bring Ernst Lubitsch luck, else he would not so regularly join the casts of that directory. Horton is to play the Ambassador in "The Merry Widow," which is important as a comedy role.

Dog-Cat Row in Store Brings Police.

Danville, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—A dog engaged in a fight with a cat early yesterday morning in Gourley's grocery store on Watson street alarmed neighbors who thought the store was being robbed.

A call was sent for police and a radio call to all police cars sent three of them to find that during a hectic chase many of the goods in the store had been knocked over.

Portable Property Not Part of Land

Judge Rules Cabins Are Builder's, in Suit.

Winchester, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Judge Philip Williams of Circuit Court for Frederick County here has decided that portable cabins do not become a part of the real estate on which they are erected, the decision resulting in the return of a number of portable tourist cabins erected on land recently sold here under a foreclosure.

The decision was handed down in the case of Mrs. Mattie J. Mee against Mrs. Emma Barrett. The former owned a cabin camp near Winchester which was sold under a deed of trust several weeks ago, Mrs. Barrett purchasing the property. Mrs. Barrett claimed that the portable cabins on the land became her property and Mrs. Mee sued to recover.

Judge Williams also assessed costs of the case against Mrs. Barrett.

Mrs. Elizabeth Price Dies at Hillsboro

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m. from her late residence, with interment at Hillsboro Cemetery.

Virginia Signs Gas Contracts

Conflict of State Laws and NRA Puzzles Officials.

Richmond, April 12 (AP).—Henry G. Shirley, chairman of the State highway commission, has announced that the American Oil Co. of Baltimore has contracted with the State to supply gasoline for road work in 86 counties for another 6-month period. Approximately $250,000 is involved.

The contract settles, at least until next winter, a question of procedure which has puzzled State officials and oil company executives.

The State, by law, must buy on a flat rate price submitted in bid form. This, some oil company executives believed, was a violation of certain terms of the oil company code under the National recovery act. They sought to bid for the State's business on a discount from the tank wagon price and asserted that in no other way could they sell the needed fuel.

No definite ruling on the point has been made by NRA authorities, Shirley was told. The period covered by the contract begins next Sunday. A similar contract has been made with Motor Service Oils Co., of Appalachia, to supply gas for the work in five counties.

Nice Gaining G.O.P. Support In State Tour

Western Maryland Young Republicans Indorse Candidacy.

Hagerstown, Md., April 12 (Spl.).—Harry W. Nice, campaigning western Maryland for nomination as the Republican gubernatorial candidate, has won indorsement of a number of Young Republicans.

Those who have announced their support of Nice in Washington County include Dr. H. E. Tabler, of Hancock, recognized as the leader of the Young Republican group; Ellsworth K. Roulette, city attorney, who is also expected to announce his candidacy for circuit court judge; Lancelot Jacques, jr., president of the Young Men's Republican Club of Washington County; A. K. Coffman and Robert G. Foltz, of the State central committee, and Delegate Ernest W. Miller.

Republican politicians are watching Nice's tour of Allegany County, where it has been reported that the support of former Mayor George Henderson of Cumberland is being sought. Henderson has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

Republican leaders see at least one person in Nice's way in H. Webster Smith, who told the Young Men's Republican Club of Washington County several weeks ago that a "hand-picked, organization" candidate for governor could not hope to win. Smith is said to have the support of former United States Senator William P. Jackson, Thomas Parran and others.

Luray, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Karl Shifflett, aged 21; Robert Rush, 19, and Harry McInturff, 22, in jail here awaiting transportation to Richmond, where they will begin serving 18-month sentences for the theft of an automobile from Lindsay Lawler, of Luray, Shenandoah Valley lumber dealer, must be tried in Harrisonburg on several similar charges before beginning sentence.

The decision was reached by Rockingham County officers, following a consultation with Maj. Youell, of the State Penitentiary. The youths were removed to Harrisonburg today. The youths pleaded guilty to all three charges in Page County Court.

Hagerstown, Md., April 12 (Spl.).—Mental examinations for Hagerstown policemen, adopted several months ago, has been dropped on orders of the board of street commissioners.

Dr. Perry F. Prather, police commissioner, was outvoted when the question was brought before the meeting. The commissioner was the one who recommended the adoption of the examinations, but since its adoption the personnel of the board has changed. Commissioner Dudley Brewer, who made the motion to abandon the mental examination, said he felt that a high mark in the examination did not necessarily qualify a man to become a good policeman.

Under the regulations, only persons meeting certain age and physical requirements were eligible for appointment to the police department.

Embassy Tea Guests View Film History

French Ambassador and Mme. de Laboulaye Are Reception Hosts.

News-Reel Scenes Shown Reviewing Events of 20 Years.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Yesterday afternoon the Ambassador of France and Mme. de Laboulaye entertained at a tea and reception followed by the showing of a film made in France.

The guests were received at 5:30 o'clock by Mme. de Laboulaye, assisted by her two young daughters, Mlle. Marie Therese and Mlle. Agnes, and the ladies of the embassy staff. The hostess wore a smart frock of black satin trimmed with touches of white. Mlle. Therese wore a frock of pale powder-blue crepe, and Mlle. Agnes a printed chiffon of bright blue and white.

Tea and refreshments were served, and at 6 o'clock the guests gathered in the large drawing rooms to see the film "From Wilson to Roosevelt," a compilation of newsreels showing for the benefit of the people of France the close relations of the American and French nations during the past 20 years.

Views of the President.

Outstanding events of the war and post-war periods, of the administrations of Wilson, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, and a few highlights in the year of the Roosevelt regime, held the interest of the guests for an hour.

Among those glimpsed during the tea hour were the Ambassador of Spain and Senora de Cardenas, the Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos, the Minister of Rumania, Mr. Charles A. Davila, and the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service and Mrs. Hugh S. Cumming.

Mrs. William Duncan Herridge, wife of the Minister of Canada, arrived just before the showing of the film. She wore a smart gown of black corded satin and a small black hat.

Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom were present, as were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Feis, Mr. and Mrs. William Franklin Sands and Count Fumasoni-Biondi.

The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace attended, the latter wearing a costume of black, relieved with trimmings of terra cotta crepe, and Mrs. Truxtun Beale in a gown of black-white print with handsome silver fox furs. The Undersecretary of State and Mrs. William Phillips were accompanied by their debutante daughter, Miss Beatrice Phillips. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend were present.

Mme. Lombard, wife of the Military Attache of the embassy, wore a suit of navy blue with a wide-brimmed hat to match, and charming Countess de Leusse, wife of the Attache of the embassy, was in black.

The Ambassador of Poland, Mr. Stanislaw Patek, entertained at dinner last evening in the Embassy in honor of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

The guests included the Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Marquez Sterling, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, the Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos, the Minister of Rumania, Mr. Charles Davila; Senator and Mrs. William H. King, Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mr. Louis Wiley, of New York; Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Feis, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Blair Bannister, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Packer and the members of the Embassy staff.

Miss Willets Becomes Bride Of Mr. Jenkins

Couple Wed in New York Will Reside Near Warrenton.

The ceremony was performed in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church by the rector, the Rev. Dr. G. Paul T. Sargent, assisted by Dr. Endicott Peabody, headmaster of Groton School.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her godfather, Mr. Lewis Nixon, was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a gown of silvery-white lame fashioned on straight lines with a high neckline, and a series of tiny buttons down the back. The very long train fell from the waistline, and the voluminous tulle veil was draped from a coronet of the material of the gown. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and white pansies.

Small Brushes For the Face Stimulate Skin

Improving Circulation, They Help Cure Enlarged, Coarse Pores.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THERE IS SO far no NRA code governing the activity of oil glands in the skin. But each woman should frame her own and see she lives up to it. Many complexions are marred by these glands working overtime, and draining the pores, causing them to become coarse and enlarged.

Declare they must only work a normal length of time, and take measures to see they obey. One splendid means is afforded by a superfine complexion brush. Its mild abrasive qualities stimulates the skin and promotes good circulation. With normal functoning of the glands, pores regain, or else retain their invisibility, and in turn the skin is clear, firm—and above all, youthful looking.

The brush is made from fine white bristles noninjurious to delicate surfaces. A cellophane jacket keeps it absolutely sterile from the time it leaves its laboratories until unwrapped.

It should be brushed very lightly over the skin with a circular motion. Starting at the chin, work upwards, around the cheeks, over the forehead, and between the brow line. It is important to brush under the chin and around the throat. For, as a certain beauty specialist said at her recent lecture in Washington—a woman should consider her face as begining at the low V of the throat, extending out over her shoulders, and up to the crown of her head.

Proof Against Invitation.

These new alarm clocks are fortified against the wrath of irate awakeners They're inclosed in sturdy metal cases with unbreakable crystals.

When imperturbable hands point to the hour of 7, and the resounding clang screeches the time, no hurling of shoes or nearby stools, nothing short of turning off the alarm, will effect the proper quietus.

These clocks are available in all colors, from deep rose to light green. They're priced at 79 cents.

Blush Easily?

Match boxes are perking up for spring. A Connecticut avenue shop has some that fairly scream with brilliant colors.

But that's the least of it. Each box is decorated with a French print, apt to bring smiles, giggles or blushes—but unfailingly amusing!

Stationary Oysters.

A downtown store offers a unique service Oyster, crab flake or fruit cocktails served in ice-filled bowls frequently become too unsteady in their niche to permit of easy eating. But here at the store a hostess may have little wire frames made to fit any of her bowls and cocktail cups so they will stay nicely in place from the time they're served till the time they're removed. These little frames fit around the cup, and over the sides of the bowls.

Immovable Mascara.

A new mascara which stays put through tears, laughter and April showers, won't smudge, streak, or smart.

The woman who invented it is known in this country and in Europe for her wide variety of excellent products. Referring to her new mascara, she said: "It is truly a gentlewoman's lash tint." Because, she explained, it does not give a person that "made-up" look—the principal reason why so many women avoid mascara.

"But now they have one which is natural and soft on the lashes, and gives them a silkly and lustrous look. It may be used with perfect confidence that it will only accentuate the natural charm," she declared. "And, by the way, it is easy to tell a woman's age by her eyelashes and eyebrows, for with age the lashes begin to fade and lose their luster."

So women in their late thirties should begin to use a natural tint to maintain the youthful appearance which is theirs by rights.

The mascara is made on a cream base so it will promote the health and growth of lashes. There is no danger it will ever become brittle and cause the lashes to break off.

An odd but clever invention is the ornamental top for cigarette packages of 30. It consists of a painted design under a glass cover. This is fitted with a metal frame which clamps over the top of the cigarette box.

Sportsmen Like These.

A shiny chrome aeroplane lighter would be the delight of a sportsman's heart. There's one in a local gift shop that works with mechanical sureness. One twist of the propeller and the top of the cockpit flies open, revealing a small flame. When the top is pushed down, the flame is automatically extinguished.

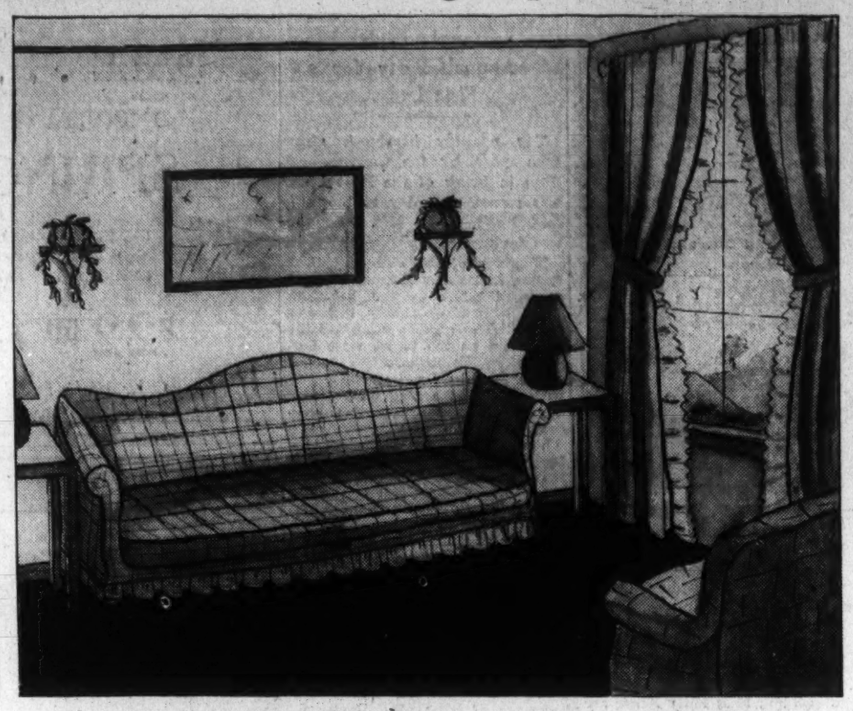
Cotton Appears in Decorating Field And Colors Things up Considerably



Gay Shades and Rough Textures Their Claim to Fame.

By Jo Ellen Maxson.

DOES your house need a color tonic? Then go to the dress material counters for inspiration.

Cotton, a leading fashion note for smart spring clothes, has entered the decorating field. No more anemic-looking draperies and slip covers after glancing over the new waffle-weave cottons in brilliant blues, greens, yellows.

Plaids are having a fling. They bring piquancy into a jaded room with their gay colors and rough textures. Stripes, anything from pin stripes to the peppermint-stick kind are smart. And dots! They are large and bold, sprinkled around the season's decorating schemes like confetti.

On refreshing, original living-room has a color scheme worked out from a green, yellow, orange and white Scotch plaid. The sofa is slip-covered in it; and, by the way, have you seen the new slip covers, tailored to fit any measurements, with zippers up and down the sides so the covers can be zipped off and laundered or dry cleaned with the minimum of difficulty.

The plaid cover on the sofa is box pleated and bound in green. The draperies are of yellow pin-striped chintz with two rows of loose pointed ruffles of green and white. They are held back with deep cuffs of the yellow chintz.

Plaids, Stripes and Dots Make Splashing, Bold Patterns.

A rug of deep moss green gives a smart accent of color to the floor, and brings out the note of green in the plaid chintz.

A comfortable armchair is slip covered in jonquil yellow cotton matelasse . . . a material with an interesting, nobby texture. Beside the chair a small table, conveniently placed, holds a dull green pottery lamp with a shade of starched yellow muslin and smoking accessories in gay Italian pottery.

Two ladder-backed chairs flanking the arched doorway have seat cushions of green and white striped gingham. These are held securely in place by ties at the corners.

Miss Maxson will be glad to give help with decorating problems. If your letters have not been answered, call NA 4205 for an appointment, or write her in care of The Washington Post.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

Dried Beef, Creamed Heretofore, Appears Now in Sandwiches.

By Susan Mills.

QUANTITIES of dried beef are consumed by quantities of people, but almost always in the creamed condition. It seems unfortunate more sandwiches are not made with this suitable substance.

This is not a dried beef drive, but a few recipes that bring to you the merits of beef might relieve sandwich monotony in your own home.

Sandwiches made of dried beef range from the dainty morsels you serve with tea to the hearty portions you serve for after-the-theater supper, or mid-day luncheon.

Here are some of the many varieties:

Tomato-Dried Beef Sandwich.

Dried beef sandwich filler is made on toast cut in triangles and topped with a sweet pickle. For the filler take:

2 cups hot tomato pulp, strained
3 tablespoons flour, moistened
½ pound cheese, grated (2¾ cups)
¼ pound dried beef, ground fine (1 1-3 cups)
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Add moistened flour to hot tomato pulp and cook in double boiler 15 minutes or until very thick. Add cheese gradually, and stir until melted. Remove from fire, add dried beef and seasonings, and allow to cool before spreading on bread.

Dried Beef Sandwich.

6 hard cooked eggs
1 cup dried beef, chopped fine
¾ cup salad dressing
3 small sweet pickles

Grind eggs, dried beef, and pickles in meat grinder. Mix well and add salad dressing to form a paste of the right consistency to spread.

Spread one slice of bread with butter, the other slice of the sandwich with the above mixture. Insert a bit of lettuce for crispness.

Savory Sandwiches.

1 cup ground American or pimiento cheese
½ cup dried beef
½ cup tomato soup
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
2 teaspoons minced onion
Toast

Put together through a meat grinder all the ingredients except the soup. Add the soup, mix well, and spread between slices of buttered toast. Cut in finger-lengths, and place on lettuce leaves to serve as a luncheon sandwich. This mixture may be placed between thin slices of bread and used for tea sandwiches.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN
The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 25¢ at drug stores.

Refuse "something just as good", for it may gripe, loosen teeth or scald rectum. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. ©1933, C. M. Co.

What Today Means

"Aries."

If April 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:25 a. m. to 12:25 p. m., from 3:25 to 5:25 p. m., and from 9:25 to 11:25 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:25 to 8:25 a. m., from 1:25 to 2:25 p. m., and from 6:25 to 8:25 p. m.

You will exercise very good judgment if in your social contacts, religious discussions are not entered into.

If April 13 is your birthday, give more thought to the serious side of life.

The child born on April 13 will develop into a sweet, generous, but rather temperamental youngster.

BACHELOR—of ARTS

By JOHN ERSKINE

The Story Thus Far.

Alec Hamilton, Columbia freshman, has three purposes in life—to be worthy of the Phi Phi Phis, to escape the clutches of Gladys, college widow, and to marry Mimi. The latter has just entered Barnard when her father loses all his money. But instead of going home, Mimi gets a job as cashier in a drug store, where Alec immediately becomes a steady customer.

After an unexpected windfall from his father, he announces to Mimi that they can marry at once. Later he decides that it is more important to buy a yellow roadster in which to take her riding. This makes Mimi angry, and she tells him that he is an irresponsible baby. Alec, hurt, is an easy prey for Gladys. She scoops him up, and does not let him go until the car has been sold. When he returns penitent to Mimi, bad news is waiting for him. Woolsey, the bachelor professor, has been camping on her doorstep—every day.

"If I were a man and anything worried or frightened me, I'd face it quickly. I'm sure if you don't face it quickly, you'll get into the habit of not facing it at all."

* * * *

The one elevator, that slow moving cage, with room for four people if they held their breath, was vaguely sliding up and down somewhere beyond call. Alec did not wait for it. When he reached the top floor he was out of breath.

"Come in!" He opened Woolsey's door. The rangy, slightly gaunt figure was slouched in a chair by the desk.

Woolsey motioned to a chair, a plain kitchen chair, not comfortable.

"What's your problem?"

"I'm not getting on very well here."

"Are you doing your work?"

"Pretty well, sir."

"But not well enough, eh? I doubt if I can help you, Hamilton—it's up to you."

"Not entirely, sir," Alec objected. "I'm willing to study if I know what it's about, but these courses mix you up if you put your mind on them."

Woolsey frowned. He was old enough to have heard this from several generations of freshmen. He wished youth weren't so conventional. Some one ought to invent a new complaint.

"What courses are you taking?"

"English and math——"

"Let's stop there. What's the matter with them?"

"They don't get anywhere, sir. I've had a lot of English. But that's all right—I'm used to it. I can write 500 words an hour—that comes to only eight and one-third words a minute. The math's hard, but that's all right, too. I've always flunked math. I'm taking a lot of history—American——"

Alec's Voice Falters.

As he spoke his voice faltered. When he had resolved to face Woolsey, he had forgotten that he must bring some conversation with him. He really hadn't set in order the items of his errand, and he really had no errand, except that he wished to look Woolsey over.

Woolsey kept boring at him with his steady gaze.

"I thought—well, I thought you might give me some advice."

Woolsey sat up a little straighter in his chair, and leaned forward.

"You have other teachers. Why did you come to me?"

"The fellows speak of you, sir. I—I wanted to know you, and they said—I mean, I thought—you'd be the one who could help."

"Have you talked to the dean about this?"

"He blows me up for not working."

"The usual obstacles to industry," Woolsey went on, "are the fraternity, cards and girls. Some of those who dread study avoid the danger by getting drunk. You don't look like that type."

"Not girls, sir. I know one fine one—and there's another, but I don't like her. She doesn't count. The fraternity is rather a help, wouldn't you say?"

"Miss Stoltz is a fine girl."

Alec had to recall who Miss Stoltz was. He had dreamed of her only as Mimi. "How'd you know?"

"She has mentioned you. She worries about what you are doing—or aren't doing. May I ask, did she send you to me?"

Alec had never in his life felt so mortified.

"She doesn't know I'm here. I don't think it was quite right for her to discuss my affairs with a stranger!"

"Don't take it wrong," said Woolsey. "You wouldn't have minded if you heard what she said. She admires—what you could be. She's afraid you are loafing on your job. As a matter of fact, I asked the dean what you were doing and his impression coincides with hers. He likes you, too. He and Miss Stoltz will both be sorry if you flunk out and neither of them thinks it's necessary."

Alec stood up, but not to go. He wanted to talk on his feet.

"Prof. Woolsey, you don't understand my case at all! That's the way college is. The professors don't understand! What business is it of yours to tell her I couldn't value her attention. She knows darn well how much I think of her."

"How have you showed it?"

Temper Regained.

Alec got back his temper. I asked you for help about my course. I can't discuss my private affairs. The fact is I love her. She knows darn well I do! I'm disappointed in her. She shouldn't have discussed me with you."

Woolsey took out his cigarette case and offered it. "Sit down. Have one?"

"No, thanks."

Woolsey lighted his cigarette, and took his time about it.

"I understood that you loved her, or thought you did. From my point of view you're rather young, not yet formed—in fact, Hamilton, I think you're a cub and she's a remarkable woman. I love her myself, do you understand? I asked her to marry me."

Alec's knees weakened under him. "Is she going to?"

"She says not. She turned me down. She loves you. It was only because she loves you that she worried over your loafing."

Too bewildered to make a sensible answer, Alec struck out impulsively. "If a man really loved a woman, he'd go out after her and get her!"

"That's one method," said Woolsey. "I haven't given up hope. I may get her yet—after you convince her that she thinks too highly of you."

Alec walked over to the window and looked down at the lower floors of Kent Hall across the street. He could see people moving about in the rooms. They seemed strangely casual and placid, unaware of the tremendous words, the deep passions, which were inclosed for the moment in this plain office of Professor Woolsey's. How much could happen within bare walls, with just a bookcase and filing cabinet and two chairs and a desk!

He turned and faced the gaunt man.

"She doesn't think too highly of me, sir. I'll prove to her she doesn't!"

"All Right, Prove It."

"All right, prove it!"

Alec started toward the door. "I ought not to have come to you for help."

"Why not?"

"Well, if we both want her——"

Woolsey smiled. "I've given you your chance, Hamilton, but it's not out of affection for you. She believes you're going to be a great man, from which I conclude that she's very badly smitten. But if you get on the job now, push ahead with your work, and make something of your life, then she's right, and you win. I'm in something of a jam. You asked my help, and being a teacher, I have a silly notion I ought to give it—so I've given it. Naturally, if you insist on being a complete ass, and flunk out of college, I may perhaps console myself."

For Alec this talk was getting to be too much.

"Good-by." He stuck out a nervous hand. Woolsey held it in a firm grasp.

"Drop in any time, if you like."

Alec took himself in a daze to his section of Contemporary Civilization, and being five minutes late, annoyed the young instructor, who was just launched on a demonstration of the debt of ancient Greece to still more ancient Egypt. To avoid climbing over a row of legs, Alec took a seat in the back of the room. The lecture did not penetrate his consciousness. He realized once more how monotonous can be the professorial groan, and from his position in the room behind the last letters of the alphabet he had an unusually good view of the resources of his fellows against insidious ennui. When he sat where he belonged, among the H's, he missed a lot, since the front letters were under the teacher's eye, but in the last row the fellows drew pictures in their notebooks, or read novels behind broad backs, or, in one instance, carried on a friendly game of chess with a pocket board.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 3 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

11 Candidates Vie for D. A. R. Vice Presidency

Club Federation's Poetry Contest Open Three More Days.

AT last, an organization where the vice presidency doesn't go begging! This is the present situation confronting delegates to the National D. A. R. Congress, which opens in Constitution Hall Monday morning. With one-third of the 21 vice presidents to be filled this year, 11 candidates loom to add interest to the contest. Usually there are barely enough applicants to fill the places.

"The choice this time," says Mrs. William Dunn, publicity chairman of the organization, "will depend upon the estimate of work accomplished during the year by these condidates, coupled, of course, with their personal popularity."

The candidates for the seven offices include the following retiring regents: Mrs. Frank J. Bowman, Illinois; Mrs. Sydney Perry Cooper, North Carolina; Miss Minnie M. Dilley, Minnesota; Mrs. Fred F. Gundrum, California; Mrs. Bessie Carroll Higgins, Iowa; Mrs. Zebulon Judd, Alabama; Mrs. Julian B. McCurry, Georgia; Mrs. William P. H. McFaddin, Texas; Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, Indiana; Mrs. John Y. Richardson, Oregon; Mrs. Henry Zoller, jr., Maryland.

This will be followed tomorrow by a meeting of the National board of management, to be held in Constitution Hall. Membership of this administrative group consists of National officers, vice presidents general and the State regents.

Three Days to Go.

ONLY THREE days are left for contestants to send manuscripts to the Poetry Contest being sponsored by the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs.

The committee on poetry have issued the following rules:

The poem shall not be over 100 lines in length.

The subject shall be "What Women Have Done." This would include any poem about women of note, or what women have done through the ages.

Poem shall be unsigned and accompanied by a sealed envelope containing the poet's name and address. The outside of the envelope will bear only the title of the poem.

Contestants may offer more than one poem.

Contest is open to all women of the District of Columbia.

Poems shall be mailed to Mrs. Willard E. Buell, 1431 Parkwood place northwest, chairman, poetry contest for 1934, not later than April 15, 1934.

No manuscript will be returned to the author unless accompanied by a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Judges for the contest are Dr. Emily F. Maddox, Miss Anna M. Priestley, and Mrs. Edith Mirack.

Three prizes are offered, the gifts of Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the local federation, and Dr. Maddox. First prize is $15, second prize, $10, and third prize, "Washington Sonnets."

Prizes will be awarded at the annual meeting of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hotel Roosevelt on Friday, May 11.

Legion Woman Speaks.

THE National vice president of the American Legion Auxiliary, Miss Anna M. Manion, will be guest speaker on the broadcast over WRC today at 12:45 p. m. She will deliver her message to all auxiliary members of the District of Columbia Department. Mrs. Anna Yago McGuffy, contralto, will sing, accompanied by Mary Mathews Taylor.

At 8 o'clock tonight, there will be a mass meeting and entertainment at the Marine Barracks, Eighth and I streets southeast, in honor of Miss Manion, one of the speakers of the evening. Others to be on the program are Col. Rice W. Means, commander of the American Legion, Department of the District of Columbia, and Father Robert J. White, National chaplain.

At a dinner tonight, celebrating Jefferson's birthday, the Woman's National Democratic Club will have as its guest of honor, Mr. R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State, who has made a lifelong study of Jefferson. The dinner will be given at the clubhouse at 1526 New Hampshire avenue.

Mrs. Aleta B. Baker, of Boston, founder of the Order of the Portal, will be guest speaker at the Monday bridge-luncheon at the Congressional Woman's Club on Monday. Her subject will be "The Mysteries of the Mind."

F. F. V.s Hardy Pioneers, Contrary to Usual Idea

"THEIRS was the courage which made this Nation possible," says Mrs. Henry Lowell Cook, above, head of the Order of F. F. V.'s, defending them.

President of Order of First Families of Virginia Maintains They Were Men of Courage and Initiative, Not Merely Blue Bloods.

THE FIRST FAMILIES of Virginia were not only blue-blooded aristocrats, they were also red-blooded pioneers. And their descendants have set out to prove that fact.

Long denounced as unwarrantedly "snooty," and ridiculed by members of other linear organizations as being the progeny of worthless younger sons, adventurers, and gold seekers, the descendants 22 years ago established a distinctive order, the Order of the First Families of Virginia.

This organization, composed only of descendants of those colonists who settled in Virginia during the period between 1607 and 1620, and headed by Mrs. Henry Lowell Cook, of Chicago, is holding its annual convention here beginning tomorrow. The purpose of the group, according to Mrs. Cook, is to preserve the traditions and ideals for which the early Virginia colonists lived and died.

Men of Courage.

"The colonists who settled Virginia were largely English veterans of the Spanish Wars," Mrs. Cook said yesterday. They spent their lives working to extend the British domain and to break the hold which Spain had on world commerce and colonization. They were men of courage, vision and initiative who crossed the ocean, "in order that a plantation should be settled in Virginia for the glory of God."

Mrs. Cook explained that Virginia in Colonial days extended all along the Atlantic coast, and that the term "First Families of Virginia" does not necessarily mean those families who settled in what is the State of Virginia today.

"At no time," she explained, "did the early Colonists abandon their settlement. In face of almost insurmountable obstacles, a gentility averse to parading either it's virtures or adversities established a civilized community in an uncivilized land.

"There were no other English people or friendly white inhabitants elsewhere on the continent; yet surrounded by savage enemies, handicapped by lack of supplies, weakened by the unaccustomed climate, the settlers never deserted. Those men were no weaklings. Neither were their families. Theirs was the courage which made this Nation possible, theirs the perserveance which established a permanent Government in this country."

The Carters, Harrisons, Eppses and Claibornes were among the prominent families who came to America between 1607 and 1620, according to Mrs. Cook.

Descendants Are Leaders.

"These families intermarried with other families who came in later colonies," she said. "And their descendants have been leaders in civic and State affairs throughout the history of this country. Many of our governors, presidents, and generals trace back to them."

Mrs. Cook asserted that honoring one's ancestors meant more than remembering them, it meant living up to the standards they had set.

Other officers of the organization are: Vice presidents, Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, of Washington; Mrs. John W. O'Leary, of Lake Forest, Ill., and Dr. Addams Stratton McAllister, of Washington; recording secretary, Mrs. James Sutton Blair, of Indiana; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles Tillman Harris, of Washington; treasurer, Mrs. Everard Robinson Todd, of Washington; council members, Mrs. Robert G. Hogan, of Maryland; Col. C. Wickliffe Throckmorton, of New York; Mrs. Warner Moore, of Richmond; Mrs. Nathanial Beaman, of Norfolk; Miss Myra Hazard, of Mississippi; Mrs. Gross R. Scruggs, of Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. Benton H. Pollack, of St. Louis, Mo.

Fancy Cocktails Get the Ladies, Say Authorities

Heads of Cafes Declare They're Chiefly Interested in Color.

WOMEN are sentimentalists when it comes to drinking liquor. Fancy names and pretty colors usually mean more to them than content. But with bargain-hunting proclivities and feminine curiosity as their guides, they bid fair to outstep their brothers in discriminating choices.

This symposium of opinion comes from 25 cocktail room captains, liquor store operators and cafe managers interviewed on the subject yesterday. All confessed they had run the gamut of feminine interrogation during the past seven weeks since repeal.

Asserting the average woman selects her cocktail because of sentimental associations, Austin Peterson, manager of Child's Gingham Club, with a twinkle in his eye, describes the process.

"A woman goes down the cocktail list as though the selection of a drink were her life work. Invariably, there is the flutter of an eyelash at the word Orange Blossom. She gives further pause to such names as Old Fashioned, Paradise and Pink Lady. Then she ends up by taking a dry martini or a whisky sour."

As to their bargain-hunting tendencies, "Ed," salesman at Auerback's Liquor Store on Fourteenth street, has this to say:

"Quantity and low price are what women look for at the liquor store. Saturday afternoon, women comprise the majority of the liquor store customers, so we have to offer bargains on that day to please them. Preferring mixtures to straight drinks, they are content with whisky blends, if they get enough of it for their money.

Don't Ask for Bonded.

"With the hundreds of women customers who have purchased liquor since repeal, I have never heard one ask for bonded whisky It isn't cheap enough. Men, on the other hand, always call for bonded stuff if they have the price. They drink it straight and know the difference."

Discriminating? Feminine curiosity makes them just that, when they come to a liquor store, counter-challenges Manager A. H. Berman, of the Famous Brands, Inc., on H street. Catering to feminine patronage always keeps a stock of complimentary novelties on hand for women customers.

"Women are never ashamed of asking questions about liquor," he said. "They want to know everything there is to know before they make their purchases. Consequently, they are finding out more about the better class goods than men will ever know. The fine Bacardi rum and imported vermouths are purchased in greater quantities by women than men. Cocktail parties, taking the place of teas, are turning women into true connoisseurs."

Love of variety prompts women to sample all the new concoctions offered in the cocktail salons, according to proprietors. But first, they must know the contents. Between sips, they analyze and question. They leave knowing the recipe.

Fancy names, pretty colors, mysterious blends are also a challenge to the feminine imagination, and, to a certain extent, guarantee the popularity of those operators who cater to women's trade.

Says M. Quispel, captain of the attractive Willard Hotel Bamboo Room:

Go for Artistic Drinks.

"Women are becoming our best customers. But we have to serve them artistic drinks. If a cocktail is at once beautiful to look at and pleasant to the palate, our women patrons are satisfied."

D. G. Lam, manager of the Lotus Club, finds women also appreciate flavor. Women patrons at his place order Old Fashioneds more often than any other cocktail, he says.

"That is because it is sweet and flavorful," he explained. "Women are partial to sweet, light, aromatic drinks. They prefer mixtures to straight liquor. For that reason, they are our best cocktail customers."

Huge Brimmed Hats Prevalent

Arrayed in One of These, Even the Plainest Is Devastating.

It was not Maud Muller's expert handling of her rake that caught the judge's eye. It was the way she looked at him from under that big hat.

For, undeniably, there is something about a broad-brimmed hat that can help any woman "get her man." It matters not if the hat is of the simple, serviceable straw that shielded the gentle Maud from the sun's rays, or of the finest lace that ever topped a tea ensemble. The effect is equally devastating.

With big hats in the foreground romance is on the upswing. And such are the hats this spring.

The crowns are shallow in front and deep in back, but they are unimportant; it is the brims that catch the eye.

Festooned with brilliant field flowers, or litile clusters of fruit, sailor brims, droopy brims, all of them are very gay.

One rough straw hat is even adorned with a minute Pierrot doll, who flashes his gay smile to the delight of all beholders.

A hat in the new French cloth of navy blue is enlivened by such oddities as bridgt-hued nails, rare bird plumes, or—for the conservative—ribbons.

The old-fashioned Tuscan straw is again gracing feminine heads. Trimmed with gay gauze ribbons, it is seen in all fashionable places.

In climates where summer clothes are being worn, large, floppy hats in a new material, Italian braided straw, are popular.

A more formal large hat, is an off-the-face model with ribbons tied under the chin. This promises to be one of the smartest summer fashions.

But most practical among the large hats are the leghorns and old-fashioned Bangkoks in natural color, which have a number of different colored bands to be changed with each costume.

Wide World Photo.

THE MAKER of this hat called it "Tough Guy"—with reason. Pacemaker in a season of big, beguiling bonnets, it's a hat to ride roughshod over all rivals.

These Children Actually Love Their Lessons; Not Bad and Bored Under Progressive System

School Is Play In These Days

Countryside Day School Significant Educational Experiment.

Pupil's Utopia; No Report Cards, No Discipline Necessary.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

STURDY and independent, his hammer held tightly in his hand, the small boy looked at the reporter and photographer who had invaded his domain. He turned to his companions.

"I don't want my plans made public," he said. The boys nodded in solemn assent. Then up spoke a future civic leader.

"But," he said speculatively, "a story in a paper might help." The youngsters held a conference. They decided to give out a story to the press.

"This," they said, "is a new rabbit hutch we are making. We are going to have a pet shop, and we have to build a house for our animals. It is hard work, but we like it."

"Not," he hastened to explain, "not so very hard, but there are lots of things to do. You have to find out how much the wood and wire costs, and how many feet and inches there are so it will be a good rabbit house. We are painting signs telling what we have to sell, too. Do you want to buy a dog or a rabbit?"

Child's play? No, lessons as children learn them in the progressive schools of today. For no longer do teachers sit as stern taskmasters at the head of rooms and make the pupils recite their nine times four.

Educational Experiment.

One of the most significant modern educational experiments is being conducted at the Countryside Day School on the Silver Spring road. This school, founded by Mrs. Lucile Miller two years ago, is unlike any other school in the country in that the children learn entirely through creative work. Mrs. Miller was a teacher in the primary grades of Washington schools for 12 years.

The 25 pupils who are under the personal supervision of Mrs. Miller and her two assistants range from 18 months to 12 years. And there is plenty for even the youngest child to do, for the nursery school where infants begin to learn through directed activities is an essential part of progressive education.

"Children are no longer taught," Mrs. Lucile Miller, school director, explained. "Teachers are only guides and the children should learn through their own interests. For instance, they build an Indian wigwam, and in connection with that they learn arithmetic. English, American history and some geography. They see a need for knowledge in their activities, and each new task leads to a desire for further knowledge."

There is no problem of discipline in this school, according to Mrs. Miller.

Were Bad and Bored.

"Children in the old-fashioned, formal school were bad because they were bored," she said. "A boy was naughty to amuse himself and to show off before other pupils. When boys and girls are busy at things they like they have no time to be naughty.

Science recently entered the Countryside School, with the result that all the children now drink their milk. Two rats were purchased and the children assumed full charge of them. One was fed on bread and water and the other on bread and milk. The children kept charts and noted the development of the rats with the greatest interest.

And the success of the experiment was assured when one day one of the smallest boys said to a cross child:

Success.

"The trouble with you is that you are just like that water-drinking rat. You are nervous and cross and underweight, all because you won't eat as you should!"

Nature is the greatest teacher the children have. In caring for their pets, working in their gardens and in their play activities many lessons are learned.

A Psychic Store Clerk Cinches Too-Easy Sale

No More Clothes for This Customer Until Next July; She Fell From Grace for a Gorgeous Wrap at Hands of Smart Salesgirl.

By Evelyn Voss Wise.

EASTER IS PAST . . . It's time for spring shopping for most people, but not for me. I've always delighted in browsing through Washington stores; perhaps the clerks are accustomed to many visitors, or perhaps they are by nature more human . . . at least they seem perfectly willing to show things without making one feel like a criminal if one does not buy.

A week ago I passed a shop window and saw such an evening wrap as I had dreamed of owning. I was sure it was more than I wanted to pay, but I could not resist inquiring.

Certainly, Try it On.

"Indeed, you may try it on," the salesgirl said. "I'll show you others while Henri brings it from the window."

There were no others for me. The one from the window was exactly what I wanted.

"You could charge it," she said. "You could put it on your April bill . . . no, this is the last of March, you could put it on your May bill, pay half the first of June and half the first of July. It does look lovely."

"Oh," I gasped . . . After all, July was a long way off.

"Lots of people do it," she said. "Occasionally they take advantage of our accommodation, but we can almost always spot that kind. We get to know people at a glance. Last week a woman came in to buy an afternoon frock for a wedding. She had a gorgeous black lace affair sent out and returned it two days later. The following Sunday we saw wedding pictures in the paper. She wore the dress.

"Couldn't you do something about it?"

Customer's Rights.

She shrugged her shoulders. The customer is always right," she answered. "Then there is Mrs. Smith. She had two or three frocks sent out at a time. She usually buys one inexpensive dress and later comes in wearing something almost identical to the frocks sent out. Her dressmaker is very clever at copying."

"But how can you tell these?" I asked.

"Oh," again she shrugged her shoulders. "There's nothing really definite. By the way people wander in, perhaps, . . . gazing around, killing time . . . or by their slips . . . if they wear any and get that far."

"Slips?"

"Yes, slips. The minute they start peeling . . . They hadn't expected to try on clothes, they say . . . They've never worn a slip that wasn't ironed before . . . more apologies. Sometimes they fly into a rage . . . nothing is right . . . the material is poor . . . the garment is badly made."

Too Psychic.

I was becoming alarmed. This salesgirl seemed a little too psychic. She probably knew I shouldn't buy the velvet coat I was admiring so much.

"What kind of people do you like to see come in?" I asked, I could have a few more minutes to go over my budget in my mind.

"The girls on the stage from Loew's Fox," she answered immediately. "Some time or other during the week they all come in. They are attractive to begin with, but that isn't the real reason. They never talk loud and blatantly about what's being worn. They try to suit their own personality whether it's a $12.50 or a $50 dress." And, again she laughed, "they never send purchases back."

I felt I had taken enough of her time.

"I'll take the wrap," I stammered . . . spelled w-rap in my mind.

Now the shop windows are filled with light frocks for summer, but there will be none of them for me. My enthusiasm to be like the girls from Loew's Fox—who never send things back—will keep me from the shop windows until July.

Royalty Was Here.

ROYALTY was in town this past two weeks. Few people in Washington were aware of it. Leiut. Col. and Mrs. Randolph Coyle had as their house guest over Easter and until early this week Faustin Wirkus, the American Marine who was King Faustin II of the Island of La Gonave—near the mainland of Haiti.

The story of how Mr. Wirkus won the confidence and respect of the natives and was offered the honor of becoming their king is a long one that is best told in his own book.

• • • •

One particularly interesting thing Mr. Wirkus did explain to some friends while here. This was the peculiar coincidence of his name as Faustin II, and the fact that the first emperor of these people was Faustin I.

It seems Faustin I was a native called Saloque. Then, when he created a court and became Emperor of Haiti, in 1847, for some unknown reason he chose the old Latin name of Faustin as his imperial one.

• • • •

As for Mr. Wirkus, he was born in Pennsylvania of German ancestry and Roman Catholic faith. The parental Wirkuses carried the tiny baby to the church to be baptized with no Christian name in mind.

• • • •

An old priest there whose name was Faustin, said:

"There's no other of the name in the parish. Why not name the baby after me?"

So happened Faustin Wirkus.

He Tells Us How.

ONE OF THE most courteous members of the Japanese embassy—that country which sets courtesy on a high pedestal—gives a lucid formula for pronouncing his name.

The gentleman is Jun Tsuchiya, secretary to Ambassador Saito.

• • • •

"You Americans," he said, "are very fond of the word 'cheer.' Whenever you feel good and want to show that feeling at parades, at ball games, everywhere—you cheer.

• • • •

"Well, just remember, when you say my name that, instead of one cheer, you say—'two cheer—ya!"

Revolutionary Art Descends On Manhattan

New York, April 9 (Spl.). Revolutionary art is having its inning here this week.

The exhibit also includes a sculpture of a millianaire with the head in the form of a money bag and a strong box for shoulders.

The 3,500 paintings in the exhibit include the work of a steel worker, a cigarmaker, an actress and a beauty operator.

Friday, the Society of Independent Artists will open at the Grand Central Palace an exhibition that promises to be "truly uncensored."

Students Predict 1936 War; They'll Fight if It's Defensive

NEW YORK, April 11 (Spl.).—The United States will be involved in another major war by 1936, according to predictions in the annual questionnaire sent to seniors of the New York University College of Arts and Pure Science and the College of Engineering.

The students indicated they were unanimously against complete disarmament and they would fight in a war of defense, but not of aggression.

The best age for marriage is 28 for men and 21 for women, according to the poll, but most members of the class designated 29 as the age they would marry. More than 90 per cent will not marry for money and they will permit their wives to work. They prefer college graduates for wives and favor birth control.

Other results of the poll indicate the average senior is 21 years old, 5 feet 10 inches in heighth, and weighs 160 pounds. His once-a-week date costs approximately $2, but an occasional prom date costs about $15. Although he drinks, swears, smokes, dances and "necks," he is more temperate now than during prohibition.

The majority said they expected to become professional men and they considered college friendships the most worthwhile things they have attained during their undergraduate years. Also, they considered membership in a national honorary society more to be desired than a varsity letter.

Most of the students expect to be earning $3,000 by June, 1939, and $6,000 by June, 1944. Last year the average salary expected five years after graduation was $4,000.

Other preferences brought to light by the poll include popular orchestra music rather than the symphony; Henry Hull, stage actor; Katharine Hepburn, motion picture actress; Ben Bernie, radio performer; Eugene O'Neill, playwright; "Mary Queen of Scots," stage play; "Cavalcade," motion picture.

The students also indicated they considered President Roosevelt the outstanding figure in the world today.

While the majority of the class expressed sympathy with the NRA, they stipulated it should be regarded only as an emergency measure and should not be made permanent.

Three Types of Virginia Homes To Open During Garden Week

RICHMOND, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—A pictorial history of the Old Dominion will be afforded in the houses and gardens that will be open to the public during Garden Week, April 23 to 28.

William Lawrence Bottomley, authority on Virginia history and architecture, points out that three types of houses particularly reflect the development of the State.

First, there are the earliest houses showing the English influence; these are to be found in the Tidewater sections of the James, York and Potomac Rivers. In one of them, Bacon's Castle, is found an amazing architecture for this country—a house with curved gable ends, chimney stacks, steep roofs, leaded glass casements with brick mullions, in short a late medieval effect. This house has lost many of its interesting lines through additions, but it is the hope of history lovers to restore it to its early state. It was probably built about 1667.

Other houses of the early period include one built by Adam Thoroughgood near Lynnhaven Bay, Stratford, birthplace of Robert E. Lee; Westover, Claremont Manor, Shirley, Tuckahoe, York Hall and Gunston Hall.

During the reigns of the Georges a new and more-classical style came into favor. Example of these are found in Mount Airy on the Rappahannock River, in Sabine Hall, Mount Vernon and in Carter Hall, near Winchester. The hot summers in Virginia were responsible for the addition of shutters and porches. Few of these were used, however, before the Revolution.

The third phase of design appeared in the early part of the nineteenth century and became particularly identified with the South. Such houses were often of wood with two-story colonnades. They have been called "Parthenons in Pine." The rows of columns and the overhanging roofs kept the houses cool and gave a beautiful effect against the deep color of Southern foliage. Estouteville, near Charlottesville, was one of the first houses built in this style. Berry Hill, in the southern part of Virginia, is another example.

Turks Place Financier on Freighter Under Heavy Guard.

(Copyright, 1934, by the United Press.)

Aboard S. S. Adana, April 12 (U.P.).—The little steamer Adana moved down the Sea of Marmora tonight bearing Samuel Insull on the first step of his long voyage back to America for trial.

The freighter left Istanbul at 7 p. m. Insull had boarded the ship shortly after 6 p. m.

Turkish police guarded the financier's every movement from the time he was removed from the Istanbul jail, where he had been held since his arrest two weeks ago aboard a Greek freighter on which he made his fight from extradition to the United States on charges of fraud.

Fight Ages Fugitive.

The white-haired fugitive seemed considerably aged by the fight of the last 18 months against the American law. He went below to his tiny cabin and remained until the Adana moved down the sea.

Insull will be taken to the Port of Panderma, where he will board a train for Smyrna, sailing thence for Boston tomorrow aboard the American Export Lines freighter Exilona.

Insull was removed from prison at 6:08 p. m., vigorously protesting. A heavy guard of Turkish police at the dock held the crowds back. His lawyers accompanied Insull on board and sat with him, gloomy in the last moments before departure.

His cabin was fitted with primitive wooden berth, covered with rough blankets.

Insull Seems Resigned.

Burton Yost Berry, of Fowler, Ind., youthful attache at the United States Embassy in Turkey, who is Insull's guardian on the voyage across the Atlantic, paced the deck as the ship sailed, making no effort to contact Insull. He is to take charge of the prisoner when he boards the Exilona and final extradition ceremonies are carried out.

The Adana is a freighter of 1,700 tons. The only bath on board was out of commission.

As the Adana left the dock, Insull came on deck for a moment, hatless, and surrounded by police. He looked sadly toward the shore where his flight for freedom had ended, and waved farewell to his lawyers.

According to an announcement from the Boy Scout Press Club, of which Howard Ennis is president, to be recognized as a chartered publication by the Washington, D. C. Boy Scout Press Club, the troop paper must meet strict requirements with regard to publication, contents, advertising, finances, management and strength of charter. The next meeting of the Boy Scout Press Club will be held at Scout Headquarters, April 19 at 10 a. m.

Council-Wide Good Turn.

Thousands of articles of clothing, furniture and household equipment have been gathered by scouts of the various patrols and troops in the District of Columbia during the last two months in response to the Nation-wide good turn to help needy people, as put up to them by President Roosevelt.

Practically every Scout in every troop has had a part in this huge good turn, but as yet any sort of estimate on the total amount of material gathered is impossible. The work is still going on in many troops and a large amount of material still remains to be taken in.

Each troop is asked to make a final report not later than May 5 on its participation in this mobilization of equipment.

Scout Map Instructors Named.

As a result of a four-session course conducted by Dr. R. H. Sargent during the month of February, the following Scouts have been named as eligible for appointment as map instructors in their troop: W. F. Wright, Ken. Wright, of Troop 8; E. It Won't Be Long.

Long we waited for the turning,
For the end of ice and snow,
For the trash to begin burning
And the maple's sap to flow;
For spring posies to start blooming,
For the song birds to come back
And the Griffs to finish grooming
For their opening attack.

Way down South the sun is boiling—
Down along the "grape fruit" way
Where the home boys have been toiling
In the sunshine every day.
And it seems they're nearly ready
For their opening grand bow,
Though the weather here's unsteady,
Yet it-won't-be-so-long-now!

— what it means

— to store 70 million dollars worth of tobacco

— 4½ miles of warehouses

Everything that Science knows about is used in making Chesterfields.

One thing we do is to buy mild, ripe tobaccos and then lock up these tobaccos in modern storage warehouses to age and mellow like rare wines.

It takes about 3 years to age the tobaccos for your Chesterfield, for Time does something to tobacco that neither man nor machine can do.

It means something to keep 70 million dollars worth of tobacco in storage. It means just this:

We do everything possible to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

the cigarette that's MILDER

the cigarette that TASTES BETTER

ENTERED AS SECOND CLASS MATTER. POSTOFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Full Schedule For Nursery Classes Sure

EWA Employes, Cut to Half Time, Volunteer Free Service.

Fate of Vocational and Adult Schools Hinges on Similar Action.

Nursery schools in the Capital are assured of continuing on a full-time schedule, despite curtailment in funds, but the fate of special adult and vocational classes is still problematical, it was learned from school officials last night.

Nursery school employes have had their pay cut in half to an average of $12 a week, but they have agreed to volunteer overtime in order that the classes may operate on a full schedule. Teachers of adult classes have not yet been broached on the question, but they will be asked if they will be willing to donate time over what they are paid. They have been placed on a half-time basis.

Volunteer Service Vital.

Only through this part-time volunteer service can the nursery schools and adult classes be continued until May 15 when other plans will be made to continue the program through the summer.

So far as the adult classes are concerned, each employe will be questioned separately so that his individual needs for relief work may be taken into account, it was announced. All the employes in nursery schools and the special adult classes were on relief lists and were given employment originally under the CWA.

There are 32 employes in the nursery schools and 50 in the adult vocational classes.

Funds Discontinue.

Under the CWA, the nursery and vocational schools had been receiving $8,000 a month since January. This amount was discontinued under the EWA, as relief employment is paid for on a strict cash basis.

A review of the situation was given by school officials and Federal Emergency Relief Administration officials at a conference yesterday.

D. C. Budget Slash Faces House Fight

Recommended Cut in Tax Rate Also Will Be Opposed.

G.O.P. Leader to Protest 40 Per Cent Cut in P. U. C. Fund.

A determined fight to restore the 40 per cent cut in the Public Utilities Commission appropriation and some of the less severe slashes in school and municipal departmental estimates will be made when general debate begins on the District supply bill next week.

Representative J. William Ditter, (Republican), of Pennsylvania, a member of the District Appropriation Committee, yesterday took a stand against the severe reductions made in the District budget by the Democratic majority of the committee.

He also announced that he would raise a point of order against the recommended tax rate cut from $1.50 to $1.20 on the ground that it would severely cripple the activities of the District government. It is expected that the point of order will be sustained, as it was last year, because the proposal constitutes a legislative rider on an appropriations measure.

Debate Postponed.

General debate on the District bill, which was scheduled to begin yesterday, was postponed until next week because of the illness of Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, chairman of the subcommittee.

Majority Leader Byrns said that the bill would be taken up Monday or Tuesday.

"A reduction in the appropriation for the Public Utilities Commission of $37,323 to $51,000, as recommended by the subcommittee, would penalize the consuming public rather than the commission," Ditter pointed out.

"I have made a study of the record of the commission since I have been in Washington, and I find it creditable. The big question, however, is whether the consumers are to be made to suffer because the activities of the commission are crippled by inadequate funds."

Defends Roberts.

Ditter also defended William A. Roberts, special counsel of the Utilities body, who was attacked bitterly during the subcommittee hearings by Representative Blanton (Democrat), of Texas. He said he was convinced from questioning Roberts that neither he nor the commission "bargained away" anything in the stipulation entered into with the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

Because of his background as a lawyer for several Pennsylvania municipalities before public service commissions, Ditter is familiar with utility problems. He also is vitally interested in school and public library affairs, as he has been a teacher in the Philadelphia schools and a public library director.

Ditter also plans to offer an amendment to provide $3,200 for the education of orphans of World War veterans.

Representative Blanton, when asked why the sub-committee had cut the Public Utilities Commission estimate so drastically, replied:

"Why, to keep them from wasting the people's money. They're not doing anything. Every rate reduction they got was by agreement."

Restoration Sought.

Several civic and trade associations yesterday began contacting members of the House in an effort to restore some of the $817,761 cut from District estimates by the subcommittee.

General sentiment appeared opposed to the proposed tax reduction, at least as a Congressional mandate, because of the need for additional school facilities and the danger that more money may be needed for emergency relief in 1935.

Some $4,000,000 in supplemental estimates are being held up by the Budget Bureau, and a renewed fight by the District Commissioners and civic organizations will be made to have some of them inserted in the bill when hearings open in the Senate.

Representative Ditter explained that authority for lowering 2taxes should be left in the hands of the Commissioners because they are in a better position to determine whether taxes should be cut or whether additional municipal projects should be financed.

Mrs. Norrie A. Erb, 86, Rites Set Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Norrie A. Erb, 86, widow of Capt. William S. S. Erb, Civil War veteran, who died December 4 at Palm Beach, Fla., will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mrs. Erb, who was one of the few granddaughters of the American Revolution living in Florida, resided in Washington from 1903 to 1916. She made her home in Palm Beach subsequently. The only survivor is Miss Daisy E. Erb, artist, of Washington. Interment will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Art Triumphs, So U. S. Workers Must Hunt New Parking Places

Park police yesterday put up the first of a new batch of no-parking signs that will take parking places from between 700 and 800 Government workers in the streets radiating from the Lincoln Memorial. Miss Pat Hunt, one of the workers, has just discovered the new signs.

Lincoln Memorial Area Put Under Ban; Police Expect "Squawk."

The camel's back has been broken.

From now on "no parking at any time" will be in vogue on two of the parkways that radiate from Lincoln Memorial Circle. The rule will be extended gradually to apply to them all, making 700 or 800 auto owners who work in the War, Navy, Public Health and other nearby buildings look for new parking spaces.

It was a cherry blossom this time, not a straw, that laid out the camel. Months ago the Fine Arts Commission protested against cars cluttering up the memorial approaches, arguing that the practice hindered tourists and spoiled the esthetic effect. Nothing, however, was one about it until yesterday.

Visioning an enormous tourist turnout ths week-end, when the cherry trees will be in bloom, the office of National Capital Parks ordered "no parking" signs erected on Daniel Chester French and Henry Bacon drives. By nightfall the warnings were already upon the latter drive and the new rule will be enforced today.

"All of the parkways are so congested with all-day parkers (employes in nearby Federal buildings) there is scarcely any room for tourists and visitors," said C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of the parks office.

Patrick J. Carroll, park police chief, conceded the ban would be a "beau geste" to out-of-town motorists, but predicted "a terrible squawk" from the hundreds of employes.

Parking is limited to two hours on Constitution avenue, between Seventeenth and Twenty-first streets northwest, so those Federal workers who wish to leave their machines on this thoroughfare face the prospect of having to walk a half mile or more after they park.

French drive, named for the sculptor o fthe memorial's Lincoln statue, will be the next to be closed to parking. Bacon drive was named for the marble monument's architect. Among the others which will take the ban later, are Twenty-third street and North Lincoln drive.

Park police will go easy on violators at first, resorting to $2 arrest slips only after motorists have become familiar with the new regulation.

Court Gift

"Orphan" Bequest Given to Church Mission.

The Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church will be given $20,915 as a result of a ruling in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Justice Jennings Bailey.

The money will be paid out of the estate of Gertrude L. Hoffman, who directed in her will that $20,000 be given to "The Hudson Stuck Memorial Hospital." David A. Pine, representing the estate, was unable to find the institution, and Justice Bailey held that it was the intention that the money should go to some such institution as the Missionary Society.

Interest on the sum makes up the difference.

Study of Milk Use by Pupils Is Slated Here

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley to Head Survey in District.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, has accepted the chairmanship of a committee to make a survey of milk consumption among local school children under direction of the AAA, it was announced yesterday.

Undertaken at the request of 12 leading women's organizations in the United States, the survey will be one of 50 to be conducted in cities throughout the Nation to learn whether school children are receiving the proper amount of milk and other dairy products, Dr. Frederick C. Howe, consumer's counsel, announced yesterday.

Suggestion for the inquiry was made by Mrs. Edward P. Costigan and Miss Ellis Meredith, representing the 12 organizations.

Among those who joined in requesting the survey were Clara D. Noyes, American Nurses Association; Esther P. Lovejoy, American Woman's Hospital Association; Julia K. Jaffray, General Federation of Women's Clubs; Julia West Hamilton, National Association of Colored Women; Charl Williams, National Educational Association; Hortense Lansburgh, National Council of Jewish Women; Adelaide S. Accord Near On District Works Plan

Park Body Accepts New Funds Suggestion of Commissioners.

Hospital and Plant for Sewage Disposal Part of Project.

An agreement between the District Commissioners and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission on the Commissioners' desires to obtain $18,000,000 for a sewage disposal plant, a new tuberculosis hospital and other construction will be reached soon, it was learned last night.

At first when the Commissioners proposed that the Capper-Cramton act authorizing $16,000,000 for parks to be paid back to the Gederal Government in yearly payments of $1,000,000 be canceled and the funds be used for the new program, the park commission objected.

Melvin C. Hazen, president of the District Board of Commissioners, said last night that a new plan had received the approval of Frederick A. Delano, head of the parks body. There will be a final meting on the question Monday, he said.

Under the new plan Hazen said Congress will be asked to authorize the District to accept $18,000,000 from the Public Works Administrator. Of this money 30 per cent will be an outright grant with the remainder to be repaid without interest at the rate of a million a year.

If at any time during this repayment program, Congress appropriates funds under the Capper-Cramton act, the District, instead of having to pay back $1,000,000 on each program, wil have each payment reduced to $500,000 a year, Mr. Hazen said.

Boxing Bill's House Conferees Named

Conference May Be Held by King Today.

House conferees on the Hartley boxing bill, passed Monday by the House, were named yesterday by Speaker Rainey as follows: Representative Norton chairman of the House District Committee, chairman, with Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, and Representative Whitley (Republican), New York.

Senate conferees are Senators King, Copeland and Capper. A meeting will be held at the invitation of Senator King, probably today.

The major difference between the Senate and the House boxing bills is that the latter legalizes both professional and amateur boxing, while the former authorizes only amateur boxing.

Tidal Basin Boats Not to Run Again

Operator Fails to Start Up Business

Those electrically driven run 'em yourself boats which were so thick on the Tidal Basin last summer, probably won't be in operation this year, according to an announcement yesterday by the Welfare and Recreational Association.

So far, the concessionaire who holds the contract has taken no steps to resume business, the association said, and the recreational body does not intend to run the fleet. The swan boat, however, which is operated by the association, has been taking passengers all week.

Pierce Mill tea house, another enterprise of the association, was opened yesterday under the new management of Miss Frances K. South. Hains Point tea house started business last Saturday.

Boy Scouts Plan Arbor Day Rites

Historic Trees Will Be Set Out by Troops.

Trees from historic sites in many States will be planted by Boy Scouts from the various Washington troops in the National Historic Grove in Anacostia Park on Arbor Day, April 21.

A hundred trees have been sent for this purpose by D. A. R. chapters and other patriotic organizations. A parade of the States will precede the planting ceremonies.

Tippecanoe Patrol of Troop No. 25, conducted by the Church of the Covenant, will plant a tree from the Tippecanoe battle grounds in Indiana, where Gen. Harrison defeated Tecumseh in 1811. A patrol from Troop No. 19 will plant a Buckeye tree from the site of the first school and church in Ohio.

Trees will be planted from Valley Forge, Plymouth, Vt.; Mount Vernon, Eerry Farm, the home of Charles Washington, Boonsboro, Ky., and the Stanford University campus.

White Plague Group Seeks New Hospital

D. C. Committee Finds Need for Additional Hospitalization.

Steps Taken at First Meeting to Remedy Conditions Here.

The special committee named by the District Commissioners to study the unfavorable tuberculosis conditions here yesterday started efforts to obtain additional hospitalization for victims for whom there is no room in the Tuberculosis Hospital.

Meeting for the first time, the committee decided to determine the suitability of a "certain building" to serve this purpose. A sub-committee of Dr. Prentiss Willson, president of the District Medical Society; Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody, head of the Tuberculosis Hospital, and Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer, was named to make an inspection of the building.

Meeting Closed.

The committee's meeting was closed, and following it Dr. Fowler made only a brief announcement about topics discussed. He refused to give the location of the building which is being considered, but said it belongs to the Government and is now in use.

Dr. William Charles White, president of the District Tuberculosis Association, was named to effect closer cooperation between the Instructive Visiting Nurses Society and the Health Department in tuberculosis work.

Dr. H. J. Crosson, member of the Board of Public Welfare, was placed in charge of the sub-committee the duty of which will be to determine exactly how many beds are available for white plague patients in all of the city's hospitals.

Dispensary Studied.

Dr. F. C. Smith, of the Public Health Service, will make a study to determine whether the present District dispensary at Third and C streets northwest is adequate. He also will advise where other dispensaries should be located in the event they are needed.

Dr. Fowler would make no further statement in regard to the committee's action. However, he did say that a new tuberculosis hospital and the obsolete X-ray equipment used by the District now were discussed.

Chicago Star Given Hard Battle

Washington Ace Bows in Doubles; Shields Wins, Faces Grant.

Allison Beats Rainville to Gain Semifinals; Will Play Lott.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 12 (AP).—Anthony Latona, of Washington, D. C., representing Georgetown University, gave a good account of himself here today in the quarter-final round of the annual North-South tennis tournament, but was unable to overcome the deadly shots of George Lott, jr., of Chicago, and lost, 6—2, 6—4, 6—4.

Latona, the only unseeded player in the classic to win his way into the fourth round, gave the Davic Cup star a battle all the way.

After dropping the first set at 6—2, the former Playgrounds champion and Western High School ace of Washington, came back in the second to earn a 6—4 verdict that served Lott notice that he was to have no easy time with this young adversary. Lott put on the steam in the final set, winning, 6—4, after a hard struggle.

Loses in Doubles.

There was no consolation in the day's play for Latona, for he paired with John McGlin, of the University of North Carolina, in the doubles and lost to Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., and Lott. The scores were, 6—1, 6—2.

Frank X. Shields, of New York, advanced to the singles semifinals by defeating Walter Martin, Canadian star, 6—3, 9—7, 6—0, and tomorrow will meet Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, who beat him in the quarter finals last year.

Allison moved into the semifinals by defeating Marcel Rainville, No. 2 man on the Canadian Davis Cup team, 6—0, 6—1, 6—4. He will play Lott, his doubles partner, tomorrow.

Stoefen-Grant Win.

Lester Stoefen and Grant won their second doubles match, beating Harvey Harris and Frank Shore, University of North Carolina, 6—0, 6—2.

In the Women's doubles, Mrs. R. H. Hassler, Westbury, Long Island, and Mrs. J. V. Jenks, Harbor Beach, Mich., defeated Mrs. Thomas Clyde, Pinehurst, and Mrs. Rainville, 6—0, 6—0; Miss Grace Surber, Jackson Heights, Long Island, and Miss Florence Leboutillier, Westbury, Long Island, defeated Miss Evangeline McLennan, Asheville, N. C., and Miss Genevive Vallebuona, Atlanta, 6—0, 6—0; Miss Etta Coyne and Miss Kay Jackson, Atlanta, defeated Miss Dorothy Pouch, State Island, and Miss Elizabeth McCutcheon, Greenwich, Conn., 6—1, 6—0; Miss Norma Taubele, New York, and Miss Jane Sharp, Pasadena, Calif., drew a bye.

In the second round, Miss Surber and Miss Leboutillier defeated Miss Coyne and Miss Jackson, 6—0, 6—3.

Terrier Captures Feature at Texas

Gelding Is Unplaced but Once in Last 13 Starts.

Arlington, Tex., April 12 (AP).—Mrs. A. M. Creech's Terrier, out of the money only once in 12 previous starts this year, won his second straight race today in accounting for the sprint down the Waggoner course which topped the card at Arlington Downs.

The 4-year-old chestnut gelding traveled the distance, 50 yards less than 6 furlongs, in 1:09, only two-fifths of a second slower than the new track record of 1:08 3-5, made by M. M. Riddle's Essential, in winning the fourth event.

With Wayne Wright in the saddle, Terrier took the lead from Martin Barton at the head of the stretch and stepped home with a length to spare over Coya. Martin Barton, from J. A. Best's stable, was third.

Police Hunting Fake Ticket Source

Poorly Made Counterfeit of Opening Game Ticket Is Uncovered.

WHAT may be an effort to flood Washington with spurious tickets to the opening ball game at Griffith Stadium Monday between Washington and Boston was uncovered yesterday. Only one counterfeit has come into possession of the police to date, but authorities believe that many more may be circulating throughout the city.

The one counterfeit pasteboard, a poor imitation, was turned over to President lark Griffith of the Washington Ball Club by a business acquaintance, who purchased it at a downtown address. Headquarters detectives have been assigned to the case and expect to report definite progress today.

Poor Imitation.

The counterfeit, while so poorly executed that it would not pass muster at the ball park gate, might easily be accepted as authentic by purchasers who have not seen bona-fide tickets for the Monday game.

Whereas the authentic ticket is printed in red and black on a pastel green, the imitations are printed in green on a yellow background. The good tickets bear a printed notice on the back, which is not on the counterfeits. The bona-fide pasteboards are larger than the imitations and bear the printed price of $1.10, whereas the spurious tickets are stamped to sell at $1.00, which may be attributed to an effort on the part of the counterfeiters to avoid prosecution by Federal authorities on charges of evading the amusement tax.

Out at Home on the Finishing End of a Georgetown Double Play

His dash to the plate ended disastrously for Hurley, of Western Maryland, yesterday, who is pictured being tagged by Saverine, Georgetown catcher. Hurley was on second when Shepherd bounced a grounder to Pitcher Neslie with the bases full, and Neslie returned the ball to Saverine at the plate for the first out. Neslie beat the catcher's throw to first, but Hurley, attempting to score on the play, was nipped at the plate by the return throw to the Georgetown catcher.

Ferrell Tagged as 'Greatest,' Talked Too Much—Johnson

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 12 (AP).—Wes Ferrell just talked himself out of being the greatest pitcher in baseball, in the opinion of Walter Johnson, manager of the Cleveland Indians, with whom Ferrell has refused to sign because of salary differences.

"Ferrel' was a great pitcher, and still is, for that matter, but he just talks too much for his own good," said Johnson.

Johnson said Ferrell criticized the Cleveland "boss men" last year when it looked like he would not win enough games to earn the bonus his contract called for. That got back to the owners, Johnson said, and didn't do Ferrell any good.

"When Ferrell came to the club the owners thought a lot of him. He became down on himself when he thought no one liked him, and there lies the tale of all the trouble," the erstwhile "Big Train' 'added.

Did Not Lie Down.

"There's one thing I wish would be straightened out, and that is, Ferrell did not lie down on the job last year. He likes to win like all of us, even more than some of us, and wanted to pitch his regular turn last year, but with his arm in bad condition, and there is no doubt in my mind he did have a bad arm, he could not take his regular turn. This, he thought, came from the front office, but I was the one who believed it would be hurting him and the club for him to pitch with his arm like it was."

Ferrell is an ideal player, never drinking or getting out of condition, said Johnson. "I hate to see a fellow like that get out of baseball."

Just the same, the Indians' $5,000 offer stands, and the next move is up to Ferrell, Johnson said, adding that he already had "a pitching staff as good as any in baseball."

Will Remain Idle.

Greensboro, N. C., April 12 (AP).—Wesley Ferrell today said pitching for Cleveland was worth more than $5,000 a year and that if the American club does not offer him more, he'll spend the summer fishing and golfing.

Ferrell, holding out at his home at Guilford College near here, said that unless Cleveland reaches a salary agreement with him by May 15 he will ask to be placed on the voluntary retired list.

Capt. Fielder Advances at Richmond

Gains Quarter Finals by 3 and 2 Win; Riegel Is Hard Pressed.

RICHMOND, Va., April 12 (Spl.).—Capt. Kendall J. Fielder, Army and Navy Club star, from Washington, today advanced to the quarter finals of the Country Club of Virginia invitation golf tournament along with all of the other favorites.

Capt. Fielder turned back P. C. Holladay, home club player, by 3 and 2, after being 4 up at the turn. A cold wind made good golf the exception rather than rule in the second-round matches, but the Washington expert displayed his usual steady game.

Bobby Riegel, University of Richmond ace, caught a Tartar in Davis Ewell, sr., father of another Spider golfer, and was carried 23 holes before he dropped a 10-foot putt to eke out a triumph. Ewell shot a subpar 35 on the second nine after being 1 down at the turn.

John Dawson, medalist from Chicago; Chandler Harper, State amateur champion, from Portsmouth, and the Howell brothers—Billy and Tommy—won their matches.

Capt. Fielder tomorrow opposes Harper, while Dawson and Riegel hook up in the feature match of the morning. The two victors meet in the afternoon semifinals.

In the lower brackets, Tommy Howell faces Charley Kent, while Billy Howell plays Hicks Kerr.

Luther Steward, of Washington, today defeated J. N. Whitlow, 3 and 1, after being 1 down at the turn of their second flight battle.

Promoter Would Force Ross to Keep Fight Date

Fort Worth, Tex., April 12 (AP).—Promoter Dick Griffin has received a wire from Barney Ross, world's lightweight and junior welterweight champion, that he can not fight Tony Herrera here April 20 in defense of his welterweight title.

Because of his scheduled bout with Jimmy McLarnin for the welterweight crown at Chicago May 28, Ross requested an indefinite postponement.

Griffin, who has sold several thousand dollars' worth of tickets, said he would seek to make Ross go through with the local engagement. Ross booked the Herrera bout several weeks before signing to fight McLarnin.

Hoyas Humble Terors Nine By 9 to 6

Neslie Allows Nine Hits; Enemy Fills Bases in Seventh.

IT was an ideal day yesterday for football practice, so Georgetown canceled spring grid work for the afternoon and played a baseball game instead, defeating Western Maryland, 9 to 6, in a fairly respectable exhibition of the old American sport.

Pounded out of the box after two futile innings against Richmond last week, George Neslie turned in a good mound performance against the Terrors, holding them to nine hits, scattered judicially throtugh nine frigit innings, with exception of the seventh, when three runs crossed the plate. Neslie's fast one zipped by surprised batters and his curve broek nicely. He fanned the first four men to face him.

Scores In First.

Georgetown broke the ice in the first inning with a pair of runs and got off to a comfortable lead in the third with four more. Singles by Saverine, Crenshaw and O'Rourke, and Callahan's double and an untimely error by Frank Cumberland, visiting shortstop, produced the tallies. The Hoyas found Ed Schelling's offerings very much to their liking, and helped themselves to an even dozen bingles.

Western Maryland threatened to overtake their hosts in round five, but not until the seventh did they actually worry the Hoyas. The bases were clogged with Terrors when Bill Shepherd came to bat and conveniently tapped one to Neslie. George heaved the apple to Saverine, who caught Cumberland at the plate and relayed the pill to Rohan, but Shepherd beat the throw. Hurley, rounding third, tried to get home but was nipped on a peg from Rohan.

Southern's Pass Rule Booed, Laughed at—Change Sought

ATLANTA, April 12 (AP).—Whatever reception the Southern Association's new baseball pass rule may have encountered elsewhere, it has brought laughter and criticism here and Wilbert Robinson, Atlanta Club president, today planned to ask for a vote on the abolition of the rule.

Robinson said he would ask John Martin, president of the association, to request a vote from the directors. The rule was adopted somewhat as an experiment at a recent league meeting.

The rule, in effect, permits base runners to move up two bases on an intentional walk or a hit batsman. This sometimes results in a player scoring.

The Atlanta Constitution says, "The fans booed it (the rule) when Mark Koenig scored from third when Bottomely was hit by a pitched ball (in the Atlanta-Cincinnati game Wednesday). Umpire Bick Campbell, with a note of sarcasm in his voice, said: 'That, ladies and gentlemen, is your new pass rule.'

"Joe McCarthy declared the rule to be harmful to baseball. Bill Terry said it was a 'sap' rule. Bob O'Farrell laughed at it."

The Southern season opens April 17 and the rule will be effective, unless Robinson's request for a vote is allowed and the ballots rescind the rule.

Davidson Tennis Team Defeats Virginia, 5-4

Charlottesville, April 12 (AP).—Davidson's crack tennis team won its eighth straight victory by 5 to 4 over the previously undfeeated Virginians in a closely played match here this afternoon.

Capt. Jimmy Halverstadt, of the visitors, set the pace for his team by winning from the Cavalier team leader, Don Morrison, 6—4, 3—6, 9—7.

In other singles matches, Rohman, of Virginia, defeated Thompson, 6—1, 6—4; Wallace, of Virginia, defeated Barrett, 6—0, 3—6, 6—4; Lewis, of Davidson, defeated Taylor, 1—6, 6—4, 6—3; Fletcher, of Virginia, defeated Scott, 6—2, 6—3, and Pfifer, of Davidson, defeated Hedges, 7—5, 8—6.

Doubles score were, Haverstadt and Thompson, Davidson, defeated Morrison and Wallace, 6—2, 4—6, 6—4; Fletcher and Taylor, Virginia, defeated Thompson and Lewis, 4—6, 8—6, 6—4, and Pfifer and Barrett, Davidson, defeated Rohman and Hdges, 10—8, 8—6.

Dugas, Filley Sign Today With Nats

Albany Pair May Stick; Outfielder Profits by Bolton's Absence.

Cronin Hopes to Send Team Against Dodgers in Game Today.

By Shirley Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

CLARK GRIFFITH, the head man of the Washington Club, interrupted the pinoche proceedings in his sumptuous Griffith Stadium office yesterday long enough to announce that two young fellows late of the Albany Club would be formaly inducted into the ranks of the Nats today.

That was the major development of the day, what with cold weather forcing the cancellation of hostilities between the Nats and the Brooklyn Dodgers for the second consecutive afternoon and curtailing the three-game series to a one-game series, which will be staged today, barring cold, rain, fog, plague or pestilence.

The new members of the Nats are Outfielder Gus Dugas, whom, it had been suspected all along, would be given a contract, and Mark Filley, the young pitcher who decided his own fate the other day by holding the Braves runless for five innings before Ed Linke gave the ball game away.

Formal Signing Today.

The formal signing will take place today at Griffith's own terms because the young men involved are in no position to demand more than the uniform first-year wage and will be glad to sign without further ado before Griffith changes his mind.

Dugas is the second ball player to benefit from the hold-out gestures of Cliff Bolton, whose refusal to sign a Washington contract already has prompted Griffith to sign young Elmer Klumpp as a third-string catcher. With Klumpp taking care of Bolton's catching duties, the absence of a left-handed pinch hitter to replace Bolton for emergency duties was still felt and that is where Dugas came in.

Down in Biloxi Dugas was not long in impressing Cronin with his possibilities as a hitter and his penchant for smacking the ball to all fields for long distances earned him the job. He has had previous big-league experience with the Pirates and the Phillies, which was terminated by his outfielding weaknesses.

Filley Gets Big Chance.

Filley will be carried at least until May 15, when Cronin will be obliged to prune his squad to the 23-player limit, but his display of a curve ball and excellent control have caused the Nats' manager to tab him for future reference. With Albany crying for pitchers, he will be returned to that club on option barring a sensational debut in any relief roles he may be called upon to take.

K. O. Victory Predicted By Baer

Expects to Stop Carnera Before Tenth Round, Says Challenger.

Believes Italian's Size Is Handicap; Calls Foe Poor Boxer.

Cheyene, Wyo., April 12 (AP).—Exuding confidence, Max Baer predicted here today that he would knock out Primo Carnera "before the tenth round" of their championship fight in New York, June 14.

"I think Carnera's size is a handicap to him," declared the challenger, who is en route from California to Atlantic City to "dig into training."

"Carnera's force is in his right hand uppercut at close quarters," Baer continued. "I think I can stop that with close infighting and with short jabs with my left.

"Carnera licked Loughran with brute strength—not by boxing. Carnera isn't a boxer.

Tires Foe for Rushing.

"His biggest secret is tiring his opponents out by rushing them. I plan to out-fight him during his rushes.

"I think the old fight crowd is going to see another knockout. I have never predicted any of my fights before. I've merely stated that I was going to do my best. But this time I expect to get a knock out before the tenth round.

"I might even accidentally slug him on the chin in the opening roun'- and knock him out.

"I am in better shape than the public thinks. And I'm going to be in still better shape."

Baer wil lgive an exhibition tomorrow night at Springfield, Mo.

Porter Rides Veteran Judge Schilling to Bowie Victory; Jacobs Suspended

Baltimore's City Heads Look On

Volta Maid Is Second, Length and a Half Behind Victor.

Cheka Captures First After Jam; Transen Is Triumphant.

By Walter Haight.

THE judges' stand at Bowie was jammed with the high muckity-mucks of Baltimore's city government yesterday afternoon. The good mayor, Howard W. Jackson, was having a claiming race run in his honor and from where we sat it looked as if the head of the gas works, the superintendent of the reservoir, three-fifth of the town council and the keeper of the morgue were present.

It was only fitting that a judge should do the chief running before such an assemblage. Thus it was for Judge Schilling, 9-year-old and aged enough to give away dimes as far as horses go, that outclassed his field to win the 6-furlong sprint. He finished a length and a half in front of Volta Maid, with The Heathen, even a year older than the winner, in third place.

Races Run In Cold.

The day was cold at Bowie and the fact that what it takes to warm you up was on sale down under the grandstand was considered good fortune by many. Overcoats and topcoats, which had missed much play previously in the meeting, were in demand yesterday.

Perhaps the most important bit of news of the day was the suspension of Jockey Joe Jacobs for the remainder of the meeting. He rode Cheka, the winner in the first race, and was set down for piling up the field by charging across with his mount at the first turn. Jacobs' purchase by the Greentree Stable had been announced only Wednesday. Although the horses that Jacobs fouled held their feet, fans who had glasses on the field feared for a moment that there would be a crack-up. Jacobs, of course, was allowed to ride his remaining mounts on the program.

The Heathen Takes Lead.

To get back to the so-called feature, The Heathen stretched his ancient legs to take the lead followed by Vishnu and Judge Schilling. However, on the swing down the stretch, Porter brought Judge Schilling around the leaders and then held Volta Maid safe in the drive.

Jacobs rode Cheka, the property of G. D. Widener, home a length and a half ahead of Migrate, with Carmanchita, a 27-to-1 shot, another length back. Cheka broke last, but Jacobs brought him over from the outside post position and was soon swinging along in front. However, the move caused a jamming of the field. Cheka was the favorite and paid $7.60.

Transen Triumphs.

The favorite players made it two in a row in the second race when Transen took command on the far turn to coast to victory. Meloy was second and Texas Tommy was third. Don Carlos, a 133-1 proposition, was prominent in the early running. Transen, after being 9-10 on the odds board, finally paid off at $4.60.

Dornoch, under a hustling ride by Pat Sage, went into command in the third race and withstood the attempts of Sun Shadow, the odds-on favorite, to catch him in the stretch. Sun Shadow lost whatever chance he had with a sluggish start. The Runyon-owned horse was a good second ahead of Suspicious. Dornoch supplied a $9 pay-off.

Double for Sage.

Sage made it a double in the fourth race as the favorite backers cashed with Style Corner. However, the official decision brought a chorus of boos, for My Boss appeared to have gotten up in time to nip the winner. As usual, the judges' say was the last say and the $7.30 pay-off was on Style Corner. Hawk Moth, prominent behind Style Corner from the start, was third.

Jacobs, taking advantage of his last opportunity to ride at the meeting, won the sixth race by a head astride Butter Beans to earn a double and go 1 ahead of Porter with 85 winners for the year, besides increasing his local lead. Jacobs clearly outrode Sorenson on Fabius. The latter beat Spartan Lady eight lengths for the place. Butter Beans and Fabius both moved up on the final bend, with the former outlasting her rival. The mare paid $7.

Porter regained a tie position with Jacobs by piloting Belle Fille, $14.50, first home by a length in the nightcap. Everfair beat Syriac by two lengths for the place.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

The statue of the Goddess of Liberty, in New York harbor, was given to the people of the United States by French citizens. Yet, strange as it seems, the exact reverse is true of another statue of the Goddess of Liberty. This latter statue is an exact model of the one in New York Harbor, except that it is smaller. It was presented to the City of Paris by United States citizens living in the Paris colony, in the year 1889.

The Paris statue is located on the Island of Swans.

The Municipal Airport in Portland is really in the middle of the harbor. It is located on an island, popularly known as Swan Island, built up by dredgings from the harbor. The airport is connected with the mainland by a fill across the channel. Ships use the channel to the other side of the island.

Strange as it seems, an airport for land planes in a body of water has proven an ideal location. There is a clear approach from all sides of the landing field. Communication with the city, too, is as near as the docks.

Seaplanes as well as land planes use the harbor at Portland. They land in the adjacent water, then taxi to the northern end of the island, where a ramp for seaplanes' use has been installed.

Tomorrow: The tiniest silverware.

Dear Al: Bowie Race Track, April 13.

Just what constitutes a foul at this track perhaps never will be known. It seems that Joe Jacobs was guilty enough in the first race to warrant a suspension for the remainder of the meeting. It was obvious that he fouled at least five well-played horses right out of the race by cutting over. No doubt, Patrol Judge Willie Doyle saw it. He climbed down from his observation tower over by the turn and ran toward the judges' stand. But just as Doyle reached the steps, the "official" sign was turned and the pay-off soon began on Cheka. From where we sat we could see Doyle buzzing with the officials. A few races later, Jacobs' suspension was announced. Perhaps Widener horses can't foul. We had three winners and two seconds. BILL.

First race—J. P. Jones is said to have a promising juvenile in Air Line, scheduled to go to the races for the first time in this maiden affair. Breaks from the rail and will have the veteran McTaggart to do the riding. General Farley, another first time starter, is highly regarded. Sun Caprice was educated in Florida. A fighting chance for it all.

Second race—Patrice Runyon may find this field to her liking. Closed fast in both of her races against better opposition. Idle Along ran well at New Orleans and figures to be in the thick of this battle. Portfolio for the show end.

Third race—Major General received a tightener the other day and while he would prefer a longer route he has been known to sprint with success. Not too keenly opposed in this field. Rustic Cuba's last was a sizzler. Must be considered here. Indiantown for the other award.

Fourth race—Jack Low appears to have found the spot where he can strut to a victory. Porter will have the mount. The Triumvir gets the rail post position. Has improved much of late and Coucci may keep this one prominent. Banners Flying for the show.

Fifth race—Hokuao sprinted well the other day and returns to his favorite route today. The foreigner is in excellent shape and needs only a good ride. Stone Martin is keen now and promises to make a contest of it. Bright Beauty was a dud last out. Dangerous at 10 or 12 to 1 today.

Sixth race—Pencader has two fair races at this course and may be ready to show enough improvement to take care of this field. Hernando comes off a sprint and is dangerous. Catwalk for the minor part of the purse.

Dan Sabath Credited With Best Derby Trial

Louisville, Ky., April 12 (U.P.). Training of entucky Derby candidates continued active at Churchill Downs and Douglas Park today. The best move was recorded on a fas track at the Churchill Downs when Albert Sabath's Dan Sabath stepped a handy mile in 1:41 4-5.

Norman D., a stablemate of Dan Sabath, raced in company with the Monk's Way gelding, but confined his exercise to 6 furlongs in which he was clocked in 1:17 1-5. Tormy B., Cactus Rose and Dusty Dawn were the other derbyites that worked out at the Downs.

At Douglas Park, J. J. Ashe's Royal Leon negotiated 1¼ miles in 1:59 2-5 in handy fashion. Beau Tod dashed ⅝ mile in 1:05, and Exponent covered 6 furlongs in 1:20 handily.

Virginia Boasts Pair of Star Pitchers

Preston, Rogers Have Held Foes to 16 Hits in Three Games Yet Lost.

UNIVERSITY, Va., April 12 (AP). Co-Capt. Preston Luck and Orlin Rogers, a couple of ace pitchers who have found that you can't win ball games unless your teammates drive in some runs, are hoping for better luck when the University of Virginia Cavaliers play Maryland in College Park tomorrow and Navy in Annapolis Saturday.

These lads have allowed only 16 hits in the last three games, an average of a shade more than five bingles a contest, but the Cavaliers lost consecutive decisions to William and Mary, Maryland and North Carolina.

Poor hitting, especially with men on the bases, has cost the Cavaliers dearly, although some spotty fielding was responsible in large measure for the defeat by William and Mary.

18 Runless Innings.

Rogers, who has been pitching sensationally, was in the box 18 innings before a run was scored off him. He set Vermont back, 14 to 0. After Maryland tallied three runs to win in an extra inning, 3 to 0, Rogers pitched seven more scoreless frames and held North Carolina to one hit. Then came the eighth in which the Tarheels scored three runs to win, 3 to 1.

The Cavalier ace fanned 35 men in these three games, 19 Vermonters, 11 Marylanders and 5 Tarheels. He allowed only 14 hits in the three games.

CHEKA, moving into contention with a rush soon after the start, went into an easy lead when the others went wide, and under strong urging, outstayed MIGRATE. Latter, prominent early, lost considerable ground entering the home stretch, but closed stoutly. CARMANCHITA, forced extremely wide into the home stretch, finished with excellent courage. SCRAMBLED EGGS saved some ground at the stretch turn and finished gamely. BUCK LANGHORNE showed a good effort. FAKE could not threaten in the final drive. POLLY HUNDRED was crowded back soon after the start with WESTY'S DUKE.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRANSEN, $4.60, $2.80, $2.20; MELOY, $3.90, $2.60; TEXAS TOMMY, $2.40.

TRANSEN steadied close to the early pacemaker, assumed command midway of the turn, was shaken up stoutly and drew out approaching the finish. MELOY, saving ground from the start, moved up resolutely when reaching the home stretch but weakened fast in the final drive. TEXAS TOMMY was hard ridden from the start, and stopped in the closing drive. GOLDEN PRINCESS could not make up any ground in the final issue. DON CARLOS had nice speed for five furlongs. KINGBIRD had no excuses. LAST GIFT was outrun and pulled up lame.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:34. Off at 3:36. Winner, T. J. White's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DORNOCH $9.00, $3.10, $2.20; SUN SHADOW $2.40, $2.10; SUSPICIOUS, $2.40.

DORNOCH, going in his best form, raced Suspicious into submission, went into an easy lead, but had to be shaken up stoutly to withstand SUN SHADOW. Latter, taken up sharply soon after the start, dropped far out of contention, then closed a big gap to finish strongly. SUSPICIOUS went stoutly for the first half-mile and weakened thereafter. PERGOLA displayed speed in the opening three furlongs. THREE DAGGERS was outrun. STONE BRUISE quit.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:08. Off at once. Winner, Miss M. Amerault's b. g. STYLE CORNER, nicely handled and permitted to race along on his own courage in the early stage, resisted strong contention from HAWK MOTH when put to a drive and holding on stoutly, just lasted to stall off MY BOSS. Latter, eased back directly after the start, worked his way up on the outside when moving to the leaders and was wearing the winner down at every stride at the end. HAWK MOTH forced a steady pace and fought it out courageously. FERVID raced in spots. OFF DUTY lost ground in the final half-mile. CHAIN could not keep up. TRISTRAP displayed speed in the first quarter-mile.

Stocks Droop Two-Tenths in Lighter Sales

Preferred Issues Rally; Trading Volume Cut to 1,337,600 Shares.

New York, April 12 (AP).—Bonds and preferred stocks provided most of the list in security markets today. Junior equities were again disposed to hesitate, except for an assortment of specialties, and the closing average represented a small net loss.

Group movements into higher territory appeared from time to time in rubbers, and amusement utilities gained ground on balance, but rails and the general industrial section lagged a bit. Steel and motor stocks looked unenthusiastic, nor did metals assume much prominence. Transactions totaled 1,337,600 shares.

The market tried to rally in the morning, but soon gave over the advance to particular favorites of the moment, including Armour group, Loew's and a few others. Industrial Rayon rose more than 4 in response to the proposed splitup. American Telephone was firm, especially through the afternoon. Packing shares got part of their encouragement from the favorable showing made by Libby in its recent fiscal year.

Gains for Preferred.

Gains for many preferred stocks ranged from one to half a dozen points. American Beet Sugar's senior issue which trades in 10-share lots rose vigorously on news of rising earnings.

Armour of Illinois, U. S. Rubber, Real Silk and Radio Corporation "A" and "B" preferred found themselves in new high ground for the year; several others enjoyed the same distinction.

The market appeared to be hopeful that labor difficulties affecting the automobile industry would be adjusted, although Detroit advices reported that labor was said to be dissatisfied with the new Federal automobile board.

Situation Is Confused.

The situation was rather confused when trading stopped for the day, but shares of the motor manufacturers and related lines did not seem noticeably apprehensive.

Further changes in the stock exchange bill included the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee's adoption of a 45 per cent margin requirement which was regarded as quite a concession. At the same time the committee gave the Reserve Board authority to change margins.

Much criticism of the original bill was directed against its rigid margin provisions which were widely viewed as deflationary.

Robey's Review

Expenditures for CWA (New) and FERA in First Week of Operation Over 50 Per Cent Larger Than for the Old CWA at Its Peak.

By Ralph West Robey.

Anyone who attempts to find out from the daily Treasury statement what is going on financially in the Civil Works Administration and the organization which was supposed to replace it, the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, has about as pretty a problem as he could desire. Most of us were under the impression that the CWA as such was stopped as of the end of March. It was known, of course, that this was not completely true and that some CWA work would be continued, but as a major expense to the Government, it was understood to come to an end at that time.

In its place was to be the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. This organization, we were told, would be much more economical because it would provide work "only for those who need it." This work was to be under the direction of various non-Federal organizations which were to get a greater or lesser proportion of their funds from the Federal Government.

Promised Economy Has Not Been Realized.

When one looks at the daily statement of the United States Treasury, however, all of this promised economy seems to have been mere fiction. During the first seven days of April, as shown in this statement, the total payments under the CWA were $36,000,000. On top of this were the expenditures of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. These amounted in this period to $58,000,000. We have, then, for the first week of April total expenditures of $94,000,000 by the two organizations which in combination are the exact functional counterpart of the old CWA.

What this amounts to perhaps is most easily realized by recalling the rate of expenditures under the old CWA. According to Harry Hopkins, the Federal relief administrator, the total expenditures at the peak of CWA were approximately $60,000,000 a week. This was at a time when over 4,000,000 men were being employed. With the curtailment of this form of relief during March the total outlay was reduced until in the last week of that month, according to Mr. Hopkins, the pay roll amounted to only approximately $29,000,000.

Estimated Cost of FERA Only $20,000,000 a Week.

In the same statement in which Mr. Hopkins gave the above figures he also estimated that the cost of the new plan to the Federal Government would be about $20,000,000 a week. Of course the outlay for one week does not mean that this estimate necessarily will prove wrong. At the same time one can not help but be somewhat astonished to have the expenditures during the first week of the "new economy" plan cost not only almost five times the administrator's estimate but as well more than 50 per cent more than the old CWA at its peak.

There is another point that is worth thinking of in this connection. This is how long the present appropriation can last. Mr. Hopkins said at the start of April that he had approximately $600,000,000 available. At the current rate of expenditure this will not carry us even to the first of June. If this proves to be true, obviously some further relief plan must be devised because we still have, again according to the estimate of Mr. Hopkins, "18,000,000 persons dependent upon relief."

Wool Market.

Boston, April 12 (A.P.).—(U. S. Department of Agriculture.).—The volume of business in wool was very limited. An occasional sale was closed, but the amounts in individual sales were in most cases very small. Prices generally were below the peaks of selling ranges prevailing a month ago, some sales being on the low side of those ranges. Several recent sales of average French combing 64s and finer territory wool in original bags closed at 81@83, scoured basis.

Goods Markets.

New York, April 12 (A.P.).—Print cloths and narrow sheetings continued dull in the cotton goods markets today. Wide cloths for automobile uses were in better demand. Bleached domestics eased slightly. Wool goods were quiet. Rayon trading in yarns and fabrics has become quieter. Silk goods for immediate cutting are in steady demand. Burlaps were barely steady and quiet.

Bank of England.

London, April 12 (A.P.).—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes, in pounds: Total reserve increased 4,742,000; circulation decreased 4,676,000; bullion increased 66,000; other securities decreased 616,000; public deposits increased 3,728,000; other deposits decreased 7,084,000; notes reserve increased 4,766,000; government securities decreased 8,074,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 47.86 per cent, compared with 43.88 last week.

Bonds Capture Peaks Again in Heavy Trading

Profit-Taking Weathered; Turnover Is Up to $18,447,000.

New York, April 12 (AP).—The bond market continued to reach for "new highs" today and, despite considerable last-minute profit-taking, numerous issues finished with substantial gains.

Transfers totaled $18,447,000, par value, about the same as yesterday, and the average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced two-tenths of a point to 87.2, another peak for the past two years or longer.

There was no especial news to influence the trend. Strike threats in the automotive field were offset by further bright business reports. Inflationary psychology appeared to be dormant. Dealers found that the principal stimulus was the huge amount of idle funds seeking relatively safe employment.

Some Gains Trimmed.

Due to late realizing many of the leading gainers fell back from their top quotations. There was also a scattering of losses noted at the close of the latter, however, not particularly heavy.

Among the more active rail gainers of fractions to 2 or more points were some liens of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Central Pacific, Chicago & Alton, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Erie, Illinois Central, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, New Haven, Norfolk & Southern, Southern Pacific and Southern.

The more active utilities and industrials, up fractionally to around a point, included bonds of Warner Bros., Virginia Railway & Power, U. S. Rubber, United Drug, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Irion, Paramount, International Hydro-Electric, Armour & Co., American Water Works, and American & Foreign Power.

Federals Record Gains.

U. S. Government securities were not exceptionally lively, but the majority recorded advances of one-thirty-second to six thirty-seconds of a point. Transactions in the called Liberty Fourth 4¼s were carried on only on a cash basis because deliveries could not be made before Monday. On that date the called bonds will be worth exactly par.

As the Treasury's books were closed at midnight on the new conversion offer, a heavy volume of exchanges in the retiring Liberty series was said to have been recorded in the final business hours. It was not expected the Government would be called upon to make unusually large cash payments.

The foreign department was rather listless, although Japanese obligations, which have been forging ahead steadily for some time, established new top prices for the past year or more. The Germans pointed lower, as did the Chileans.

Superior Oil Corporation reports net profit of $74,594 for the quarter ended March 31 against net loss of $137,039 a year ago.

A net loss of $642,293 for the year 1933 was reported by the Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation compared with net loss of $2,477,348 in 1932. The company is a subsidiary of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, which is in receivership.

Carl Gray, president of Union Pacific, says the road's March earnings ran at about the same rate of increase over 1933 as the first two months of this year. Gross revenues in March, 1933, were $7,263,677 and net operating income was $665,592.

After incurring a loss of more than $500,000 in the first half of 1933, Amerada Corporation reports that profitable operations in the second half enabled it to show earnings of $380,443 for the entire year, after deducting depreciation, depletion, intangible drilling costs and all other charges. This is equivalent to 50 cents per share on the 767,375 shares outstanding at the end of the year and compares with earnings of $1,147,207, or $1.48 per share, for the year 1932.

American Beet Sugar Co. and wholly owned subsidiaries report for the nine months ended December 31, 1933, net profit of $1,195,318, equal to $24.69 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock on which there is an accumulation of unpaid dividends. The balance available for the common, after allowing for nine months' dividend requirements on the senior stock, is equivalent to $2.58 a share. For the fiscal year ended March 31, 1933, net loss was $75,377.

Earnings of General Foods Corporation in the first quarter of 1934 were larger than last year, C. M. Chester, president of the company, told stockholders at their annual meeting today. Tonnage volume for the quarter was up 28 per cent, he reported, although the extent of the increase in profits has not yet been determined.

Mr. Chester estimated the increase in General Foods' pay rolls as a result of NRA operation at $375,000 annually.

Chicago, April 12.—Earnings reported by Libby, McNeill & Libby for the year ended March 3, 1934, amount to $2,206,341.74, which compares to the loss reported for the preceding fiscal year of $6,248,477.83. The deficit at the beginning of the year, $5,031,591.30, has been reduced to $2,825,249.56.

The earnings for the year are sufficient to cover current dividend requirements on both first and second preferred shares amounting to $1,368,100 and leave a balance for common shareholders of $838,241.74, a return of $1.34 per share on the $10 par common shares outstanding. The earnings for the year have been retained in the business, strengthening the working capital position of the company as indicated by an increase in net working capital of $2,806,375.19, and a ratio of current assets to current liabilities which now shows 2.81.

New York, April 12 (AP).—The New York Federal Reserve Bank reported no gold imports today for the first time in nearly two months, or since the first shipments reached New York after the dollar was revalued and the Treasury announced its readiness to purchase metal at $35 a fine ounce. There also were no exports today and no change in the gold stocks held under earmark for foreign account.

As was expected, an enormous number of owners of called fourth Liberty bonds lined up in banks late this afternoon in the last-minute rush to convert the bonds into the new 10-12 year 3¼ per cent obligations offered in exchange by the Treasury. The Federal Reserve Bank tellers kept their windows open until 5 p. m. to accommodate the late arrivals.

Cotton Loses Early Gains In Late Trading

May Closes at 11.91 as General Market Drops 2 to 4 Points.

New York, April 12 (AP).—Early moderate advances in cotton today in sympathy with relatively higher cables were followed by declines under continued liquidation and Southern selling. Easiness of wheat and reports of poor demand for spot cotton and textiles checked demand, except for trade buying on a scale down. July eased from 12.11 to 12.02 and closed at 12.03, with the general market ending steady at net declines of 2 to 4 points.

Brokers with Liverpool and Japanese connections were among the early sellers, while offerings also came from the South, and May liquidation continued.

There was also a tendency to mark time pending definite developments in the Bankhead bill in committee. Prices moved within a narrow range and more or less irregularity in response to small orders, but, on the whole, were inclined to sag under local, New Orleans and Southern selling. Trade buying at around the 12-cent level for July accounted for some resistance on the reactions. May eased from 12 to 11.91, and closing quotations were at or within a few points of the lowest.

Dry weather over the greater part of the belt combined with rather high temperatures were regarded as favorable for planting operations. In the meantime, Washington advices indicated differences of opinion among House and Senate conferees over the tax provisions of the Bankhead bill.

Exports today, 12,476 bales, making 6,315,078 bales so far this season, Port receipts, 13,190 bales. United States port stocks, 3,062,408 bales.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil today was firm early on covering and buying by Wall street and the South on the favorable March consumption report, showing advances of 10 to 12 points, but reacted sharply under increased liquidation and the commission house selling, with final prices 5 to 9 points net lower.

The reaction was influenced by weakness of grains, unsettled lard market and weakened technical position. Sales were 109 contracts, including 36 exchanges from May to later positions. The Census Bureau placed March consumption at 250,000 barrels, while the visible supply declined to 2,782,000 barrels. Bleachable spot, nominal; May closed 5.34; July, 5.52; September, 5.76; October, 5.83.

Seat on Stock Exchange Advances to $140,000

New York, April 12 (AP).—New York Stock Exchange seat prices experienced a sharp recovery today coincident with the movement in Washington to take some of the sharper teeth out of the stock trading control bill. A seat sold at $140,000, an increase of $40,000 over the previous sale.

Stock exchange seat values slumped heavily in March when it appeared that the Fletcher-Rayburn act was due for enactment with only minor modifications. Seven memberships were transferred at declining prices, a low of $83,000 being established on March 27. This was more than $100,000 below prices paid for seats near the end of January.

Germany's Rayon Yarn Foreign Sales Decline

The comparatively favorable development of Germany's foreign trade in rayon yarn experienced a severe setback in February, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Acting Commercial Attache Douglas Miller, Berlin.

Imports, which had decreased from 1,729,200 kilograms, valued at 4,320,000 reichsmarks, in December, 1933, to 569,800 kilograms, worth 2,250,000 reichsmarks in January, 1934, advanced again by more than 50 per cent to 866,400 kilograms, valued at 3,330,000 reichsmarks.

Store Sales In Nation Gain 44 Per Cent

All Reserve Bank Areas Report Big Increases; Atlanta Leads.

(Associated Press.)

A big jump in March department store sales, which shot them 44 per cent ahead of March, 1933, was announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board.

Every reserve district shared in the increased trade reported by 511 stores in 255 cities. The value of sales rose 27 per cent between January 1 and March 31 as compared with the same quarter last year.

The Atlanta district showed the largest increase over March a year ago, with 71 per cent. The Cleveland area came next with 67, and the Dallas region third with 58.

The three leaders in the rise since January 1 were Atlanta with 43 per cent, Dallas with 41 and Cleveland with 36.

Board's Own Summary.

The board's own summary of the changes said:

"Preliminary figures on the value of department store sales show an increase from February to March of considerably more than the estimated seasonal amount. The Federal Reserve Board's index, which makes allowance for number of business days, for usual seasonal movements and for changes in the date of Easter, was 76 in March on the basis of the 1923-1925 average as 100, compared with 71 in February and 69 in January.

"In comparison with a year ago, the value of sales for March according to preliminary figures was 44 per cent larger. The increase over a year ago reflects in part the fact that Easter was earlier this year than last year as well as the increase in the number of business days.

"Sales in March a year ago were also affected by the closing of the banks. Reported increases compared with last year are shown for all districts, the largest increases being in the Atlanta, Cleveland and Dallas districts. The aggregate for the first quarter of the year was 27 per cent larger than last year."

Percentages of Increase.

The respective percentages of increase between March, 1934, and March, 1933, and between the first quarter this year and the first quarter of 1933 were given by districts as follows:

Boston, 43 and 24; New York, 32 and 18; Philadelphia, 42 and 21; Cleveland, 67 and 36; Richmond, 52 and 28; Atlanta, 71 and 43.

Chicago, 53 and 34; St. Louis, 49 and 34; Minneapolis, 29 and 20; Kansas City, 42 and 25; Dallas, 58 and 41; San Francisco, 40 and 24.

The report of the Bureau of Mines shows production of 8,657,000 tons for the week ended March 24, and 9,205,000 for the week ended March 31, 1934.

Production calendar year to April 7: 1934, 108,833,000 tons (subject to revision); 1933, 83,080,000 tons.

U. S. Mining Is Stepped Up During March

Nonferrous Metal Output Improves; Employment Increases.

New York, April 12.—March saw a substantial improvement in nonferrous mining activity throughout the United States, according to the current issue of Engineering & Mining Journal. "Basically," that publication states, "this development was probably the result of material betterment in general economic conditions. Seasonal influence also undoubtedly entered into the situation.

"Reports from various mining districts, chiefly gold and silver, reveal increasing employment of mine workers, reopening of many old camps, including one in Nevada where Mark Twain tried his luck, and the inception of a large number of new ventures, several of fair proportions.

"Continuation of the current expansion in metal mining activity is generally expected, with settlement of problems coincident with codification of the various branches of the mining industry materially aiding in bringing about a return to better days in mining communities."

"Nonferrous metals, shipments to conumers show, have shared in the general expansion of trade recorded by business indicators," according to Engineering & Mining Journal.

"Copper, measured statistically," the paper continues, "is convalescing. Stocks or refined copper in the hands of members of the Copper Institute on March 1 were unofficially reported at 612,000 tons, against slightly more than 630,000 tons a month previous. A year ago the stocks held by the group that accounts for 90 per cent of the world's production were estimated at 750,000 tons. In the 12 months' period the improvement in the position of copper has been substantial.

"The statistical position of major nonferrous metals," the publication concludes, "weighing all the evidence in hand, should improve over the second quarter of the year."

Grain Stabilization Sells More Coffee

New York, April 12.—The sale of 37,500 bags of Santos coffee from the Grain Stabilization Corporation's holdings at prices ranging from 11.21 to 11.31 cents per pound was announced on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange today. The balance still unsold is only 37,500 bags.

The last previous sale on March 8 brought from 11.87 to 12.03 cents. This coffee is all that is left of the 1,050,000 bags received from Brazil several years ago in exchange for 25,000,000 bushels of American wheat.

An average of 10 cents has been obtained on the 1,012,500 bags sold to date. As Santos coffee at the time of the trade was worth about 8 cents, the paper profit to the Government would exceed $2,600,000, exclusive of warehouse, administrative and other charges.

1,800,000 Persons Travel by Aircraft

More than 1,800,000 persons were carried as passengers in civil aircraft of the United States during 1933, according to an announcement yesterday by the aeronautics branch, Department of Commerce.

In all types of operations, including those scheduled air lines, miscellaneous commercial operators and private flyers, the number of passengers transported was 1,815,074. Miles flown totaled 125,865,390.

The total of passengers carried in 1932 was 1,796,490; miles flown in that year were 129,111,667.

The passengers flown by civil aircraft during 1933 included 568,940 who were patrons of the air lines and 1,246,134 who flew in other civil aircraft. The air lines flew 54,642,545 miles in 1933, and other civil aircraft flew 71,222,845.

Germany Halts Imports Of Hides Until May 15

A German Government decree of April 10, 1934, extended the Government import control on the purchase of foreign raw materials to include hides and skins (tariff item 153), according to a cablegram to the Department of Commerce from the Commercial Attache at Berlin. Purchases abroad are prohibited until May 15, 1934.

It is understood that this measure is connected with the efforts to counteract the growing deficit in the German trade balance and for the better rationing of supplies of industrial raw materials. A similar control was recently established over textile raw materials and copper.

Canadian Worth $2,349.

Montreal, April 12 (U.P.).—There is no danger of Canada "drowning in a sea of debts," as some pessimists claim, J. A. Barette, member for Berthier-Maskinonge, has advised the Canadian Parliament. Barette said that a Canadian citizen is worth $2,349, whereas a citizen of the United States is only worth $1,646.

$128,566.67 Premium.

Sjringfield, Ill., April 12 (AP).—A premium of $128,566.67 was paid to the State today for $5,000,000 in State notes by a syndicate of Chicago banks, State Treasurer John Martin announced.

Martin said the interest on the notes will be 2 per cent while 6 per cent was required for the last issue.

Frank W. Lovejoy Elected.

Rochester, N. Y., April 12 (AP).—Election of Frank W. Lovejoy as president of the Eastman Kodak Co. was announced following a meeting of the board of directors. He succeeds William J. Stuber, who was elected chairman of the board, a position vacant since the death of George Eastman in 1932.

U. S. Buying More Philippine Sugar

New York, April 12—Raw sugar shipments from the Philippines to the United States for the first five months of the crop year, November 1, 1933, to March 31, 1934, amounted to 705,218 long tons, against 530,925 tons during the similar period in 1932-33, an increase of 28%, according to cables to the N. Y. Coffee & Sugar Exchange.

Refined shipments for the same period were 41,693 tons against 28,015 tons in 1932-33, a gain of 48.8%. Shipments for the last half of March, raw and refined together, totaled 120,048 tons against 76,460 during the same period in 1933.

Approximately 62% of the amount available for the United States of the 1933-34 crop has been shipped so far. Last year 53% of the total crop had been shipped by the first of April.

AutoProsperity Booms Profits Of Parts Plants

New York, 12 — Earnings results of 21 leading automobile parts makers for 1933, as compiled by the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, mirror the recuperative powers of the parts trade. Total earnings for these manufacturers are shown to have been better than $13,700,000 last year, as contrasted with a net loss of nearly $14,700,000 in 1932. The chief factor, of course, was the expanded takings of original equipment parts, reflecting the gain of over 41 per cent in passenger car and truck outturn last year. Operating economies, instituted during the depression also contributed to this improvement, notwithstanding the rise in wage and material costs late in 1933, resulting largely from NRA codes.

With a large volume of unfilled orders still to be filled, the seasonally active auto season at hand, and the recent sharp uptrend of retail demand, automobile manufacturers will continue to operate on relatively full schedules during the current quarter. Parts and accessories sales, therefore, should remain at close to the best levels in some four years during at least the early future.

Despite the recent narrowing tendency, of average profit margins, the larger volume of business should permit most companies to extend their first quarter profits betterment by a reasonable margin. It is understood, for example, that so-called "overhead," or the relatively inflexible costs, for a number of units amount to fully one-third or more of their total expenses. Since these should be distributed over a larger unit volume, a partial offset to the broad trend toward narrower gross profit margins is indicated, with correspondingly beneficial effects on net returns.

The longer term outlook for the equipment trade is also definitely encouraging. A record volume of replacement demand for new cars, coupled with the sharp upturn in sales in the past year, clearly indicate that as general purchasing power is further expanded, automobile sales will record prompt and vigorous revival. Since parts demand will necessarily rise somewhat in advance of retail car sales, the prospects are that earnings recovery of strategically placed suppliers will continue well in the van of general business improvement.

Optimism in Spanish Business Is Reported

A definite improvement in the tone of Spanish business is reported to the Commerce Department by Acting Commercial Attache J. C. Greenup, Madrid.

From mid-February to the middle of March, the report states, Spanish commerce and industry was handicapped by political uncertainties and strikes but toward the end of March tranquillity was restored. There were several days when trade virtually ceased in different regions, with the result that turnover for the period was reduced in many lines of business. However, the advances of recent months, even though small, have not been lost entirely, and a continued spirit of optimism augurs well for the immediate future.

Machinery Sales Slow Up.

New York, April 12 (AP).—With one or two exceptions leading industrial centers report a slowing up of machinery sales in the first week of April, says American Machinist. Generally speaking, however, "inquiries are good and distributors have plenty of prospects which should lead to orders later when industry settles down," the publication asserts.

Annual Meeting Adjourned.

New York, April 12.—The annual meeting of Patino Mines & Enterprises consolidated has been adjourned to April 24 in order that the annual report may reach the stockholders.

Vegetable Dye Exports Gain During 1933

Despite keen competition from dyes produced artificially, those obtained from vegetable sources continue to retain an important place in trade and industry, according to C. C. Concannon, chief, Chemical Division, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Some natural dyes, however, notably indigo, have been almost completely replaced by artificially produced dyes and practically all natural dyes are produced in smaller quantities than 10 years ago. United States production of natural dyestuff extracts in 1931 was valued at $1,600,000.

Aside from supplying domestic requirements for natural dyes, American manufacturers enjoy a considerable export demand. In 1933 outbound shipments of these products were valued at $163,000, compared with $146,840 in the preceding year. More than 30 foreign countries participated in the trade. Logwood dye extracts led with shipments valued at $105,000, compared with $103,000 in 1932.

Most of our supply of raw material used in the manufacture of natural extracts must be imported. Approximately $225,000 worth of logwood, the heartwood of a tropical tree, from which the dye material is extracted, was imported in 1933. Imports of this raw material in 1918 were valued at $668,150. Most of our logwood supplies originate in Haiti, Mexico and Jamaica.

Other raw dye materials which are imported include cudbear, persian berries and saffron. Logwood is the most important natural dyestuff appearing in trade and the extract is used extensively for dyeing and weighting silk.

C. & O. Freight Loads Drops to 23,649 Cars

New York, April 12 (AP).—Freight loadings of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway last week totaled 23,649 cars, compared with 31,190 the week before and 22,446 a year ago.

Loadings of the Chicago & North Western were 22,624 cars, against 23,648 and 18,661 in the previous periods.

Mexico Buys More Office Equipment

Sales of office equipment in Mexico during 1933 registered a marked improvement over 1932, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Assistant Commercial Attache R. G. Glover, Mexico City.

Imports of typewriters increased from a value of 333,341 pesos in 1932 to a total of 800,758 pesos in 1933. There was a notable increase in the sales of calculating and adding machines as well as furniture.

To a large extent, Glover reported, increased business in office equipment followed as a result of the general economic improvement of the country. The government's action in pegging the peso to the dollar in July, 1933, has also aided trade in office equipment.

Argentine Increases Imports of Iron Pipe

Imports of wrought iron pipe into Argentina during 1933 registered a notable increase over the preceding year, a report to the Commerce Department from its Buenos Aires office shows. This product, it is pointed out, is one of the most important items in the iron and steel import trade of Argentina.

Total Argentine imports of iron and steel products in 1933 showed an increase of 28.8 per cent in tonnage, compared with 1932, and amounted to 457,014 and 354,863 metric tons, respectively. The tariff valuations of these imports were 89,013,661 paper pesos for 1933 and 67,647,345 paper pesos for 1932, an increase of 31.6 per cent.

Poland Encourages Using of Tobacco

In an effort to stimulate a steadily declining consumption of tobacco in Poland, the Polish Tobacco Monopoly has caused the removal of "no smoking" signs in public places and street cars in that country, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Acting Commercial Attache Basil D. Dahl, Warsaw. Other methods adopted to increase tobacco consumption include better methods of distribution, the installation of automatic vending machines, and a slight reduction in the price of tobacco products.

These measures, although reacting favorably on sales, have failed to offset the general decrease in purchasing power, Dahl declares. Many persons have been forced to discontinue smoking.

It would appear that any noticeable increase in tobacco sales can only be anticipated in case the financial situation of the public at large improves, the report states.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — The Old Sleuth At Home — By Harry J. Tuthill

GEORGE BUNGLE, ALL EVENING YOU'VE SWAGGERED AROUND THIS HOUSE WITH A SORT OF PUFFED-UP SNEAKY LOOK.
ANYBODY WHO SPENDS ALL DAY MASSAGING TOUGH SIDEWALKS WITH TENDER PUPPIES IS BOUND TO LOOK ODD.
I'LL BET YOU'VE BOUGHT MORE STOCK IN ANOTHER OF THOSE AFFAIRS SUPPOSED TO MAKE YOU A MILLIONAIRE WHILE-YOU-WAIT.
BUY STOCK? ME? WHAT WOULD I USE FOR MONEY? OLD SAFETY RAZOR BLADES?
I KNOW YOU HAVE SOME BIG MILLION DOLLAR IDEA ON YOUR MIND. THIS IS JUST ABOUT THE TIME OF YEAR YOU BREAK OUT WITH A RASH FOR INVENTING SOMETHING.
I'M PRACTICALLY DONE WITH INVENTIONS.
ALL I EVER GOT OUT OF THEM WAS A NUMBER FROM THE PATENT OFFICE AND THE FEELING THAT I WAS FOUNDERED FROM EATING TOO MANY HEADACHE TABLETS.
TELL ME! ALL EVENING YOU'VE HAD THE SAME IMPORTANT AIR YOU DID A FEW YEARS AGO WHEN YOU THOUGHT WALL STREET WAS JUST ONE OF SANTA CLAUS' BRANCH OFFICES.

Walt Mason, Himself

The Wakeful Night.

I lay me down in peace to sleep when night's shades o'er the landscape creep; a slice of slumber will restore my jaded nerves, now strained and sore, renew my youth, restore my heart and make the ghosts of gloom depart. Conditions all invite repose, no finer couch a monarch knows, with snowy sheets and pillows deep, all things are here inducing sleep. I lay me down with full intent to sleep until the night is spent; and straightway I begin to think of bonds and coupons on the blink, of bonds that seemed among the best when I was tempted to invest. I think of false and vicious hicks who've loaded me with gilded bricks, who sold me hokum by the mile and carried off my hard-earned pile. I think of vacant lots I own, which should by now be overgrown with handsome buildings paying rent, to ease my grief and discontent. Such woe as this the long night brings; I think of all the ghastly things that ever chanced to make man fret, and some that haven't happened yet. I can not sleep, I can not snore, so I get up and walk the floor, and hail the morning with delight, for in the daytime I'm all right. Then I can meet my friends and say, "Well, things look better every day!"
